High prices and slow trade are the features of the market at Newark. The retailers cite the former as reason for the latter. Mums have about reached their finish. Paper Whites are coming into the market in increasing quantities.

Charles Trauth, 475 Orange street, reports a good Thanksgiving business, but claims the holiday trade lacks spirit.

GLADIOLI FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

I wish to ask a few questions in regard to the cropping of gladioli for Memorial day. I have just finished cutting a crop of mums. Can I use the soil in that bench for planting gladioli or should it be enriched or dumped?

FIRST COST THE LAST COST

When should Mrs. Francis King be planted? Is there a better variety than this for forcing? How far apart should the rows be? Is there any crop I can grow between now and the time for planting gladioli? The bench is in my carnation house. Will bulbs from my own garden be satisfactory?

D. F. C.—Colo.

The old mum soil will be satisfactory if you give it a dressing of sheep manure or well rotted stable manure and fork it over well. For Memorial day, gladioli should not be planted until the end of February and, if you grow the primulinus varieties, the middle of March will be early enough. Let the rows run ten inches apart and place the bulbs from four to five inches apart in the rows. Mrs. Francis King is an excellent forcer. Other good varieties are America, Halley, Mrs. Watt, Panama and Augusta. By no means overlook some of the handsome primulinus hybrids. A mixed assortment will prove serviceable. Bulbs from your garden will force well, but of course not so well as prepared bulbs. C. W.

King GREENHOUSES

A decorative greenhouse is a practical necessity to the country estate. Many city dwellers who have spacious grounds enjoy a small, attractive greenhouse as well. The illustration is a good example.

Up-to-date florists very frequently take advantage of these attractive designs for show rooms in the rear of their stores. Those who have them say they never made a better investment.

This is just a reminder to you that we can build you anything you want—a flower factory or a sales factory.

—time waits for no man!

Next year you will be older than you are now. You will have one year less in which to accomplish the things you started out to accomplish. If there were things that appeared to you to serve as good excuses for not making a move to bring nearer those things you started out to do—for not doing something to realize your ambitions—you may as well face the cold, incontrovertible fact that there never will come a year or any part of a year when something will not appear that may serve as an excuse for marking time and waiting. But burn this into your memory!

Time never marks time in that way—it never waits. It moves on inexorably and checks off the days allotted to you to make good in your chosen occupation.

So you can readily see, if you were one of those who let war conditions serve as an excuse for standing still, and who then let reconstruction conditions and high prices serve as another excuse and who stand, even now, with both ears open to catch the faintest pessimistic murmur that may serve as yet another excuse, you will be rudely awakened some day, to a realization of the fact that you are no longer a young man—that you are no longer a middle-aged man—that for you the prime of life has passed—that those years of your life that should have been spent in building up a business of sufficient size to take care of your declining years have been spent in marking time—in waiting for conditions in which every element, every factor is in your favor. In other words, in waiting for something that never has existed and never can exist.

Conditions right now are as favorable for the building of greenhouses as they are likely to be for a period of time that will place you and other present-day florists on the retired list. We do not mean by this that times are never going to be good. We mean by this that times right now are relatively good—that most of the unfavorable conditions originated in the fevered imagination of people who are always looking for ghosts—the kind who will prophesy a heavy storm on the brightest and most perfect June day.

So let us all determine this very hour to make the most we can of the time at our disposal—to make every effort to achieve the success we want—to show the stuff of which we are made.

We have done our part by reducing the price of greenhouse materials approximately

25%

You can do your part by taking advantage of this reduction. Of course, the sooner we get together—the better. When will it be?

A Matter of Accomplishment

Built for the Bohemian National Cemetery, Chicago, Illinois.

Since 1910 we have been building greenhouses for the Bohemian National Cemetery. Nearly every year we have had a contract to build one kind of greenhouse or another, ranging from large curved eave palm houses through all steel and pipe frame commercial houses.

At the left a corner of the new steel and brick boiler room is shown. This we have just completed and installed therein a battery of steam power boilers which furnish the steam for the Moninger vacuum heating just put in by us.

First-class design, good durable materials, reasonable prices and prompt and efficient service are the things which enable us to secure contracts time and again, year after year.

Why not get started with us now? Prices are down.

The Semi-Iron Construction

Next to our Sectional Iron Frame house, there is no better house made than our Semi-Iron.

Some even go so far as to say there is none as good made.

But one thing sure, it is as strong and enduring as a house can be made, without iron rafters, and still be sufficiently light to meet present-day requirements.

It's a fact that the sides, up to and including the eave plate, are the same general construction as the Iron Frame house.

You really get the same guaranteed wrought iron posts, and the same angle iron eave; also the same roof bar clasps.

The cypress woodwork is, of course, in every case every bit as good.

The sash themselves are absolutely the same.

If you are one of the ones who feel that our Semi-iron house costs more than other houses of similar construction, you are one of the ones who are dead wrong. What we want to do with you is to get right down to rock-bottom facts and figures.

After you have carefully studied our house in the Handy Hand Book, and compared it with other constructions and their costs, and have had a good talk with us, then you will be in a position to come to definite, practical conclusions.

No matter whether you buy only the materials you think you want, or those we think you should have, in either case there is not a builder in the field to-day who can undersell us, unless, of course, it's a case of making you a present.

We don't make any presents, but there's no one will make you a better house.

Let's have a good, old-fashioned talk together about this price question.

Let's go at it slowly, with plenty of time to prove things up step by step.

Will you do that?

When do you want to see us?

CHRISTMAS FLOWERS

Our prices for this Christmas average the same as a year ago, despite the big advance in the cost of growing, such as coal, labor, etc.

Nearly all of our growth of flowers are sold on regular orders that go the season through. We therefore feel that it is only fair to our customers that for the holidays we will assume this extra cost of growing ourselves.

————— Buy Direct From the Grower —————

You always get fresh flowers and a more even run of stock. Our

are the finest in this market.

FREE, WASHINGTON, D. C. HUNDRED AT THOUSAND PRICE

First-class Certificate Haarlem, August 4, 1919. Its color is a shade brighter than America, flowers twice as large as America and its habit of growth is like America. It is as early as Halley and multiplies as Halley. In a few years Le Marechal Foch will be growing all over the U. S. A., and when you are talking about Gladioli you will talk about Le Marechal Foch, because it is the best fine pink color, very early, has extra shipping qualities, and every first size bulb gives three and four strong flower spikes direct out of the bulb.

Never a Gladiolus has been introduced with such great trade possibilities.

Notice re Import

Last year we had several shipments for customers in the U. S. A. All have been inspected by the F. H. B. in Washington and no pests at all have been found, so all customers have received the goods in good condition. As the inspection by the F. H. B. is very exact, you have to be sure that you get absolutely sound stuff. We therefore beg to inform you that you cannot order Gladioli everywhere, because the inspection has to be done also on our side very carefully, and although our cultures are absolutely pest free, we hand-select all our bulbs before shipping. If you give us your order you can be sure that you will have no trouble at all, as we know all about inspection, packing and shipping. Bulbs for propagating are duty free. We are the largest stockholders of this variety and guarantee true stock. Stock is very limited.

For Import License

address the Federal Horticultural Board in Washington, D. C., which gives it freely for this splendid variety. We allow 7% discount for cash with order, otherwise three months' credit with good references. Send your name for our list of fancy varieties.

Owing to the very great increase in price of all materials used in packing of plants, we find it necessary to make a small charge for same, as follows, much lower than the percentage plan:

Full size cases	.....$2.00 each; Three-quarter size cases.....$1.50 each
Small size cases	.....$0.50 each

CHECKING COSTLY CHIMNEY LOSSES

Since the greenhouse owner must pay more money for the things he needs most, he can only keep down his costs by using less. To do this he must become acquainted with the possible ways of reducing waste, one of the most important of which is pointed out in this article.

THE subject of fuel economy is today of greater interest to florists than ever before. There are two reasons: First, fuel costs two or three times as much as it did a few years ago, and second, in many instances during the last few years it has been difficult to get at any price. The first reason is one that will remain. Prices of fuel, no matter what kind, will undoubtedly stay high, compared with prices before the war. The second reason should, however, vanish entirely when once labor and transportation facilities are properly controlled.

The high cost of fuel, therefore, provides the principal incentive to save it, and the greater the cost the greater will be that incentive. The two principal factors which enter into the cost of fuel are labor and transportation. Its price to the consumer will be governed by these two charges, plus whatever additional charge competition will permit the mining interests to add.

Up the Stack.

No matter how fuel is consumed and no matter what kind of fuel is burned, whether solid, powdered, liquid or gaseous, the biggest loss is always due to the heat energy wasted up the chimney. In this connection it might be well to quote the following conservative statement from bulletin No. 205, issued by the bureau of mines:

"In the average boiler plant, thirty-five per cent of the heat in the coal burned under the boilers is lost with the stack gases. That is, out of every 100 tons of coal burned under the boilers, the heat of thirty-five tons literally goes up the stack. It is this loss that can be greatly reduced, and every effort should be made to do so."

The loss up the chimney, which is always the largest individual loss in any heating plant, depends for its magnitude on three factors. These are, in order of importance: First, excess air in the products of combustion; second, temperature of the products of combustion; third, amount of unconsumed fuel in the products of combustion.

Air Consumed.

The excess air in the products of combustion results in loss greater than that from any other source. Every kind of fuel requires a definite amount of air to burn it, the exact quantity depending principally upon the ratio of its carbon and hydrogen. When considering coal, for example, the principal constituent is carbon, every pound of which requires twelve pounds of air to completely consume or oxidize it. All air that is used above this amount is known as excess air, and when supplied in greater quantities than is necessary to meet the particular conditions of the furnace in which the fuel is burned an unnecessary burden is immediately placed on the temperature possibilities of the furnace and the amount of fuel consumed to accomplish a desired result increased in proportion.

Even in fairly good practice about twenty-five tons of air is used to burn one ton of coal, and in the more poorly operated plants this amount is often doubled. Twenty-five tons represent a lot of air. Under normal conditions, it occupies a space nearly 16,000 times as large as the coal which it consumes. If this amount of air were contained in a pipe with one square foot cross sectional area, it would have to be long enough to extend nearly from New York to Baltimore. Stated in another way, if the floor of a room were covered with coal to a depth of one foot, the ceiling would have to be three miles high in order for the room to contain as much air as is generally used to burn that amount of fuel. The fact that so much air is consumed in burning one ton of coal is not realized by the fireman and the important relation which this huge mass bears to fuel economy is generally not given sufficient thought by his superiors. Although air costs nothing and is available in unlimited quantities, when used to burn fuel in excess of what is required, as is the case in the average heating plant, it becomes one of the most expensive raw materials.

Determining Waste.

All the air that is used in burning coal, whether under steam boilers or for any other process, appears in the products of combustion. If three times as much air is used as is necessary there will be just about three times as much products of combustion as necessary. This gas as it passes up the chimney contains the major portion of the heat that is unnecessarily wasted. Every degree of temperature to which each pound of this gas is heated above the temperature of the atmosphere means about 0.25 heat units that go to waste. The exact amount of heat wasted in this way can be determined by the weight of the products of combustion per pound of fuel burned, and the temperature at which they leave the furnace or enter the stack. Thus, in the average plant, for every ton of

All the air that is used in burning coal, whether under steam boilers or for any other process, appears in the products of combustion. Thus, in the average plant, for every ton of coal consumed, from one-third to one-half of the heat it contains is stolen by the products of combustion and dissipated into the atmosphere.

The other loss up the chimney, namely that due to unconsumed fuel in the products of combustion, is usually not so serious. The old idea that a smoky stack is a sign of tremendous waste is not always true; in fact, whether the gases leaving a chimney are smoky or smokeless is no indication at all as to the efficiency with which the fuel is consumed. Steam boilers, for example, connected with a stack that does not show the slightest trace of smoke may burn twice as much coal per pound of water evaporated as when smoke is in great prominence. Black smoke is, of course, unburned carbon, but the amount of carbon in this light and finely divided form that is necessary to give the products of combustion a dark or even a black appearance is generally only a small fraction of one per cent of the actual fuel burned. The additional unconsumed fuel that is apt to be present in the products of combustion is carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons, both of which are caused by an insufficient air supply or the improper mixture of the air with the fuel before it is ignited. Although it is possible for the loss due this way be determined at once, and the best efficiency under the working conditions of any plant can generally be obtained and maintained without the necessity of lengthy and elaborate tests.

Ideal Combustion.

With ideal combustion the rate of burning and consequently the amount of heat energy developed in a unit of time would be in proportion to the amount of air supplied. Unfortunately, however, conditions under which fuel is burned are far from ideal. In everyday practice air is supplied to the fuel in such excessive quantities that only from one-third to one-half of it combines with the combustible to liberate the heat which it contains. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, this condition is simply due to a lack of facilities for knowing whether the proper amount of air is supplied per pound of fuel consumed. When carbon, the principal constituent of any fuel, is completely burned the result is  $\text{CO}_2$ . Complete combustion occurs when air is supplied in excess of what is needed. When, however, the air supply is reduced or regulated to approach that which is theoretically required there is also a possibility of incomplete combustion, due to an insufficient amount of air Blaine C. Wilcox, of J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Council Bluffs, Ia., recently elected president of the Society of Iowa Florists, was in charge of the floriculture department of the exposition, and it was largely due to his activity that such excellent results were obtained. Among the exhibitors of flowers at the exposition were: Pinehurst Floral Co., Pleasant Hill, Mo.; Kirkwood Floral Co., Des Moines, Ia.; Iowa State College, Ames, Ia.; F. L. Lainson, Council Bluffs, Ia.; J. S. Wilson, Des Moines; Oscar H. Herman, Council Bluffs, and L. Stapp Co., Rock Island, Ill. Many of the extensive floral decorations on the walls and ends of the exposition hall were arranged by Vern Wilcox, of J. F. Wilcox & Sons. These were not in competition.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

"My sentiments exactly," observed Samuel R. Hansen, of North Troy, N. Y., following a perusal of the program issued by the Chicago Florists' Club for its meeting December 9. "It's the best thing of its kind yet issued, unique in its arrangements, up-to-the-minute and worthy of its composers. It will be my endeavor to carry out something similar during my term as president of the Albany Florists' Club, realizing the amount of latent talent we possess, which only needs uncovering to discover its wealth. It has taken our western confrere to express what is in the minds of all who have graduated in our profession and, as we are becoming more and more practical and the sentimental becomes merged in the commercial, the importance of having one's attention called to the value of our profession as a science cannot be overestimated. Another point to make," continued Mr. Hansen, "is the ever burning question of what constitutes a living price for our product. As the matter now stands, we are far removed from practicing the Golden Rule, and not until we do this, mark me, will the business be conducted along satisfactory lines. The subject of supply and demand overrules all and, as the bulk of the stock handled is perishable, absolutely no set rules or laws touching prices can be satisfactorily followed. Granted that a schedule of prices makes interesting reading, one's business is governed by its environment and, while we may do much toward educating public taste for our product, it remains for the individual to carry out in his limited sphere what the big brothers are trying to accomplish as a body."

It was incidentally mentioned at the time of this interview, just after Thanksgiving, that prices at wholesale had not receded. The outlook for Christmas business was propitious for plant sales. W. M.

Sedalia, Mo.—L. H. Archias, president of the Archias Floral Co., has been appointed a delegate to the International Farm Congress, which will be held at Kansas City, Mo., December 9 to 11. The appointment was made by Governor F. D. Gardner.

Lincoln, Neb.—C. H. Frey makes the interesting report that practically all his Christmas plants for wholesaling were ordered up a fortnight before the holiday. Orders were not so large as last year, but were much more numerous. Weather for shipping never was so good.

Iowa Florists Gain Bigger Share in Mid-West Horticultural Exposition.

to this cause to be serious, it is a fact that the average loss from this source can safely be estimated as less than two per cent.

Reducing Losses.

To reduce chimney losses to a minimum, no matter what means is used, we must know whether or not the proper amount of air is being supplied, whether or not air has been properly mixed with the fuel before it was ignited and whether or not too much heat is left in the products of combustion as they pass up the chimney. Under all conditions these important facts can be determined with the consistent use of fuel gas analyses and temperature measurements. The effect of any change in fuel or method of firing, the results of any additions or changes, or the value of any new appliance, can in reaching part of the combustible. When this is the case some of the carbon in the fuel will burn to CO instead of  $\text{CO}_2$ . It must be remembered, however, that the big loss in practice is due to excess air and not to an insufficient supply.

FLOWERS TO THE FORE.

That Iowa florists are awake to trade possibilities is evidenced by the rapid strides with which they pushed flowers into prominence at the annual Mid-West Horticultural Exposition, held at Council Bluffs, Ia., November 15 to 20. Up to this year the exposition was almost exclusively agricultural. A careful study of the illustration on this page will reveal the fact that it is no longer exclusively agricultural; on the other hand, it would appear that, before long, flowers might be one of the predominant features of the exhibition.

GROWING OUR OWN

ODAY we all seem to be confronted with dozens or more of serious and perplexing problems regarding our business today and tomorrow. Even with all these conditions the nursery and florists' trade of California is really in its infancy. We are operating in a new era. Economical and financial conditions are different. Ethical business principles are different. Social and political conditions are changed. What are going to be the results for you and me?

Many business men now have the well fed feeling that comes from a four years' banquet of big profits and cannot yet realize that lean times can ever return. This not necessarily has been the situation in the nursery and florists' business, for our trade seems to have been slower than all others to increase its prices in proportion to costs of production. There no doubt were many reasons for this, but it was mostly due to the lack of close coöperation and organization obtaining in other trades.

It is not my intention to forecast a price movement, but I believe most observers will agree that the high point in commodity prices has been reached, and that from now on we may expect a general downward tendency for several years. Likely this will not be entirely true in the prices of florists' and nursery stock and a few other commodities, but most, I feel certain, will decline.

New Capital.

There is plenty of money in the country for the purpose of business operation, but not enough to care for the present and immediate future needs of business. Almost universally, the merchant wants to expand and the banker wants to contract. Sooner or later the business man must accept the banker's view. Capital therefore being denied, industries question how production can be increased without available funds. The answer is that new capital only comes from one source, and that is savings. Wealth is created only out of savings. Do you realize that the leading capitalist of today is the man who earns a daily wage? When we consider that the wage earner is receiving approximately seventy per cent of the total income of the country, it becomes obvious that the wage earner is the individual who must become thrifty in order that the country may progress. With our extravagant tendencies at present, the country is not saving a proper proportion of its income. Therefore the problem of increasing actual capital and reduction of inflation seems to be the foremost of our problems, and the increase will only come when the individuals who receive seventy per cent of the nation's total income spend wisely and save. The situation will also begin to improve when business men take it upon themselves as individuals or groups to see that their communities and trades enter more seriously into production and that the practice of good, old-fashioned thrift comes again into general use. Profits are bound to come with prosperity, if the country can be induced to work and save.

The address of Roy F. Wilcox, of Montebello, Cal., on "Growing Ornamentals Formerly Imported," delivered November 12, at the tenth annual convention of the California Association of Nurserymen, at Fresno, at which he was elected president for the ensuing year.

Opportunities in Home-Building.

It is not the short-sighted but the far-sighted merchant and banker who are starting the movement of decline. We had best admit this and be thankful that because there is much building to be done, the liquidation is to be gradual and not panicky. The present tendency in lumber is for prices to go down, but if the building demand continues, many prices may yet advance. The nursery trade will likely follow the home-building development, which will no doubt mean a new awakening and a great opportunity if properly considered and handled by the trade.

However, with this prospective trade development and a possible general business decline, we must carefully guard our interests and be alert at all times. Remember the elementary laws of business and avoid small wastes, closely guard your costs of production and carefully plan your market. The "take it or leave it" attitude will no longer do as a sales policy.

How many have a cost of production system? I dare say extremely few. How many of us simply work and do not use our pencil enough, and then wonder why our profits are sometimes small! Accurate costs are the best guides in times of narrow profits, but it seems almost impossible to get accurate costs in our trade. This would seem a worthy subject for investigation, for the benefit of all.

American-Grown Stock.

Truthfully, I am unable to understand the methods and plans of many nurserymen. Many buy most of their stock from nurseries other than American nurseries, and many have exceedingly poor credit principles. Many of the places are crammed full of junk and unsalable stock, which has likely been in the same place for years. Why not sell this stock for at least some small amount and get something new growing in its place, or otherwise dump it?

Possibly you wonder what bearing all of these statements have on the subject, "Can we grow ornamentals formerly imported." They are indeed linked with every phase of it and the problem really before us is, "Is California capable of producing the classes of ornamentals formerly imported and are the men of this state going to grasp the great opportunity presented as a result of the embargo?"

Some of our eastern friends hate to concede that stock formerly imported can be satisfactorily grown in this country and particularly in California. Most certainly this class of stock can be grown here, and our variations of climate and growing conditions open great prospects for the men of our trade. California is the most logical place in the country. Specialize on one or two items, prepare for the eastern demands and take advantage of the most wonderful opportunity and conditions. Few of you realize the great possibilities and wants of the eastern florists and growers. They are anxious for good, salable plants.

Palms in California.

Of these importations, California can grow almost any of them. My business at Montebello is devoted mostly to the growing of several hundred thousand kentias, boxwood, heather for cut flowers and a few other ornamentals for local or eastern trade. Shipments are made in carload lots as far east as New York and throughout the central west and south.

Bassett & Washburn, at Sierra Madre, specialize entirely on the growing of kentia palms, and have a fine modern place. At their place and our place there are about 800,000 growing now. Constant building is being done to plan for a complete rotation and prepare for a large industry. This means a large investment and also waiting about six years before first returns are received.

These palms are grown from imported seed, which takes from six months to one year to germinate. They are grown a year in the greenhouse after germination. Then they are planted in the ground in a double-shaded lath house. After lifting, the palms are grown in pots one year before shipping. Every conceivable condition is carefully watched and studied for improvement. The careful establishing of every plant before shipping is extremely important for you and for me. The minimum size sold for shipment now is usually thirty-six inches high. The smaller palms can be grown in the east just as cheaply as here.

Quality Essential.

One eastern palm grower openly advertised in an eastern trade paper a few months ago regarding palms and said, "None of those flimsy-rooted California palms." To me this seems like small town talk and advertising of poor principle, but nevertheless such condition of stock has been true in the past among the trade, but I am proud to say this will not be the condition of plants from my place and a few other reputable growers I know.

Some growers have been too eager to sell their stock and well knew that the plants were not sufficiently established to give good satisfaction. Remember that kind of service is not upbuilding the California trade and that the eastern florists and growers well know good stock and cannot be easily fooled. This hurts your future business standing as well as mine, for the eastern trade speaks in general terms and says that California stock is flimsy-rooted or inferior to the stock formerly received from Belgium, France, England or other countries. We can prove that the best quality can be grown here in California, although every man must study and learn his own conditions. To me it seems most important that every firm be especially careful as to the class of stock shipped east and the method of handling it. If California is to become the home of stock formerly imported, we have a big obligation and duty to perform.

Experiments in Azaleas.

There are many different ornamental plants already successfully grown in a specialized way. In addition to the kentia palms previously mentioned, the Cottage Gardens Nurseries are likely pioneers in the commercial growing of azaleas, araucarias, tuberous-rooted begonias and other such stock formerly imported from Belgium.

At first azaleas were tried outdoors and in lath houses at Eureka, but the winters were too severe and damaged the foliage. Then, too, the late frosts damaged the young growth in the spring. Now this stock is wintered in greenhouses and planted out for summer growth, which is the Belgian method.

A few of the plants of the experimental stage were shipped east, which accounts for the eastern idea that azaleas cannot be grown successfully in California. The production now is as good as the imported stock, but I understand that the sale has been restricted entirely to the Pacific coast, as the demand at present is far greater than the supply. There is absolutely no question whatever about the successful propagation of rhododendrons of the finest type. There are millions growing in the northern part of the state. Boxwood, of course, is one of California's staples and is grown in large quantities, particularly along the coast.

Roses and Ericas.

Rose bushes for pot forcing are especially in demand. Thousands are shipped every year and still there is a shortage. The purpose of this stock is for the florist to get it nicely in bloom for Easter, which is long before outdoor shrubbery in the east starts its spring growth. However, there is one important fact to remember; namely, that if you expect to satisfy the eastern florist, the roses must be budded low and the plants bushy.

Ericas of many different varieties are grown about San Francisco, Eureka and Los Angeles in large quantities. Some of this stock is raised for eastern pot plants. Most of our stock at Montebello is grown for cut flowers. Again I want to emphasize the great necessity of properly establishing plants before shipping. Some growers have the idea that the stock will stand rough treatment, but bad results will certainly follow this attitude.

Ericas are of great value to the florists' trade in the east as well as the nursery trade here. A number of growers are shipping them to eastern florists for greenhouse forcing. There is a great demand for substantial and new blooming pot plants.

Other Items.

When Quarantine 37 was put into effect many men declared that orchids would soon be a thing of the past in this country, but these, too, are quite successfully and scientifically being raised by San Francisco and other growers throughout the country.

Bulbs have been grown in this country quite extensively during the last few years. The Santa Cruz district produces millions of freesia bulbs, and many other varieties are grown in the north. Michigan is making good progress in producing bulbs formerly imported.

The flower and vegetable seed business also finds a home in California. The drier climate of the southern part of the state is especially favorable for seed development and harvesting. These seeds are sent all over the world. This industry is really not given due praise and recognition as to its magnitude and possibilities.

There are dozens of important varieties of plants that are worthy of special mention, but the main facts before us are: First, that Quarantine 37 prohibits the importation of all nursery stock and florists' products and in all probability will remain in full force for many years to come, and second, that the state of California is especially suited to grow every article formerly imported.

Before the war, every trade accepted the idea that certain articles had to come from Germany, Belgium, Holland, France, England and Japan, but later, when we were forced to use our own science and resources, you all know the result. America was capable of being self-supporting and made many wonderful advances. A similar condition is produced by the present plant embargo, and why should not the florists and nurserymen of this country establish and encourage home industry?

Portland, Me.—James B. Lord has been obliged to close his greenhouses on account of illness.

MY! HOW HE'S GROWN!

PINK PART HAS A BIRTHDAY.

Three Years Old This Week.

This week the Pink Part of The Review celebrates its third birthday. The retailers' department appeared for the first time on rosy-tinted paper December 20, 1917. At that time it was sixteen pages in size and included 310 florists. This week it fills forty pages and contains the advertisements of 689 florists. That represents an increase in size of 150 per cent and an increase in the number of retailers represented of 122 per cent. Considerably more than twice as many florists now present their facilities for filling telegraph orders to the trade through these pages as did three years ago. That growth is continuous is indicated by the fact that there are fourteen new florists represented this week.

In the Beginning.

Of course, the telegraph delivery department was an important feature of The Review before it appeared on rose-colored paper. Though the Pink Part is 3 years old, the retailers' department was started many years ago. It was inaugurated in The Review of December 25, 1902, long before the organization of the F. T. D. was even conceived. That beginning eighteen years ago was small. Six florists were represented. Three of them are still in the Pink Part, W. J. Smyth, Chicago; John Breitmeyer's Sons, Detroit, and the William Scott Co., Buffalo. The other three are no longer in business. The second week the number had doubled and at the end of the year there were thirty florists in the department. Since then the growth has been steady and continuous.

Expectations Fulfilled.

Sturdy as was the development before, it has been far more rapid since the adoption of rose-colored paper for this department. The expectations in making the change were expressed in the first appearance of the Pink Part as follows:

It is perfectly plain that the rose-colored section will be so easy to consult that it will be the guide every florist will use in selecting the retailer to whom he will send his order—no matter how many other lists a man may have among the papers on his desk, he will reach for the one that is the first to catch his eye—the one he knows always is there, at his hand—the one that he knows is revised weekly—every florist with an order to go out will consult the rose-colored section.

How fully those expectations have been fulfilled are shown not only by the growth of this department, but also by the receipt of such letters as the following from those who make use of the Pink Part:

Do the advertisements in the Telegraph Delivery Department of The Review pay and are they read? We say they do and they are! And we hope to see the time when that department will be a complete directory of retail florists.—Reliance Seed Co., Ironton, O., December 4, 1920.

CLUB ELECTIONS

CHICAGO FLORISTS' CLUB.

Holds Novelty Night.

Nine exhibitors contributed to the display of novelties with which the hall was decorated at the monthly meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club at the Hotel Randolph, Thursday evening, December 9. The exhibits were arranged about the large room in high vases and table glasses. Some of the exhibits were of great merit and several of the best known of the season's novelties were on view.

Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., displayed three new carnations: Maine Sunshine, Strout's new yellow that has been so much praised at various exhibitions where it was shown; Edna, Nie Zweifel's red, and Harvester, a pure white flower of pleasing form. This firm also showed a new large mum of a deep pink shade, Thanksgiving Pink. Thanksgiving Pink scored 91; Harvester, 93; Edna, 85, and Maine Sunshine, 87. The exhibits were awarded honorable mention.

Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., had on exhibition chrysanthemums and pompons. A large vase of December Beauty, a big white bloom, and another of Christmas Gold, a good yellow, were quite effective. A pleasing exhibit was a vase of Sunshine, an anemone-centered pompon about three or four inches across and of good shape. The color was golden yellow. Two button-like pompons, tiny blooms, completed this firm's display. They were Billie Burke, a bronze, Japanese incurved, which scored 96 and 94 last month at Cincinnati and Chicago, respectively, and Vivian Martin, a blush-white anemone variety, which scored 85 and 93 at Cincinnati and Chicago last month. December Beauty was awarded 90 points by the judges and all the blooms were recommended for honorable mention.

The exhibits of Hans Jepsen, Maywood, Ill., included a new single chrysanthemum, Anna Bell, a sport of Mrs. Godfrey. This sport is a deeper pink than the parent, a vase of which was also exhibited. A single pompon, Mrs. Mazey, and a large vase of excellent stevia completed this firm's contributions. They were awarded honorable mention.

American Legion was shown by Pochlmann Bros. Co. This is a cerise pink cross between Milady and Hadley and Rosalind Orr English, raised by Edward Towill, Roslyn, Pa. There was a vase of a baby rose, unnamed as yet. It is a hybrid tea much resembling Ward and for the present is called Phantom. American Legion was awarded 88 points and honorable mention.

George J. Ball, Glen Ellyn, Ill., showed his giant calendulas and a new pompon chrysanthemum, a sport of Mrs. Wilcox. The exhibit was awarded honorable mention.

An undisminated rose seedling, Victor, was shown by Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst, Ill., and was awarded honorable mention. This variety is a hybrid tea and was originally from the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind. Wendland & Keimel Co. also exhibited a single specimen of a new sport of Ophelia.

William Sauerland, Des Plaines, Ill., displayed a new pompon, Bronze Beauty.

A new carnation, Illinois, was sent in by Sykora & Kalina, Batavia, Ill. This bloom was of a good red color and was awarded 77 points.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, had a table with five varieties of gladiolus bulbs displayed. The varieties were Mrs. Frank Pendleton, Chicago White, Schwaben, Mrs. Francis King and Panama. The exhibit was awarded honorable mention.

Peter Pearson, J. G. Schumann and Albert Erickson were the judges.

Election of Officers.

The election of officers was held at this meeting, but since the nominations last month were unanimous, there was practically no further voting needed. The officers were elected as follows:

President, Joseph Kohout; vice-president, A. T. Pyfer; treasurer, A. H. Schneider; secretary, F. Lautenschlager, and trustee, August F. Pochlmann.

President-elect Joseph Kohout was called upon for a speech and pledged his best efforts as presiding officer for the coming year. The remaining newly elected officers will respond with addresses at the January meeting, when the installation of officers is held.

The club, in response to a communication received from Secretary John Young, of the S. A. F., recommended the following members for state vice-president of northern Illinois: Paul E. Weiss, Joseph E. Pollworth and James Morton.

By unanimous motion it was decided that the Chicago Florists' Club request representation on the board of directors of the S. A. F., in accordance with the by-laws of that society.

Election of Members.

Sixteen new members were elected, as follows: Albert Schmidt, Melrose Park, Fred Lautenschlager.

Ill.; Wm. A. Hansen, 169 North Wabash avenue; Herbert Hansen, 30 East Randolph street; Charles W. Erne, 30 East Randolph street; Walter Stoklos, 30 East Randolph street; Jack Byers, 30 East Randolph street; Maurice Grossberg, 30 East Randolph street; John Cook, Morgan Park; Arthur B. Dietsch, 2640 Sheffield avenue; James Sykora, Batavia, Ill.; F. W. Kuhlmann, Maywood, Ill.; V. A. Kohout, 3213 West Twenty-second street; C. E. Shreve, 3260 West Thirty-first street; Leonard Engels, 1249 Marianna avenue; John McNeely, 174 North Wabash avenue; Earl Poehlmann, Morton Grove.

American Carnation Society.

A. F. J. Baur, of Indianapolis, secretary of the American Carnation Society, spoke on behalf of the coming convention and exhibition, January 25 and 26, at Washington, D. C. Secretary Baur expressed a desire to see Chicago carnation growers take a greater interest in the national organization and called upon local growers to support the carnation society. He pointed out that the New England growers are doing wonderful work to promote the carnation. There will be many new varieties shown at the coming convention, he said.

Paul Klingsporn, C. C. Pollworth and A. T. Pyfer spoke in behalf of the western grower of carnations and pledged support at the coming exhibition.

Michael Barker, chairman of the transportation committee, submitted a report covering transportation in connection with the carnation convention and it was decided that the Chicago Florists' Club and friends select the Pennsylvania railroad for the trip to Washington. It was decided to use the fast Pennsylvania train leaving Chicago 10:30 a. m. and arriving at Washington 9:28 a. m. the following morning. This is a regular fare train, on which rates are as follows: Railroad fare $30.97; sleeping car, lower berth $8.91, upper $7.13, compartment $25.11, drawing room $32.40. The transportation committee will issue an announcement covering all details.

Carnation Ball.

After considerable discussion, it was unanimously decided to hold a dancing party and carnation ball about two weeks after the installation of officers, in January, 1921. This matter was placed in the hands of the committee which managed the "Say It with Flowers" dance, held recently.

President Waters called upon the members to give a hearty vote of thanks to the exhibitors, and it was unanimously decreed that this was one of the handsomest and most interesting flower shows held by the club during the present year.

Upon motion of Paul Klingsporn, it was decided that the exhibit of cut flowers be turned over to the hospital and Secretary Lautenschlager and Mr. Klingsporn were appointed a committee to deliver the flowers immediately upon the close of the meeting.

NEW YORK CLUB ELECTS.

Hendrickson Next Head.

A regular meeting of the New York Florists' Club was held in the club's rooms, in the Engineering Societies' building, Monday evening, December 13, with an attendance of over 200. President A. M. Henshaw presided.

It was election night, and balloting occupied considerable time, although, owing to declinations, competition was narrowed down to the contest for trusteeships. The election resulted as follows: President, Isaac S. Hendrickson; vice-president, Roman J. Irwin; secretary, John Young, reëlected; treasurer, Wm. C. Rickards, Jr., reëlected; trustees, to serve three years, Joseph A. Manda, Percy B. Rigby, reëlected, and Anton Schultheis.

The following were elected to membership in the club:

Chas. Forman, 35 West Eighteenth street.
John Nicholas, 501 West One Hundred and Forty-fifth street.
Patrick Morelli, 130 First avenue.
Max Myer, 341 West Fifty-first street.
Janettet Spiro, 784 Lexington avenue.
W. H. Rogers, 153 South Elliott place, Brooklyn.
Demetrios Halikias, 46 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn.

Herman Dreyer, Tenafly, N. J.

Arthur Ponlas, Yonkers.
Hyman Spitz, 1677 Pitkin avenue, Brooklyn.
Otto C. Kraft, Bergenfield, N. J.
Bruno Ehrman, Secaucus, N. J.
John H. Rodman, Brooklyn.
Jack Bracker, East Williston, N. Y.
Philip Decker, Orange, N. J.
George Sullivan, 112 West Twenty-eighth street.

William Sullivan, 112 West Twenty-eighth street.

Secretary Young, for the committee appointed to prepare memorial resolutions on the death of Past-president William Plumb, read resolutions, which were, on motion, adopted.

In response to the wish of President-elect Roland, of the S. A. F., that the club nominate the next state vice-president of the society for eastern New York, it was unanimously voted that Max Schling be the appointee.

Committees.

Clifford Lowther was appointed chairman of a transportation committee, with power to appoint associates, to make travel arrangements for all intending to attend the convention of the American Carnation Society, at Washington, D. C., January 26 and 27. During the convention period it is understood that there will be a meeting of the American Flower Growers' Association, and it is possible that the annual meeting of the executive board of the S. A. F. will also be held at that time.

Peter Gerlaird, chairman of the house and entertainment committee, announced that the night of the regular meeting, January 10, would be ladies' night.

C. H. Totty, for the flower show committee, reported progress. There had been a meeting of the committee that afternoon, he said, at which the cut flower schedule, prepared that morning by the subcommittee on schedule, had been adopted and ordered to be printed.

A resolution was passed instructing the secretary to send the necessary qualification to the S. A. F. to make the incoming president the club's representative on the society's executive board during 1921.

Allied Florists Make Progress.

Business completed, the meeting was turned over to the Allied Florists' Association, which body included most of the club's members. The chairmen of the different sections of the associations presented reports, all showing progress. It was evident, however, that difficulty was being experienced in getting the retailers into line, mainly because no plan of assessment had been adopted. Henry Hession, representing the Associated Retail Florists, favored a continuance of the old plan of voluntary subscription, amounts to be determined by those making subscriptions. J. T. Caparell, representing the Greek-American Florists' Association, favored the assessment plan of a certain percentage of retail purchases from wholesalers. No definite plan was decided upon.

Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., spoke at some length upon the subject of publicity. He expressed himself as in favor of the growers' underwriting the campaign with the assistance of the other branches of the trade. W. J. Palmer, of Buffalo, N. Y., told of what the Buffalo florists had done in the way of local organization, and Robert Kift, Philadelphia, explained the assessment plan which had been adopted in Philadelphia. Adolph Poehlmann, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, was present and took much interest in the proceedings.

The Exhibition.

A very creditable exhibition was staged and passed upon by the committee on awards.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., staged a vase of Chrysanthemum December Beauty, which scored 90 points and was given a preliminary certificate.

Strout's, Inc., Biddeford, Me., staged a vase of Carnation Maine Sunshine, which was awarded 86 points and a preliminary certificate; a vase of Carnation White Delight, scoring 90 points and gaining a preliminary certificate; a vase of Carnation Improved Ward, scoring 87 points and gaining a preliminary certificate; a vase of Carnation Donald, scoring 85 points and winning a preliminary certificate, and vases of Carnations Crystal White and Rosalind, awarded votes of thanks.

Marius Matheron, Baldwin, N. Y., staged vases of Carnations Crystal White and Hope Henshaw, which were awarded votes of thanks.

Edward Towill, Roslyn, Pa., staged a vase of the new rose, American Legion, which scored 83 points. He also showed a vase of a new seedling rose, for which he was given a vote of thanks.

White Bros., Medina, N. Y., received a vote of thanks for a vase of a new rose, said to be a white sport of Sunburst. The flowers arrived in damaged condition; therefore the committee could not score it.

Geo. Schlegel, Brooklyn, N. Y., S. G. Milosy, grower, staged specimens of Cypripedium No. 28, which was given a certificate of merit, subject to naming.

Charles Thayer, Greenfield, Mass., was awarded a vote of thanks for the new carnation, Greenfield. J. H. P.

AMONG DENVER'S LEADERS.

Eight years ago, June 3, 1912, S. R. Lundy and Ben Boldt opened the Boldt-Lundy Flower Shop at 614 Sixteenth street, Denver, Colo. As the Boldt-Lundy House of Flowers, this establishment is today one of the foremost in Denver. The accompanying illustration shows the interior of the retail store, which end of the business is under the capable management of S. R. Lundy. Mr. Lundy was at one time employed by the Park Floral Co., Denver, and for some years before he entered into partnership with Ben Boldt had been traveling for the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, and was well known in this connection. He has worked the business up from almost nothing and it is improving every day. At busy times Mrs. Lundy helps her husband in the store and all the members of the staff are busy people.

Bernard Boldt, better known as Ben Boldt, has been as successful in the greenhouse as Mr. Lundy has in the store. He is considered one of Denver's best growers and has made a specialty of fine plants. He was born in Prussia in 1868, where he received his early training, coming to America posed upon the well-to-do class of people in the way of contributions that flowers became a secondary consideration and that those who were regular customers previous to that time patronized flowers shops much less frequently. The trade during the war was more or less confined to the middle class of people and those who necessarily had to have flowers.

"With the return of peace, Mr. Bertermann said, he sees that many old customers have returned and the sale of in 1893. He was first employed with J. H. Rebstock, of Buffalo, N. Y. In June, 1900, he went to Denver and was employed as foreman by the Park Floral Co., with whom he remained until 1905, when he took charge of the greenhouses of the Daniels & Fisher Stores Co. About 1906 he bought a greenhouse range and was in business for himself, doing a wholesale, retail and cut flower trade, until 1912. The present partnership works out in great shape. Mr. Boldt has all his time to devote to growing, and Mr. Lundy has a clear field for developing retail trade.

BERTERMANN A BOOSTER.

Optimistic on Business.

Two-thirds of a column in an Indianapolis newspaper one day last week was devoted to an interview of Irwin Bertermann, of Bertermann Bros. Co., on the holiday business in flowers. His reasons for expressing himself optimistically should give less positive believers a basis for more encouraging views. The article read in part:

"The holiday trade in all kinds of flowers promises to be one of the best local florists have ever had, although on account of the increasing popularity and growing demand for flowers, especially during the winter season, it is difficult, other than regarding holly and wreaths, to determine just what is for Christmas and what is not.

"According to Irwin Bertermann, the business of the florists is just getting back to normal. He said that during the war such heavy burdens were imposed upon the well-to-do class of people in the way of contributions that flowers became a secondary consideration and that those who were regular customers previous to that time patronized flowers shops much less frequently. The trade during the war was more or less confined to the middle class of people and those who necessarily had to have flowers.

"Concerning the price and conditions governing the flower trade, Mr. Bertermann said that many persons doubtless presume that florists desire making as few sales as possible and depend on a large margin of profit. The proposition is just exactly the opposite, he said. While it is true that, like dealers in all other lines of business, they take care of the big sales, yet progressive florists make a specialty of catering to small sales, preferring a large volume of business and a small margin of profit.

"As to Christmas trade this year, Mr. Bertermann said there is no change over other years. Industrial conditions, he said, do not have the same effect on the florists' line of business as it does on many other lines. People will have flowers at Christmas time because flowers enter into the very spirit of the occasion.

"Our people could not well observe this memorable and joyous event, breathing 'Peach on earth, good will to men,' without having flowers to exemplify its purity and consecrate its purpose," Mr. Bertermann said."

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

SHIPPING TO TEXAS.

About the time of receiving several orders from Texas, we received notice from the department of agriculture of Texas that we had to have our houses inspected by our state department and procure a permit from the state of Texas before shipping. Thereupon we at once corresponded with the department of our state and were informed that there was no law in effect requiring such examination. We wrote the Texas authorities to that effect, stating that we would, however, inspect our houses when outside work could not be followed any more in the fall. The Texas authorities did not reply at all, though we wrote them again December 4. We obtained copies of laws covering this subject and allowing us to forward the orders on file pending inspection by our state department and mailed them to the Texas authorities. We also have written some of the parties informing them of the facts in the case and have returned checks to all firms ordering plants—five in all.

We have written three letters to the Texas department of agriculture. We do not like to lose our Texas trade, as we make a considerable number of shipments to that state. We regret greatly that these conditions exist.

Several years ago some Texas orders were returned by reason of these laws. At that time we asked the inspector who was inspecting our imported azaleas what to do and we were informed that we could make the shipment, as there was no such law. The Texas customer wrote us to forward his order, stating that the law was not enforced, and thereupon we again made shipment.

KOHOUT COALITION CANDIDATE.

The unanimous nomination and election of Joseph Kohout as president of the Chicago Florists' Club was the selection of a candidate who stands for progress along the lines of least resistance. Joseph Kohout can truly be said to be the harmony candidate upon whom the varied membership and the several auxiliary organizations agreed. His selection places the Chicago Florists' Club as the final arbitrator of the differences that naturally exist among the various branches in the city. A step toward coalition of the separate organizations that exist in our industry has been taken.

The Chicago Florists' Club offers to him the widest scope of operation and gives to the trade the kind of administration that produces team-work.

The success of the growers' organization is pronounced to have been due to the fact that the growers understand Mr. Kohout, know him to do his duty and to govern impartially.

Those growers intimate with his methods and retailers who know of his work recognize his potential ability for thought, as one from the ranks who, through hard and persistent work, has reached leadership is known to possess latent ability. He usually has little to say, but accomplishes what he sets out to do. Though quiet and unassuming, yet he possesses a genius for organization that succeeded in organizing the first exclusive commercial flower growers' association, which gave him the publicity he deserved.

As a national figure, the growers are following his efforts in all parts of the country. The Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago had first to succeed locally before a growers' organization campaign could be launched nationally.

When he assumes the reins of his new office Mr. Kohout will surround himself with strong committees in the hands of capable men who will work to serve. The opportunity is now his to offer the entire trade progressive ideas in a fast changing business. As he says, "good ideas will be put over; bad ones will be blocked."

A constructive program is under preparation for the firing of the first shot on the night of his installation.

SOUNDS LIKE OLD TIMES.

The editorial comment on postal service in The Review of December 9 brings to mind two incidents that were related to the writer within the last two weeks and which occurred under Burleson: First, Dr. Dux, of Jacksonville, Fla., stated he received a letter from Germany directed to "Dr. Dux, Florida." The other incident was related by the general manager of the Florex Gardens, of North Wales, Pa., Mr. Geiger, who stated he received a letter from Cleveland, O., directed to "Florex Gardens, North Wales, Wales." This letter went to Wales and was returned to the United States, where it was then delivered to the proper party. We must give the devil his due.

PROPAGATING L. CANDIDUM.

I should like to know how to cause the tiny bulbs to come on the separate layers of candidum lily bulbs which have been pulled loose from the bulb. I have discovered that when broken off, these sprout two, three and sometimes four little bulbs. I want to know what conditions are best suited to make this happen. I have several hundred broken pieces and want to propagate them.

S. J. R.—Tenn.

Fresh scales carefully removed from the bulbs of L. candidum and some other lilies can be planted in flats of light, sandy soil. One containing some leaf-mold is to be preferred. If you have a considerable number, use a cold-frame. Set the scales a couple of inches apart and cover one and one-half to two inches. Do not place the flats in greenhouses at all, but allow them to become frozen in winter. These scales will usually develop tiny bulbs at their base, which will grow to a flowering size, in the case of candidum, in two or three years.

FOR CARNATIONISTS

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Meets Next Month in Washington.

The premium list has been issued for the thirtieth annual convention of the American Carnation Society, to be held in Washington, D. C., January 26 and 27. Both the business sessions and the exhibition will be held at the New Willard hotel.

The first business session will be held at 8 p. m., Wednesday, January 26, when reports of officers and committees will be heard, and nominations and invitations for the next meeting place will be made. W. D. Howard, of Milford, Mass., will relate his experience in using soil continuously for more than one year. Charles P. Mueller, of Wichita, Kan., will describe his plan for increasing his cut of carnations for Mothers' day. The final business session will be held at 9 a. m. Thursday, January 27, for the discussion of essays, election of officers, selection of meeting place and other business. The banquet will be held Thursday evening.

Vote for final adoption will be taken on the resolution introduced at the meeting held in Chicago last year, providing that section 4 of the by-laws be changed to read as follows: "The initiation fee shall be $1 and the annual dues shall be such an amount as shall be fixed from time to time by the annual meeting of the society," the second paragraph of section 4 remaining as it now is. At present the entrance fee is $1 and dues are $2 per year.

The Exhibition.

Exhibits for competition are to be in position by 1 p. m. January 26, when judging will begin. New varieties, however, may be staged at any time for certificates of merit. Upon the completion of the judges' work the doors will be opened to members. At 8 p. m. the public will be admitted.

Section A of the schedule includes eleven classes, carrying premiums of $15 and $10, for 100 blooms of one variety in each, open to all varieties, seedlings and standard sorts. Section B includes twenty-two classes, carrying premiums of $7 and $4, for fifty blooms in each, of named varieties in most instances. Section C contains four classes, in which premiums of $10 have been offered by disseminators for fifty blooms of each one's variety. In addition there will be competition for the A. C. S. and S. A. F. medals and for the Dorner Memorial medal, for which the following varieties are eligible: Edna, shown by Nic Zweifel; No. 167 (12) and No. 119 (12), by F. Dorner & Sons Co.; Donald, by Strout's, Inc., and No. 26, 16 C, by Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association.

A special feature is the Texas prize of $50 for 100 blooms which display the best keeping quality after having been shipped not less than 500 miles.

Further information concerning the premium list may be obtained from Secretary A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind. The other officers are: President, Chas. A. Johnson, Rockford, Ill.; vice-president, D. G. Grillbortzer, Washington, D. C., and treasurer, F. E. Dorner, Lafayette, Ind.

S. J. Goddard, Joseph H. Hill, Chas. W. Johnson, David S. Ward, E. Saunders and John H. Dunlop will act as judges.

Inasmuch as the annual meeting of the National Flower Growers' Association and the directors' meeting of the S. A. F. take place in Washington at the same time, a large gathering is expected at the national capital the last week in January. It is anticipated that exhibits will be more extensive than has been the case in the last two years.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower market continues dull, in spite of a rather scant supply. If the demand were anything near normal, buyers would face a scarcity. The approach of the holidays is occasioning many retailers anxiety as to the prices they will have to pay for Christmas supplies, an anxiety which no one seems able to relieve. The plantmen have all accomplished a good holiday business, and the surplus is expected to be exceedingly light. A few cut poinsettias seen in the market serve to remind the trade that Christmas is at hand and that about ends their present usefulness, as they do not attract a demand for them. Berried twigs and green goods are prominent in the offerings of the supply dealers, but no pronounced demand for them has as yet set in. There appears to be a waiting policy generally observed, which, no doubt, means a rush to come.

Chrysanthemums in small quantities continue to arrive, but their movement is not active, except with the spray varieties, which appear to meet a fair demand. Large quantities of Paper White narcissi are arriving, and much left-over stock from day to day can only be moved through price concessions; the price range now is three bunches down to six for $1, with a few extra choice lots bringing 40 cents per bunch. The Soleil d'Or variety hangs fire at 50 cents per bunch. Stevia also is available in quantity, and some of the arrivals show unusually fine quality; from 35 cents per bunch down to five bunches for $1 is the price range.

The supply of roses is not particularly heavy, although there is a sufficiency for the demand, and outside of the long-stemmed varieties clearances are satisfactory. American Beauty is in somewhat limited supply, with prices unchanged. Hybrid teas are showing midwinter quality already, particularly as concerns the varieties Premier and Columbia; the many days of dark weather have had little effect on the color of the former.

Carnations are abundant, but the quality expected at this season is not evident. Dark weather has had an

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

ROSA A. PHILLIPS.

TWO years ago she was clerking in a retail flower store and today she boasts the largest and most attractive retail flower store in Wyoming as sole proprietor. That is Miss Phillips' record. After clerking for two years in various retail stores, she opened a small store of her own a year and a half ago in Rawlins, Wyo. Twice in one year the establishment had to be enlarged, owing to increase of business, and recently she found it necessary to occupy an entire building. The Phillips Floral Shop is the trade name of the business. Included in the stock carried are wicker furniture, birds, goldfish and novelties. Rosa A. Phillips is a native of the south and, previous to entering the florists' business, was employed with the Hearst news service, having the distinction of being the only woman newspaper telegrapher west of the Mississippi river. In private life she is Mrs. Joseph K. Brown. The chrysanthemums are some from Mrs. Darbee, San Francisco.

The supply of cattleyas is somewhat better, but the demand appears to cover it nicely. Cyripediums are in better supply, but move slowly. The supply of gardenias is increasing.

There is a moderate supply of sweet peas; the quality is rather inferior and the range of prices is unchanged. The Christmas crop of peas is expected to be small, the dark weather cutting down the crop considerably.

Easter lilies continue on the scarce side and prices are maintained. The supply of valley is short, but nobody mourns the shortage and prices are unchanged.

Miscellaneous flowers are plentiful, the supply made up of calendulas, delphiniums, pansies, snapdragons, mignonette, myosotis, bouvardia, callas and daisies. Violets are not in seasonable supply.

Various Notes.

The sub-committee on schedule of the flower show committee had a lengthy session Monday morning, December 13. The cut flower schedule for the spring show was completed and is on a par with the schedules of former years.

Frank H. Traendly, of Traendly & Schenck, has returned after a tour among the growers of the middle west and Canada, during which he took time to attend the meeting of the national flower show committee at Cleveland, December 8.

W. C. Rickards, Jr., treasurer of the New York Florists' Club, returned December 11 from a two weeks' trip in the east.

Judging from the window display at Fleischman's, at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street, fruits in combination with flower arrangements suggest possibilities for florists.

It is understood that the American

Dahlia Society is arranging to hold a second annual show at the Hotel Pennsylvania next year, with an increased amount of space at its disposal.

J. H. P.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE MEETING.

A meeting of the national publicity committee was held in the Hollenden hotel, Cleveland, O., Thursday, December 9, at 10 a. m. There were present: Henry Penn, Boston, chairman; George Asmus, Chicago; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; Major P. F. O'Keefe, Boston, Mass.; Vice-president F. C. W. Brown, Cleveland, O.; President-elect Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; Secretary John Young, New York; Finance Committee Chairman Herman P. Knoble, Cleveland, O., and H. V. Swenson, Chicago. Visitors were: George Bate and Mrs. E. G. Wilson, Cleveland; Frank H. Traendly and Eugene Dailedouze, New York, and Patrick Welch, Boston.

The minutes of the previous meeting, held in Indianapolis October 14, were read, and, with a correction in keeping with a recommendation of Mr. Asmus, approved.

The first business was consideration of the past-due account of the E. F. Brinkman Co. for slogan billboard signs. The discussion resulted in arrangements being made for the payment of the account in full before the end of the year, final details being left in the hands of Mr. Asmus.

A report presented by the Florists' Publicity Service Bureau showed that 220 billboard signs had been sold since October 1.

Charles H. Fox, Philadelphia, appeared before the meeting with a full report on the insurance endowment plan presented at the last meeting of the committee, which plan had received the endorsement of the F. T. D. at its last meeting. The report showed that Mr. Fox had devoted considerable time to the plan, and in offering it he expressed himself as ready to answer all questions concerning it. As already published, the idea embodied in the plan was the creation of a fund for national publicity campaign purposes. The report was fully discussed, and during the discussion Mr. Swenson gave information as to the views of the plan his traveling men had obtained from the trade visited. Mr. Fox was given a hearty vote of thanks for his report, and, upon motion, the plan was referred to the executive board for action at its next meeting. Mr. Fox promised to submit the report formally to the society, so as to make it of record.

Major O'Keefe made a stirring address covering the present status of the campaign. He expressed his confidence in the ability of the allied trade associations in the different cities to solve, without any doubt, the problem of raising funds for the campaign. While the plan of securing funds until then had proved successful, a bigger success assuredly would result when a more equitable basis of contribution was decided upon.

Mr. Ammann followed the major with a talk full of enthusiasm as to the progress already made throughout the country in the direction of the formation of allied associations such as referred to, and gave it as his opinion that it would only be a short time before all bodies were in working order.

Mr. Swenson presented a report showing the profits derived from sales of dealers' helps made by his bureau from September 1 to December 1.

Mr. Pierson discussed the objects of the American Flower Growers' Association, and expressed it as his opinion that the national publicity campaign should be underwritten by the growers and that the twenty-five per cent of dues the allied associations intended to pay into the campaign fund should go to the A. F. G. A. and by them be paid into the campaign fund. That there might be no misunderstanding as to this recommendation of Mr. Pierson, he promised to put the same in writing for the records.

It was decided to present some definite plans for action before the next meeting of the executive board, so that the national advertising could be continued with vigor and on a more satisfactory basis than heretofore.

Messrs. Traendly and Dailedouze, who left hurriedly to catch their trains, expressed their hearty accord with the suggestion that the campaign be in future conducted by the growers, and that their funds to be disposed of be applied as Mr. Pierson had suggested. The meeting continued until late, as it was the object of the gathering to clean up all matters pending and to decide upon a plan of action to be presented to the executive board next January.

The secretary was given further instructions as to the collection of amounts still due from delinquent subscribers.

John Young, Sec'y.

Time for Application.

Notice has been given the various florists' clubs and societies and kindred organizations that it is now time to consider requirements for completion of applications for representation on the executive board of the society. In order that there should be no misunderstanding as to requirements, the following by-law applying to applications is presented:

(c) Societies or kindred organizations of professional florists, gardeners and horticulturists, national in character, whose membership includes 100 or more members of the S. A. F. in good standing shall be entitled to one representative on the board of directors. Clubs and other organizations of professional florists, formed within a state, and not national in character, shall be entitled to one representative on the board of directors, provided that any such club or organization shall include in its membership the number of S. A. F. members in good standing prescribed in the following specification: Class A, 100 S. A. F. members: Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, California. Class B, 75 S. A. F. members: Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, Missouri, Texas, Maryland, Wisconsin. Class C, 50 S. A. F. members: Minnesota, Kansas, District of Columbia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Colorado, Connecticut. Class D, 25 S. A. F. members: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Delaware, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, Washington, Oregon. Any such representative shall be the president of the organization represented and must be a member of this society. Any elective officer or appointed director shall not be eligible as a representative of any such organization. When the president of an organization is already a director, the vice-president shall be eligible for the office. Any organization applying for representation shall submit to the secretary of this society a certified copy of the resolutions adopted by their organization expressing its desire for such representation on the board of directors, together with a complete list of its membership. It shall be the secretary's duty to confirm same and submit it to the society's president for final confirmation. Announcement of the acceptance of such representative as a member of the board of directors shall be made by the president. The expenses of any such representative in connection with his attendance at any meeting of the board of directors shall be borne by the organization represented. Should the president of such organization be or become unable to serve as its representative, through sickness, or for any other reason which is acceptable to the president of the society, then the vice-president shall act in his place and stead during the period of such inability. The chairmen of the publicity committee, the publicity finance committee and the national flower show committee, respectively, shall act and serve as directors for and during their terms of office as the same appear upon the records of the society, but if any such chairman shall be already a director, then the committee of which he is a chairman shall have no further or separate representation upon the board.

John Young, Sec'y.

BOSTON.

The Market.

A long spell of dark, dank and dismal weather has not been conducive to good business during the week just closed. Retail demand has been fair. There have been some decorations, in addition to wedding and funeral orders, and an encouraging number of advance orders are coming in for Christmas. There is always a lull in trade before the great winter holiday and, while few anticipate any record-breaking business, all are optimistic enough to look for one which will be cheering and encouraging.

Roses are arriving in fair numbers and sell well at from $8 per hundred upward for hybrid teas. American Beauties, all of which are grown outside New England, have reached the dollar mark and are meeting with an improved demand. The supply of carnations is comparatively small. Most of the growers are holding their crop for the holidays. Prices average somewhat higher than a week ago. Chrysanthemums continue to come in and some are of fair quality. Some will hold out until Christmas.

Sweet peas of good quality are less abundant. The dark weather has caused a heavy drop of buds, and values on good Spencers are higher. Small lots of yellow marguerites, wallflowers, calendulas and bouvardia come in. The last-named is now quite short-stemmed. Cut poinsettias have already appeared. The bracts developed unusually early this season. Violets continue scarce and pansies are less abundant. Few other flowers are seen, outside of stevia and Paper Whites, both of which are abundant.

Cattleyas are scarce, but cypridiums are in good supply. Swainsona largely displaces valley in bouquet work. Some nice gardenias are arriving and sell at $4 to $6 per dozen. There is an abundant supply of pot plants and these are being pushed at all the stores, while cut flowers are high-priced.

Boston Florists' Association.

The monthly meeting of the Boston

Florists' Association was held at the City Club December 7, when there was a good attendance. In the absence of Henry Penn, who was at Cleveland, William H. Elliott presided. An excellent dinner was served, as usual, following which a communication was read from the New England Gladiolus Society asking support for its next exhibition in Horticultural hall, Boston, and one from John Young, who mentioned the possibilities of affiliation with the S. A. F. As the association falls considerably below the necessary 100 members, no action was taken on the latter.

The nominating committee, consisting of F. E. Palmer, A. S. Parker and H. A. Ryan, brought in a list of nominees for 1921. Some of the nominees withdrew their names and finally officers were elected as follows: President, B. F. Letson; vice-president, E. F. Gibbs; treasurer, F. E. Palmer; recording secretary, W. J. Thurston; financial secretary, J. Frank Edgar; executive committee for three years, Henry Penn, Elijah S. Gorney.

The speaker of the evening was William H. Elliott, who lectured at length on his recent nine months' tour of the United States, particularly in California. After incorporating his business he decided to take a long trip and left Boston early in March, going first to Detroit, where, piloted by Philip Breitmeyer, he visited leading growers and inspected the Ford works, especially the farm machinery section. His next stopping place was Chicago, where the great flower markets and growers were visited. Then he saw St. Paul and its twin sister Minneapolis. Mr. Elliott visited many bankers and other prominent men here to gain their views about the Non-partisan league, later covering North Dakota and getting the views of Senator-elect Ladd, a native of Maine, Governor Fraser and numerous farmers and tradesmen.

At Spokane, Superintendent of Parks John W. Duncan, formerly of Boston, took Mr. Elliott in hand and in a 100-mile automobile trip showed him the best sights of that city, finishing with a florists' dinner at night. At Seattle, Stimson's, of Hollywood, had excellent greenhouses and fine stock. The greenhouse roses there and in Portland had more body than any others seen during his travels. It snowed all the time he was in Portland; in fact, the far western and Pacific coast weather did not come up to expectations.

He stayed in San Francisco during the Democratic convention and attended most of the sessions as a New Hampshire delegate. His Sierra Nevada mountain trip started early in July and lasted thirty days, the nights being spent under the open sky. The mountaineering caused a loss of twenty-five pounds avoirdupois, but proved wonderfully interesting. The Sequoia national park was described interestingly. Sugar pine cones eighteen to twenty-three inches long were noted. The biggest tree, the Sherman, measured thirty-six and one-half feet in diameter.

An abundance of seedlings was noted, these coming especially well in burned-over land. In Humboldt county, where the redwoods, Sequoia sempervirens, abounded, one specimen measured was 363 feet in height. Many were 300 feet or more. One was twenty-three feet in diameter. Good redwood land gave 600,000 board feet per acre and one monster was said to contain 250,000 board feet.

The various industries of the late C. W. Ward were described and the wonderful growth of azaleas and other plants in the nurseries at Eureka was emphasized. He doubted, however, the commercial value of the azaleas.

After some time spent visiting the growers, parks, etc., in and around Los Angeles, Pasadena, etc., the well known Imperial valley was passed through, stops being made at five cities. The wonderful soil, vegetation and prosperous condition of the growers were commented upon. Many Mexicans were there, and he left with a much higher opinion of Mexicans than he had formerly entertained. At El Paso he was taken to see a genuine bull fight, which he humorously described. The lecturer had numerous photographs and was given a rousing vote of thanks for his interesting talk.

J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., was a visitor and made a short address before the meeting closed.

Various Notes.

Excellent marguerites from A. E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, and John T. Gale, of Tewksbury, are coming into the market.

Patrick Welch, P. F. O'Keefe, Thomas Roland and Henry Penn arrived from Cleveland December 10, after a pleasant business session.

Cyclamens of superb quality are comlongiflorum giganteum, and considerable demand for gladioli for forcing.

The big wholesale store of Henry M. Robinson & Co. is a busy place these days. Christmas goods are in immense supply and the demand is brisk. Holly, contrary to expectations, is splendidly berried and selling well. Cut flower trade is everything that could be expected, and a bigger business than a year ago seems probable.

Wollrath & Sons, of Waltham, again have a magnificent lot of cyclamens, including many large specimens, which would be hard to duplicate. Their poinsettias, also, are remarkably fine and practically all plants carry dark green foliage clear to the pots or pans. All their other Christmas stock is of high-grade quality.

The agricultural and horticultural organizations which have met together the last few winters at Horticultural hall will hold the next union gathering in the week commencing February 7, 1921. The New England Nurserymen's Association and the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston are among the cooperating societies.

J. Karp, who operates the Dudley Flower Shop, at 2190 Washington street, Roxbury, reports business as most satisfactory and Christmas prospects as excellent.

At the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club December 21, officers for 1921 will be elected. William H. Elliott will speak on "My Trip to the High Sierras," and will have numerous stereopticon slides to illustrate his lecture.

Albert C. Burrage will make a notable orchid display at Horticultural hall December 18, the last of the year.

John T. Butterworth is cutting a fine crop of zygopetalums, Oncidium ornithorhynchum and cypripediums. Plants of Cypripedium insigne Sanderæ carry as many as thirteen flowers each.

The seed stores report a good call for lilies, including speciosum, auratum and

It is the irony of fate, after sweating over the accumulation of a big coal pile for winter, to have the precious stuff set itself afire in the shed.

UNCERTAINTY is the greatest business obstacle at present. The consensus is that underlying conditions augur improvement when confidence in the price level is restored.

No florist should attempt to do business without a printed letterhead. To send orders on plain paper at once suggests to the wholesale dealer that here is a small buyer who should pay retail prices.

BRADSTREET'S index of wholesale prices indicates a drop of one-third from the top-notch figure of a year ago, or to the level of December, 1916. But the commodities listed do not include florists' requirements.

ANONYMOUS contributions are not heeded by The Review. Readers should sign their names to correspondence to the editor, who will respect valid reasons for their omission in the publication of communications.

MATERIAL for both the editorial and the advertising columns of The Review should reach this office not later than Monday to appear in the current week's issue. Nothing is to be lost, moreover, by getting it in earlier than that.

FROM all parts of the United States comes the report that the shortage of greenhouse labor has passed, but it is manual labor only which is in surplus; experienced help still is scarce and probably the supply never can be increased except by training young men who show aptitude for the work.

It is believed by some that the present surplus on the labor market is due more to a desire of large industrial establishments to lower their labor costs than to a slackening in demand for workers. When readjustment is accomplished, all will enjoy business prosperity again on lower price and wage scales.

ALL danger of a fuel famine has passed in the widespread decrease in industrial activity. Prices are falling.

CHICAGO TO WASHINGTON.

The transportation committee of the Chicago Florists' Club has selected the Pennsylvania railroad for the trip to the convention of the American Carnation Society and the meeting of the National Flower Growers' Association, to be held at Washington, D. C., January 26 and 27. The party will leave the Union station, Canal and Adams streets, on the Manhattan Limited, Tuesday, January 25, at 10:30 a. m., and arrive in Washington the following morning at 9:28.

The fare one way, tax included, is $30.97. Pullman fares are: Lower berth, $8.91; upper, $7.13; compartment, $25.11; drawing room, $32.40.

Other Pennsylvania trains include the Broadway Limited, leaving the Union station at 12:40 p. m. and arriving in Washington at 9:28 the following morning. On this train, an extra fare of $7.78 is added to the regular ticket rate named above. The Pennsylvania Limited, leaving the Union station at 5:30 p. m., arrives at Washington at 4:30 p. m.

On the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, trains leave Chicago at 8:40 a. m. and 10:45 a. m. and arrive at Washington respectively at 7:30 a. m. and 9:00 a. m.

The fare one way via the Baltimore & Ohio, tax included, is $29.97. Sleeping car rates are the same as given above.

WHAT CONTROLS PRICES?

Growers are discussing a suggestion that meetings of large middle-western and eastern producers be held to see what can be done in the direction of maintaining prices commensurate with the cost of production, some of those interested having decided that all the signs point to an overproduction of young stock, particularly rose plants, and cut flowers in the first half of 1921.

It is true, of course, that a knowledge of what it costs to produce good stock has some influence on the determination of the seller to demand and maintain profitable prices, but cost of production never has, and probably never will, control our prices. In this trade prices are controlled almost solely by supply and demand. We had a good demonstration of that in the first half of 1920, when for a time demand so exceeded supply that prices were forced upward to the point that the public sharply curtailed its purchases, whereupon the pendulum swung the other way and supply so exceeded demand that prices fell far below cost of production and much cut stock and some plants were sold through department stores, drug stores, etc. Eventually the public learned prices had fallen and resumed buying, restoring equilibrium. It will be ever thus. We cannot regulate prices; it will be folly to try. Nor can we regulate supply; it will fluctuate with the seasons and will increase when profits rise and decrease as profits fall. But we can regulate demand by stimulating it. That is our best chance.

The Review does not see reason to believe that there will be overproduction in any line of our business in 1921. There will be seasonal gluts more or less as in the past, but production has not recently increased so fast as demand has grown and if there is some decrease in the demand in the next few months, due to general business conditions, it scarcely can do so much as to restore the balance. But if the public should decide the prices of plants and flowers are too high, it would be folly to try to defeat the working of the old law of supply and demand. Any attempt to maintain prices by artificial means could only bring disaster.

SHORTEN LIGHT TO HASTEN CROP!

To get poinsettias ready for the market by Christmas is a problem that has worried florists ever since the bright red, flower-like leaves of this beautiful plant took their place as a favorite holiday decoration, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture, although it does not state where it got its information.

"The problem has been reduced to a practical solution through the work of Dr. W. W. Garner, tobacco specialist, and H. H. Allard, plant physiologist, who discovered the possibility of advancing or retarding the growth of plants by controlling the period of light each day," says the department's weekly paper. "Where the light period is shortened the plants reach maturity much sooner than where they are given the natural length of day. In the greenhouses on the department's experimental farm at Arlington, Va., it has been found possible to bring poinsettias into full form as early as August by shortening the daily exposure to light.

"In fact, department specialists are confident that there is practically no limit to the extent to which the Garner-Allard discovery may be applied in the ordinary florists' establishments in bringing various flowers into bloom outside of the customary season. Iris in December and chrysanthemums in the spring are among the accomplishments already attained, and it is the intention of these specialists to bring together a group of flowers, all of different natural seasons, into bloom at the same time. One value of the discovery lies in the fact that it can be applied with only simple and inexpensive additions to the facilities of any greenhouse."

THESE HELP SOME.

Publishers, like other people, have their off days, but sometimes on one of these a letter comes to help a little, like this:

We could not think of running a greenhouse without The Review. Have taken it continuously since the start and note with pleasure it is now about five times the size of its first issue.—W. J. Miller, Pontiac, Ill., December 6, 1920.

And then comes this:

We are all sold out, sixty days ahead of last year, when we advertised in all the florist papers. We take particular note that your splendid paper brings us orders from territory in which we never have been able to sell by any other means. May The Review in the coming year equal the great work it has accomplished for the trade in past years; we are boasting for The Review.—Joseph H. Cunningham Greenhouses, Delaware, O., December 8, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

Erford L. Page, former president of the American Seed Trade Association, died Thursday, December 9, at his home in Greene, N. Y. Mr. Page entered the seed business in January, 1886. Then a student at Cornell University, the death of his father necessitated his management of affairs in his father's store. At the age of 21, Mr. Page was at the head of the largest general store in the country town of Greene. When 23 years of age, he married Cornelia J. Russell, daughter of William F. Russell, of the banking firm of Russell & Juliard.

About 1901 Mr. Page entered the seed business on a large scale and organized the Page Seed Co. He extended this business and made it a conspicuous success. He was elected president of the American Seed Trade Association in 1910. Mr. Page had been president of the municipal board of the town of Greene and was a trustee in the Congregational church. He was a man of executive ability, conservative and prudent in management, and during his business career was identified with the best things in business practice.

The funeral was held Sunday, December 12, at the home, on North Chenango street, Greene, N. Y., Rev. G. R. Foster, of the Congregational church, and Rev. A. A. Bresee, of the Episcopal church, officiating. Mr. Page is survived by his wife and two sons; one, Joseph R. Page, is connected with the Page Seed Co. and the other, Lyman A. Page, is attending Cornell University.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

Prospects for Christmas are none too bright. The dark weather has retarded stock to a considerable extent. Flowers are not coming into bloom as has been anticipated, sweet peas are dropping their buds and carnations are opening extremely slowly. Christmas plants, too, have been held back.

Roses are scarce, with prices ranging from $6 to $35 per hundred. Carnations are not appearing in any large quantities. The price has been from $6 to $8, but predictions are that these will rise to $8 and $10 within a few days. Christmas prices will be considerably higher.

Lilies are rare. A few local growers have some for their own use, but none are reaching the commission merchants.

Sweet peas are a little more abundant, but the price remains at $3 per hundred. A few pompon chrysanthemums still linger and sell well.

Paper Whites have been a welcome addition and move well at from $4 to $6 per hundred. Stevia is in such heavy demand that the supply is inadequate.

Association Meeting.

State Florists' Association was held at the store of the Smith & Young Co., Tuesday evening, December 7. In the absence of Anders Rasmussen and Herman Junge, Irwin Bertermann presided.

Three new members were elected at this meeting: Carl Rieman, Indianapolis; E. A. McKernan, Knightstown, and C. F. Coffey, Kokomo. Mr. Oberg, of Wabash, Ind., was proposed for membership.

Secretary O. E. Steinkamp gave a report on the contemplated floriculture course at Purdue University. A conference will be held December 18 with Mr. Simpson, of Vincennes, Ind., who is on the advisory committee on state institutions. An appropriation from the legislature will be the first requisite. After it is obtained a course will be mapped out by Professor Laurenz Green, the head of the horticultural work at Purdue University, and Otto Nehrling, of Crawfordsville, who will represent the Indiana State Florists' Association.

The next meeting will be the annual meeting and will be held Tuesday, January 11, the place to be announced later.

The following committee was appointed to assist in arranging the program for the annual meeting: Oscar Carlstedt, Tom Hepler and E. E. Temperley. The committee appointed to audit the year's books was: Mr. Warner, Edwin Morner and Otto Lawrenz.

Since there was practically no new business, that part of the meeting was soon over and most of the evening was spent socially. Refreshments were served by the hosts.

Various Notes.

While on his way home from work Otto Rieman was struck by an automobile and was seriously injured.

Herman Junge is greatly improved.

He was able to make two trips to the city last week.

Baur & Steinkamp's new white carnation, Harvester, scored 93 points at Chicago. At the Mid-west Horticultural Exposition at Council Bluffs, Ia., recently, their new chrysanthemum, Thanksgiving Pink, scored 96 points.

Glen Moore, of Rushville, called on the trade last week. Mr. Warner, of Meikel & Warner, Noblesville, Ind., was in the city recently, gathering up Christmas stock.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The market is experiencing the usual lull that precedes the storm. Continued dark weather has still further reduced the supply and the approach of Christmas has had the customary effect of taking people's thoughts from flowers and occupying their attention with activities which do not call for the use of flowers. It has been stated by some observers that half the flowers produced are used for funerals—and that would be something like the measure of the present volume of business compared to what was doing a few weeks ago. Shipping is much more active than city trade, which is brisk only now and then. It is noticed that the stores with high-class trade are holding up to recent standards much better than are the stores in the workingmen's sections of the city. The well-to-do seem to be spending more freely again, while the wage-earners are tightening up—the latter is especially noticeable in the average size of the orders for funeral work. As one retailer put it, "a year ago they didn't wait for their change; now they don't bring anything but change with them."

Place Your Orders With Amling and ---do it Now

While we shall have a large supply of Christmas flowers in nearly all lines, and especially on the longer grades of Roses, the demand is developing such large proportions we earnestly advise our customers to place all orders without delay—at least send your main order to us now and mail or wire additions as you keep on selling.

It is our long-established rule to fill advance orders in preference to late orders even if the latter offer higher prices.

However, the market cleans up in fair shape each day. There are not too many good flowers of any kind except, perhaps, Paper Whites. There are many low-grade mums, which are not so easy to sell at good prices as they were earlier in the season, partly because the shipping demand has disappeared. The principal supply is of roses, carnations not being abundant, and of miscellaneous items there are only moderate quantities.

Christmas Prospects.

This Christmas is unlike any other Christmas, in several respects.

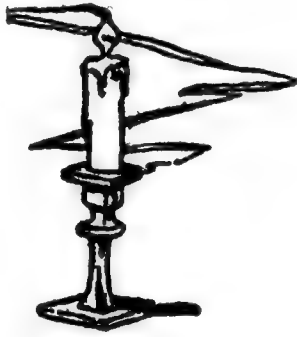

In the matter of supply, it appears there will be more roses than anything else, a larger supply of pink roses than ever before and less of the other colors. There will be few Beauties and not many red; Columbia will be the predominant variety, with Premier a poor second and Russell a bad third, in the matter of quantity, not quality. Carnations will not be in large supply and the average quality has been better, particularly of reds. Corsage flowers will be scarce, the dark weather having caused a shower of sweet pea buds, while violets are in much reduced supply this year. But there will be more mums than at any previous Christmas, large-flowered and pompons.

What the demand will prove to be in the aggregate, no one can foretell, but it is apparent the city and the so-called country buyers are taking opposite courses. The out-of-town stores are placing orders freely, numerous orders and large orders, but the city stores are holding off; they indicate a disposition to speculate on the market of December 24. There are some remarkable reports as to the volume of out-of-town orders. Several houses already have booked their full supply of many items. In a general way, the out-of-town orders are largely for roses; they call for roses at from 25 cents to 35 cents, with a disposition plainly apparent to order lightly or not at all on the grades priced at 40 cents and up. As the proportion of long roses in this year's supply is greater than heretofore, it looks as though the late buyers might find themselves compelled to take that grade or go without.

The necessarily high prices for cut flowers and the scarcity of blooming plants have resulted in a wonderful demand for ruscus, boxwood, statice, small baskets and all the means of filling them attractively.

Randall's Annual Auction.

It has become the custom of the A. L. Randall Co., at the approach of the holidays, to hold an auction of merchandise in its supplies department. Notices have been sent to all the nearby florists and good bargains have been obtainable, with the result that the event this year, held December 10 and 11, held a crowd in the store for twelve hours each day. A great variety of merchandise was offered, baskets, ribbons, furniture, phonographs, growers' supplies and scores of other lines, and there was spirited bidding at all times, but it was noticeable that the luxury lines, like phonographs, fancy lamps and porch furniture, aroused more interest and brought relatively better prices than the necessities, like garden hose and store supplies. The department heads, salesmen and office assistants acted as auctioneers, sometimes as many as three sales progressing simultaneously. Even Eric Johnson, whose province is the cut flower end of the business, tried his hand as auctioneer and developed quite a following. The selling was at the rate of several hundred dollars per hour and nearly everybody who ever visits the market secured something he thought was a bargain.

There have been so many inquiries as to the date of the next sale that F. M. Johnson has decided to continue it next Saturday, December 18.

Various Notes.

C. A. Samuelson has come in from his Snake River farm to spend the holidays in the store. Farm life has many strong attractions for him, but he enjoys two or three weeks at the old business.

Bassett & Washburn have had a display of cut Erica melanthera grown by Roy Wilcox & Co., at Montebello, Cal. The Wilcox concern has many thousands of plants under lath houses and is shipping large quantities of cut sprays, which bring excellent prices, all the way from 5 cents to 60 cents per spray.

I. Rosnosky has returned from a two months' trip through the south for the A. B. C. President Miller also is at home from a fortnight's visit to Cleveland, Cincinnati and other Ohio cities. The A. B. C. had its third shipment of valley pips in New York last week.

Adolph Poehlmann is exploring the east in quest of novelties and taking the first vacation he has had in a long time.

W. Abrahamson, who has charge of the fixture department of the A. L. Randall Co., was in Memphis last week, where the company is installing new equipment for Johnson, the Flower Shop and others.

John T. Muir spent the week end at his farm at Mears, Mich.

J. P. Risch retains his liking for the Mrs. Bayard Thayer rose. The Weiland-Risch range at Evanston is the only one in this vicinity sheltering this true flesh-pink variety. Mr. Risch says it is popu-

Of the newer roses, E. Wienhoeber thinks specially well of Victor, the E. G. Hill seedling of which the entire stock was acquired by Wendland & Keimel Co. It most nearly resembles Killarney Brilliant when that variety was at its best. It is not as double as some peoing the great number of seeds started in the summer of 1918, the quantity of good stock on the market this season seems to be extremely small. Some of the most skillful growers are reported to have lost half their plants and others still more.

Bouquet green is not a matter of much interest to florists any more, but it may be noted that bulk green is selling at 18 cents per pound at Chicago this week. Holly also is scarce. The demand, however, is greatly reduced and $9 per case is about as much as can be obtained for good average stock.

Henry Kusik, the Kansas City wholesaler, was here this week to look the market over.

Joseph Foerster pointed to a large display of Romans, with the remark, "How long since you saw the like of these?" No Romans were imported last year and only small quantities of bulbs came from France this season, so it is two years since the market has been well supplied with this chief competitor of lily of the valley.

The Tonner pecan orchards yielded over 6,500 pounds of nuts this year, which were expressed to the store in Chicago.

E. C. Pruner has completed his 1920 travels for Poehlmann Bros. Co., having come home last week from the southwest. He says business with florists is good except in a few localities where cotton is not being picked and marketed.

are nearing the end of their course, but still the supply seems to hold better this season. Bonnaffon is among the best of the remaining mums.

There is a splendid supply of roses consigned to this market and the supply has always been equal to the demand. Premier and Columbia are in greatest demand, followed by Russell, Ophelia and White Killarney, and the wholesalers say the crop will be large for Christmas. Carnations are coming into their own since the decrease of mums and the demand was heavy last week. Fancy grades in Nebraska and Enchantress are the best sellers. Sweet peas are also improving, both in supply and demand, and fancy stock demands high prices.

There was a fine supply of violets last week, excellent in color and stem, and the prospects for a large crop are better than really expected a few weeks back. Valley and orchids run high and there is a good demand. Among the miscellaneous stock coming in are Paper White and yellow narcissi, calendulas, stevia, mignonette and snapdragons.

In greens the demand has been large. Boxwood, holly, laurel and ground pine are selling well, while demands for asparagus exceed the supply.

The plant growers have a big supply of cyclamens, poinsettias, cherries, primulas and begonias, and big things came early in order to inspect the green-houses and to see the splendid manner in which John Moritz keeps them and all the good things he has to offer to the eyes of the public and the commercial man as well. Superintendent of Parks Ernest Strehle was on hand early to welcome the members and, with Mr. Moritz, acted as guide in escorting them around the big show houses. The meeting was held in the big office of the keeper and arrangements for it were complete.

The trustees reported through Chairman L. Baumann that they had arranged for the club's dance to be held at Westminster hall the night of January 14 and that the admission would be 50 cents per person. Tickets can be obtained at any of the wholesale houses and from members of the board of trustees.

Chairman L. Jules Bourdet reported for the publicity committee that the at-

All outstanding bills were ordered paid, so that the new year could begin with a clean slate. Andrew Hoffman, Jr., was elected to membership. Mr. Preston, of the Safety First Council, was present for a talk on "Safety First." At the conclusion of his remarks, many members joined the council and it was moved that the Florists' Club go on record to endorse the move-

The Market.

Ruscus is now available on the market in four colors, gold, silver, red and green. Holly wreaths and loose holly are also on the market, as well as box-wood. The demand is quite heavy. A few chrysanthemums still remain, but carnations, roses, narcissi, sweet peas, violets and stevia are plentiful and in great demand.

Plants include Jerusalem cherries, cyclamens, primroses, begonias and some excellent ferns. The demand for potted offerings is heavy. Several florists have some fancy pots and bowls with narcissus bulbs planted in them in preparation for holiday sale.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

There is no question that the cut flower market is dull—dull just at a time when it ought to be active. There are balls and parties and dinners and dances where flowers are used, only there are not enough of these gay affairs to make much impression on the market. The market is now so big that it takes the interest of the great mass of the people to affect it. These entertainments do not interest the great mass of the people beyond reading about them in the society columns of the dailies.

The market has been steadily declining for two weeks. Nobody expects now that it will improve before Wednesday, December 22. Some idea of conditions can be gleaned from the fact that Paper Whites, the weakest item on the list, dropped from $6 to $8 to $3 to $4 in quantity.

Chrysanthemums have outlasted their season. The city salesmen say it takes selling to move chrysanthemums now. They often have to link them to something desirable or shade the price or put a few in each order to dispose of them. The choice has narrowed pretty much to Nonin, Seidewitz and some late pompons. Yes, they probably will last until Christmas; the majority wish they would not.

There are not nearly so many carnations as it was thought there would be by this time. Perhaps this is why the good blooms have held their place so well. Laddie is now plentiful enough to talk about. It is in first place, with Mrs. C. W. Ward and Pink Delight close behind. The well grown pinks and whites come next, with short-stemmed and poor flowers in the rear.

Roses are the main crop today and they are likely to remain so for at least a month. Taking it all through, they have held well; only here and there whisperings are heard of cheap sales. Generally such sales are not worth more than they realize. The bulk of the rose crop has not come.

The remaining flowers on the list are obtainable in moderate numbers.

Christmas Prospects.

The dark weather of the past month has cut down the supply. The signs of overproduction this Christmas grow fainter and fainter. The feeling is general that there will be a good supply of cut flowers at fair prices. There is little likelihood of a surplus.

Christmas Plants.

The growers who make a specialty of Christmas plants have received a large number of orders. A good Christmas is assured.

Robert A. Craig and Cornelius Vander Breggan are justly proud of the stock of the Robert Craig Co. The cyclamens are wonderful; they resemble azaleas at Easter. The basket crotons prove that a tall plant can be perfectly grown in a small pot. In begonias, Melior and Mrs.

For Christmas and New Year's

we strongly recommend the purchase of Roses. Considering the quality of the Roses that we have at the present time, they show better value than any other flower.

Beauties of a quality that will please the most particular buyer.

Russell and Columbia, from shorts up to 36-inch stem flowers. More Columbia than Russell; a good supply of both varieties.

Premier, Shawyer, Ophelia, Sunburst, Wards, Double White and Pink Killarney, Richmond and Cecile Brunner.

There will be no shortage of good Roses with us and if your present source of supply is not reliable send your order here.

For flowers of really good quality we do not think that you will find a better supply in the Philadelphia market. In addition to this, we offer you the kind of Service that has made a standard for itself and which we are always still trying to improve upon in every possible manner.

The demand for basket plants is heavy. Anything showy in a small pot will do, both flowering and foliage.

Poinsettias and berried plants are popular.

The Subway.

"We will go through the subway." It was E. A. Harvey who spoke. He was standing in one of the large ranges of glass owned and operated by Alvin Harvey & Sons, at Brandywine Summit, Pa. Had the speaker been in Philadelphia you would have supposed that he meant to go under Market street to reach the ferries or the "L," but to go through the subway away out in the Chester valley was queer, very queer.

Perhaps it was the Philadelphia subway that was meant after all, for out on the broad highroad right in front was a sign that read "To Atlantic City," and Atlantic City was over ninety miles away.

Mr. Harvey, Sr., solved this question by leading the way to the end of the greenhouse, down a flight of steps, through a tunnel, up another flight of steps into another large greenhouse!

The problem had been how to connect two ranges without cutting off the main driveway that ran between them and without exposing the night fireman or his less important employees to the weather. The subway is the solution. It is the work of Evans Harvey. It is made of reinforced concrete and is extremely well done.

American Legion.

Edward Towill's new cerise pink rose, American Legion, is the liveliest thing in the florists' world today. It is said to have brought E. Gurney Hill from Richmond. It received a visit from Charles H. Totty, who was here last week, and now no less important a personage than Adolph Poehlmann has come on, it is said, expressly to see the Towill seedling. Mr. Poehlmann has 600 plants of American Legion growing on his company's place at Morton Grove, Ill., where it is doing finely. It is under stood that the object of his trip east is to persuade Mr. Towill not to send out American Legion until the spring of 1922.

American Legion is a cross between Hadley and Milady and Rosalind Orr English. It is a vigorous grower. The flower is large and fragrant.

December 15 Mr. Towill stated he had decided to distribute American Legion this season. It is understood he has all the orders he expects to be able to fill.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-Ms are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-Ms a trial, you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

MINNEAPOLIS AND ST. PAUL.

The Market.

The weather so far this fall and winter has been exceptionally warm. Considerable saving of coal has already been made on account of the mild weather. Christmas stock is in fine shape, although indications are that it will be short in quantity. The many parties for young folks home for the holidays and other like events have made for somewhat better business the last week or two. A considerable quantity of artificial material is being used locally.

Various Notes.

The Minneapolis Florists' Club held a well attended meeting December 7. A resolution was introduced, which will be voted on at the January meeting, disbanding this club and uniting with the state association. This seemed to meet favor with a large number of the members. The effect would be to make one large club with much more power than two smaller ones.

The fifty-fourth annual meeting of the Minnesota State Horticultural Society was held at the store of the L. S. Donaldson Co., Minneapolis, December 7 to 10. A small fruit and vegetable show and an excellent program were the features of the meeting. Between 150 and 300 were in regular attendance. The officers for the coming year were elected as follows: President, C. F. Smith, Minneapolis; secretary, R. S. Mackintosh, St. Paul. F. C. Schletz, St. Paul, and D. C. Webster, La Crescent, were elected members of the executive committee. The Minnesota State Horticultural Society is one of the largest in the country and numbers nearly 4,000 members.

The evening of December 7 about 100 members of the Northwestern Peony and Iris Society listened to an excellent program. The election of officers was held and J. C. Stryker, of St. Paul, was reelected president; W. F. Christman, of Minneapolis, was elected secretary, and directors were elected as follows: Mrs. H. B. Tillotson, Minneapolis; John H. Kleitsch, Duluth, Minn.; D. W. C.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

Last week was "the calm before the storm." The holiday rush will soon be here. Shippers are doing a big business already. Until two weeks ago potted stock was not moving well, but during the last few days orders have been coming in thick and fast. The best stock in many lines is already spoken for. Just at present there are enough roses, but undoubtedly there will be a shortage during Christmas week, as some of the larger growers expect to cut less than a year ago. Carnations have not changed from last week and there has been no advance in prices. Other stock is arriving in large quantities and will fill in nicely for the holiday.

Potted plants will consist chiefly of begonias, poinsettias, cyclamens and cinerarias. Local florists will probably be unable to handle trees this year, owing to the decision of the city council to license the sale of these.

Various Notes.

The Alpha Floral Co. displayed a window of funeral wreaths in Christmas colors.

Fred Meyer is cutting some fine roses and has a fine crop for Christmas cutting.

George Brinker is cutting some fine carnations. His light pink sport from Ward, called Denver, seems to improve each year. Mr. Brinker does not propose to disseminate it for another three years. Another of his sports from Ward, a white, looks quite promising.

Visitors last week included Frank Sauerwald, of Pueblo, Colo.; Edward Johnson, of Colorado Springs, Colo., and O. B. Robbins, of Loveland, Colo.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

DESCRIPTION of the 100-acre strawberry patch of the H. A. Hyde Co., near Watsonville, Cal., appears on page 84 of this issue.

OPPORTUNITIES for this country's nurserymen in growing stock formerly imported are presented by Roy F. Wilcox, of Montebello, Cal., on another page of this issue, headed "Growing Our Own."

Tacoma, Wash.—Fred Sadd, of 947 North Adler street, is starting to build a greenhouse, which will comprise about 7,000 square feet of glass when completed.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The feature of the market is a feeling of optimism among the retailers, several of the principal florists of the city stating that their business is away above that of any previous year, including "the" year of 1918. Certainly they have plenty of stock to work with, for the open weather has kept everything growing and such things as sweet peas, zinnias and annuals generally are as fine as in early fall. Although all the rose growers say they will have a good Christmas crop, the first week in December found good roses a little on the scarce side. Other stock, however, is plentiful.

Various Notes.

At the store of the California Floral Co. some excellent sweet peas were noted last week. The stock had the long stems and well set up flowers associated with the indoor-grown blooms, but V. Swenson says they are outdoor-grown. Large quantities of ruscus are being moved.

Tom Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, reports the busiest November he has ever had, which is saying a good deal.

A fine stock of roses was noted at the store of the E. C. Amling Co., as well as some good valley grown at this firm's greenhouses, at Ocean Park Heights. Large quantities of heather, poinsettias and other cut stock are being shipped, as well as plant stock for the holidays.

The store of W. Armacost & Co. is a busy place and Mr. Williamson reports plant trade especially brisk. A good stock of baskets and supplies is shown at this store.

S. Murata & Co. report that the whole staff is kept busy all the time and that the orders already in for Christmas show that the holiday will be busier than usual.

Roy F. Wilcox reports a large cut of roses from his Montebello establishment.

After a long period of negotiation, the Redondo Floral Co. has succeeded in obtaining a five years' extension of its lease on the West Seventh street property. A. Knapp, in giving the news, was quite elated. It would have been almost impossible to obtain as good a location as the present one. The store has been remodeled and a separate department allotted to telegraph orders. Mr. Knapp has again been on the sick list, but was back at the store last week and feeling better.

The Market.

Heavy rains have done such damage to the remainder of the chrysanthemum crop that it is not of much value for shipping purposes. Many mums are still to be seen in local stores, but they are of inferior quality. The market cleaned up regularly last week. Although the mums, for the most part, do not stand shipping, they are in demand locally on account of the shortage of good stock. Roses are scarce, owing to the fact that the growers have been cropping for Christmas. Since there is a lull in the local demand, however, caused by the nearness of the holiday, the shortage is by no means acute. Every day there seems to be just enough to go around and no more. Gardenias, orchids and valley clean up nicely.

Alternate spells of heavy rains and clear, sunny days have caused the berries to swell up nicely and become large and red. A number of wholesalers are filling large shipping orders for California red berries, wild ferns, evergreens and boughs of pepper trees full of red berries and green leaves. The evergreen forests of central and northern California are prodigal of winter leaves and berries, and quantities of this stock are now coming into the market, both for

Various Notes.

The Retail Florists' Association of San Francisco seems to be getting its money's worth for the $2,000 which it set aside for local advertising purposes, to be expended before the end of the year. The public is showing sympathy with the coming Sunday closing, which begins January 9, 1921. Cards announcing it are being given out by the florists' stores. The artistic half-page advertisements in the Sunday newspapers are bringing results in various ways. For instance, the latest issue of the weekly published by the San Francisco Advertising Club contains the following: "'Say It with Flowers' is not only one of the most beautiful, but effective and original campaigns ever put over in San Francisco. The florists have surely graduated from the ranks of the ethical and are putting over a campaign that has started the city to talk. Congratulations, Mr. Florist; 'Say It with Flowers' to others, that they have the power and value of advertising. If your beginning is a forecast of your future, others will have to step lively to keep the pace. Ad. Clubbers, isn't that a dandy slogan—'Say It with Flowers'?"

Many local florists were busy with orders for funeral pieces for the three police officers slain in a recent battle with gangsters at Santa Rosa. Sheriff James Petray, of Sonoma county, was remembered with flowers by his many friends, some of them San Franciscans. Miles Jackson and Lester Dorman, San Francisco officers, lay in state December 8, at the city hall. Among the local florists who have been busy with this work are Mrs. R. F. Darbee, Albert O. Stein, Joseph's, the MacRorie-McLaren Co., the California Floral Co. and the Thomas Floral Co.

The blossoms are of new colors, coral-pink, carmine-rose, garnet-red, snow-white, orange and rich apricot-yellow, with various hues at the ends of the petals. Some are tipped with chocolate, terra cotta or rich crimson. This giant strain of ours made its appearance in the Los Angeles market and was highly prized by growers. Highly recommended by William Rapp, President of the Horticultural Society of Pasadena, California. Large trade packet, $1.00; 1/2 trade packet, 50c.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is almost out of roses this week, as it is cropping for Christmas. This firm will have its first freesias for the holiday season.

The agency for decorative baskets made locally has been secured by J. A. Axell, who has an attractive line of samples in pastel shades. The manufacturer has recently started here.

Julius Eppstein is finding decorations for luncheons and dinners much in demand at the St. Francis hotel. Owing to the seriousness of the help question on the Pacific coast, many hostesses entertain at hotels and restaurants.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. has a large stock of potted plants at its nurseries. Manager Louis J. Capurro has arranged for a special holiday display.

The Thomas Floral Co. is anticipating a large holiday season, especially in potted plants. The new branch of this firm, the Conservatory, at 901 Larkin street, is now under the management of F. Shibeley, who has been in the florists' business here for thirty years. Mr. Thomas states that his manager's popularity is resulting in excellent business for the Conservatory.

Rosaia Bros. are experiencing a brisk demand for their violets and roses. They find their new San Francisco quarters, at O'Farrell & Jones streets, quite convenient for business.

At a recent society luncheon, admiration was expressed for a color combination of fruit, vegetables and flowers designed at Albert O. Stein's establishment. In large brass opium bowls, heather, yellow baby mums and Irish Elegance roses were combined with eggplant, green and red peppers, persimmons, crooked-necked squash and striped squash in green and yellows and pomegranates, the whole having a sky effect given by turquoise blue ribbon.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee says that eastern florists are beginning to realize the decorative properties of woodwardias, from which a beautiful tree fern can easily be built by using the long, single leaves, which ship easily. One of Mrs. Darbee's fern hunters is sending her occasional shipments of another beautiful fern, known locally as deer-tongue fern.

There was less trade activity among the retailers after the Thanksgiving holidays, but the demand has been about even with the supply in spite of this. Stock is shortening up as far as local growers are concerned and this welcome condition, together with a number of large decorations and plenty of funeral work, enabled the retailers to clean up their stock practically every day without any loss.

About the only new items last week were yellow narcissi, and these took at once with the buyers. Paper Whites are common and selling freely; the prices hold up well. Sweet peas are in ample supply and are selling fairly readily.

Ophelia and Columbia have been the featured roses of late, with Premier and Frances Brunner also common enough to care for all needs. California violets are becoming common and prices are down. Russell and Ward are being shown by a few growers, and there will be a heavy crop later. The supply of lily of the valley is light. Bouvardias are cleaned up about as fast as they can be supplied. Orchids are in lighter supply.

This house also handled the decorations for the annual memorial day of the B. P. O. E., using white mums and white carnations on the platform, while every lodge member present was supplied with a boutonniere of white pompons on an ivy leaf.

Ralph Richardson, of the Stuber & Richardson Greenhouse Co., is offering a new carnation, as yet unnamed. It is a shade between white and salmon, and was on display last week in the windows of Kenney's Home of Flowers.

Mrs. Ruth Minch, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, was confined to her home last week by a slight illness.

L. W. McCoy is to handle the decorations for Christmas displays in the Chauncey Wright restaurants this year and also for a number of other stores. Novel holly trees have been worked out for this purpose by Eugene Lamble.

Rosaia Bros. are still receiving some fine Bonnaffon mums and expect deliveries to continue for some time yet. Some of the best cattleyas seen here this season are arriving for this firm.

The Burns Floral Co. has been making an early showing of Christmas greens and holly and reports a fine sale for these items. Attractive novelties were small trees made of Lake Portier moss and red berries.

C. H. Benson, of Kirkland, Wash., is offering a new cream-yellow Turner mum and a new yellow of the reflex type, as yet unnamed, and reports a demand for both of these from local buyers.

W. R. Wilson, of the Floral Exchange, Bellingham, Wash., was a recent visitor, making arrangements for the Christmas stock he expects to secure from local growers.

Kenney's Home of Flowers handled the decorations for an elaborate wedding at the Hotel Sorrento recently, using white Chadwick and pink Maudine mums and Paper Whites for the standards, with greens for the background. Funeral work has been especially good of late with this house.

An entirely new idea in Christmas ornaments, so far as the Seattle trade is concerned, was shown at the Hollywood Gardens, the work of C. S. Dunlap. A large red candle, about four inches in diameter and fifteen inches in height, was centered on a plateau and holly berries and greens grouped about it to form a ball. Vases of prepared foliage in the rainbow shades were shown in the same window and still another novelty was a combination of cat-tails and Joplin, Mo.—Mrs. J. E. Meinhardt calls attention that printed matter is being wasted by addressing the French Florist and the American Florist at this place. The American Florist bought out the French Florist about three years ago and now the American Florist is out of business.

Hartford, Conn.—Frederick M. Waldo, florist at the Connecticut State hospital, who was arrested several days ago on a charge of theft, failed to appear in the police court December 4 and his bond of $500 was declared forfeit. Mr. Waldo is said to have sold about $470 worth of seeds belonging to the hospital.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

EVERETTE R. PEACOCK, Chicago, has been confined to his home by illness.

ONE of the first industries to feel the readjustment depression, the seed trade, is likely to be one of the first to pick up again.

L. W. WHEELER, Gilroy, Cal., will celebrate an anniversary December 20. On that day in 1868 he was born, at Cherry Creek, near Jamestown, N. Y.

ERFORD L. PAGE, former president of the American Seed Trade Association, died at his home at Greene, N. Y., December 9. A further account of his death appears in the obituary column.

WILLIAM C. HALBERT, of the Chas. H. Lilly Co., Seattle, Wash., was a member of the trade relations committee from the Chamber of Commerce of that city which made a recent trip into southwestern Washington.

At the recent meeting of the executive committee of the American Seed Trade Association it was decided to hold the next convention at St. Louis, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 22 to 24, 1921. The selection of hotel headquarters has been left to a committee on arrangements headed by Clifford Corneli. Those in attendance were President H. G. Hastings, Secretary C. E. Kendel, Kirby P. White, C. C. Massie and Leonard H. Vaughan.

THE Department of Agriculture, following its former communications and policies in the fertilizer trade, sent Saturday, December 11, a bulletin in regard to present conditions in the market, with particular reference to prices of mixed fertilizers, to the manufacturers of these products. The statement, after discussing market conditions at some length, gave a thinly veiled threat of action in the federal courts unless prices to the consumers for the spring of 1921 are immediately reduced.

SEED STERILIZATION.

It is a common practice to treat with an antiseptic solution, such as copper sulphate or formalin, the seeds of cereals and other plants, the seed coats of which are suspected or known to be infected with the spores of pathogenic organisms. Unfortunately, the usual method of treatment generally leads to a decrease in the germinating capacity of the seed, and also to irregularity of germination. H. Braun, of the laboratory of plant pathology of the United States Department of Agriculture, has introduced an improvement which it is claimed increases the efficacy of the method and produces no ill effects on the germination of the seed. The improvement consists in a short preliminary soaking (ten minutes) of the seed in water before steeping it in the antiseptic solution. It is suggested that the method owes its efficacy to the fact that since the preliminary soaking results in the taking up of a large amount of water by the seed, subsequent steeping in the antiseptic leads to a smaller quantity of the poison passing the seed coat. It is further suggested that the preliminary soaking encourages the microorganisms to begin to germinate, so that they are in a highly susceptible state when the time comes for applying the antiseptic.

THREE MONTHS' SEED IMPORTS.

The following are the imports of seeds for the quarter beginning April 1 and ending June 30, 1920, as reported by the United States Department of Commerce. The quantities are expressed in pounds, except in the case of castor beans or seeds, flaxseed or linseed, oil seeds and poppy, in which the unit of measurement is the bushel:

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

One Hundred Acres of Strawberry Plants, the Third Largest Patch in the World, near Salinas, Cal.

THE increase of home building, looked for with descending prices of materials, will add to the demand for ornamentals.

MIDDLE-WEST nurserymen held a 2-day meeting at Minneapolis, December 6 and 7. Nearly every nursery in that section was represented.

CALIFORNIA'S ability to produce plants formerly imported is dwelt upon by Roy F. Wilcox, of Montebello, Cal., on another page of this issue, headed "Growing Our Own."

THE DeGalvez Nursery Co., Pine Harbor, Va., has been granted a charter with a capital of $50,000. Incorporators are C. H. Goodnow, A. H. McCord and Charles Krutchoff.

WALTER SANDERS, eldest son of the head of the Sanders Nursery Co., St. Louis, Mo., C. C. Sanders, is now a member of the firm and has moved with his family from St. James, Mo., to St. Louis.

J. A. TAYLOR, who twenty years ago was in the fruit and nursery business at Wynne Wood, Okla., expects to reënter the trade in a small way at Memphis, Tenn. He is planning to erect a 50-foot greenhouse. Mr. Taylor will grow chiefly peonies.

FERTILIZER experiments conducted during the period of 1912 to 1919, inclusive, with apples, pears, cherries, grapes and apple nursery stock are described in bulletin No. 477 of the New York Agricultural Experiment Station, at Geneva. No definite results have been obtained and the work is to be continued. Those interested in the progress of the experiments may obtain the bulletin free of charge upon request.

THE Northwestern Peony and Iris Society held its annual meeting December 7, at Minneapolis. About 100 were present. The officers elected were: President, J. E. Stryker, St. Paul, reelected; secretary, W. F. Christman, Minneapolis; directors, D. W. C. Ruff, St. Paul; Mrs. H. B. Tillotson, Minneapolis; John H. Kleitsch, Duluth; A. C. Arny and LeRoy Cady, University Farm, St. Paul. It is proposed to hold several shows next year.

AT the convention of the California Association of Nurserymen it was reported that the nurserymen of the state had already sold seventy-five per cent of their stock for next spring's planting.

CALIFORNIA'S BIG BERRY FARM.

100 Acres Near Watsonville.

The H. A. Hyde Co., at Watsonville, Cal., is widely known among florists, chiefly through its bulb productions. To nurserymen its output of trees and berry plants makes this firm one of note. Its 100 acres of strawberry plants, which was the subject of a page article in the Pacific Rural Press for October 23, is interesting to those in the trade who handle that line.

One thousand tons of strawberries for the season of 1921 is the estimate placed on the output from the patch of the H. A. Hyde Co., known as the Oak Grove Berry Farm, located six miles east of Salinas. It is the largest strawberry patch west of the Mississippi river, and the third largest in the world, the largest being in Virginia and the second in North Carolina. Eleven months ago this strawberry patch was a beet field, but, believing that the soil and climatic conditions were ideal for strawberry production, H. A. Hyde, president of the company, staked his reputation and his capital on a "try out." For years Mr. Hyde has made a specialty of the culture of strawberries and bush fruits.

Associated with Mr. Hyde is O. O. Eaton, one of the pioneer berry growers of the Pajaro district. System is to be observed at every turn of the road. The entire planting has been subdivided into plots, which are sublet to groups of contractors who are responsible for the care, cultivation, irrigation and picking.

Varieties Carefully Considered.

Several varieties constitute the plantings, including most of the standard varieties—Banner, New Oregon, Marshall, Nick Ohmer, Klondyke, the old stand-by, Malinda, a small planting of the almost obsolete Brandywine and the new million-dollar berry, Dr. Burrell. A few bare patches show where the

In the matter of irrigation nothing has been overlooked that might at some critical moment prevent prompt and sufficient application of water. A system of flumes, five miles in length, lines the roadway, and it is through these 12x12-inch conductors that water is carried with ease to all parts of the farm. The lateral flumes are 8x8 inches. bush berries were substituted. The bush berries consist of Phenomenal, New Cory's Thornless, Dewberry, Himalayas and Logan. The Phenomenal has been considered by many as practically identical with the Logan. The Cory Thornless, aside from its easy handling, is a berry of fine flavor.

Principal Plantings.

Forty-five per cent of the plantings consist of the Banner variety. Nick Ohmer, originally an eastern berry, has become popular since its introduction. About twenty-five per cent of the plantings of the Oak Grove Farm are of this variety. About ten per cent of the farm is given over to New Oregon. Marshalls take up about ten per cent of the plantings on the Oak Grove Farm. Klondykes have been planted with an eye for the early market, this variety bearing heavily several weeks before the Banner and throwing a large crop of fine berries at a time when prices are attractively high. The old Brandywine has almost passed out of the commercial plantings in that district, but the renewed strain which has been given a chance seems to be showing up remarkably well.

One of the most interesting sights in the whole field is the planting of Malindas. On the Eaton ranch at Watsonville, it made what is probably the world's record for continuous bearing, shipments being made for fourteen consecutive months from one field. From constant replanting of California-grown stock this strain has become devitalized and run down. Eight years ago Mr. Hyde took these to Oregon and he is bringing back at the present time a stronger strain than he has ever had before. One bed of Malindas planted from the improved strain is 100 per cent perfect, every plant strong, clean, healthy and vigorous. The other bed, planted from California-grown stock, is spotted, over forty per cent of the plants dead; the balance are irregular as to size, weak and poor. If it had been planned as a demonstration plot it could not have shown better the value of careful continuous effort in the building up and maintaining of strains.

PROPAGATING ROSA HUGONIS.

How can Rosa Hugonis be propagated? Half-ripened green-wood cuttings taken in July and August do not root for me. E. C. M.—N. J.

Taking half-ripened wood in July is one method, but far the best way to get up a good stock is from seed, which should be stratified and sown in flats in early spring. C. W.

FERNS

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

Business continues fair, with all the florists preparing their plans for Christmas trade. There appears to be plenty of stock in sight and the general belief is that there will be a great deal of business done during the week before Christmas. In fact, orders are being booked now for Christmas delivery. Prices, both wholesale and retail, will be about the same as last year.

Various Notes.

The feature of the week was the annual Christmas trade show of Carl Grobba, at Mimico, Ont. He entertained the trade December 7 and 8. While the greenhouses were being inspected, visitors were entertained by vocal and instrumental music. Refreshments were served at the end of the afternoon. Included in the display were beautiful specimens of cyclamens, dracaenas, poinsettias, begonias, crotons, pandanus, rubber trees, ferns and various other seasonable plants and greens. In addition, there were blooms for Christmas cutting in quantity. The steady stream of visitors expressed delight with the whole show. Foundations are in for several extensions to the Grobba greenhouses. J. J. H.

RICHMOND, VA.

John L. Ratcliffe entertained 550 orphan children at the Jefferson hotel Saturday afternoon, December 11. The dinner, which was an event in the history of Richmond, was a Christmas fete given in honor of Mrs. Buford. The children were gathered from the various charitable organizations of the city.

Mr. Ratcliffe, who was indefatigable in his efforts to entertain his young guests, was assisted by a group of ladies. There was music, singing by the children and a real good time. The affair was a tremendous success.

Phil.

Helena, Mont.—Christmas greetings from the State Nursery & Seed Co. are conveyed in a neat 12-page leaflet. It is printed in seasonable colors, red and green, and contains an illustrated list of stock suitable for the holiday.

New Carnations

To keep abreast of the times, you must buy the new varieties as they are offered. We are offering three varieties that we feel sure you will plant sooner or later. We suggest that you stock up with them while they are still in robust health and vigorous in growth.

Let us book your order NOW.

Harvester is a white that will give you a continuous cut of first quality blooms ALL THE TIME. Propagates easily, makes a fine field plant, comes into crop quickly and KEEPS AT IT.

Edna Nic Zweifel's scarlet. We believe that this fine red will please those growers who have been in search of a red that is healthy, that blooms freely, that does not go off color, that keeps well and does not split the calyx.

Maine Sunshine is already well known as the best yellow in every respect that has ever trotted down the pike.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The market took a jump the closing days of last week, sending the prices on staple stock up. While the demand is now hardly normal, still there is a slight shortage. This is due to many of the growers not running their houses this winter, because of the high price of and difficulty of securing coal and also the damage that was suffered by a number of the growers in the big hail storm in September.

Carnations are bringing $8 to $10 per hundred wholesale; roses $8 to $18; violets, only passably good, $1 and $2; callas $1.50 and $2 per dozen.

Christmas greens are moving actively. There is also an unusual quantity of artificial Christmas goods being made up and these are finding a ready call.

Various Notes.

Lawrence Hay has been appointed keeper of the old cemetery by the East Providence town council.

Joseph Orleff is now managing the cut flower department at S. Kresge's, 191 Westminster street.

Walter V. O'Connor, 195 Mineral Spring avenue, Pawtucket, R. I., is handling a large line of Christmas wreaths and baskets. W. H. M.

A meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held in the Public Library, December 16, when J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, Mass., spoke on a recent trip through Europe. A short business meeting preceded the lecture.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Newark florists have completed preparations for Christmas trade, which they expect to be quite satisfactory. Holly and mistletoe wreaths and other Christmas specialties have been made in good quantity. They are just beginning to receive their poinsettias, cyclamens and other holiday plants. Cut flowers will be expensive this year and for that reason many florists are laying in a larger supply of plants than formerly, since the latter give people more value for their money.

Various Notes.

Connolly & Plunkett, 149 Bloomfield avenue, report business for the holidays is opening up well.

McLaughlin & Murphy, 181 Clinton avenue, report good business, but state that most of their work has been for funerals. R. B. M.

The Market.

With the coming of the Christmas rush and everybody placing orders early, this market showed a slight lull last week. Speculation runs high as to whether trade will be good or bad, but the general impression is that it will be about the same as other years. Roses, including Columbia, Premier and Butterfly, are arriving in good condition. Mums have passed their zenith and only the late varieties are available.

Carnations are going fairly well, bringing $6 to $8 per hundred. Snapdragons are improving as the season goes on and are moving well. Narcissi, Paper White and yellow, are arriving in more abundance, which brings the price of Paper White down to $5 per hundred and yellow to $6 to $8. Stevia is arriving in larger quantities and selling only fairly well.

Some good winter berries are available at a reasonable figure. Some of the first Scotch heather from the coast has arrived and is selling well.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell had a good week in Christmas ribbons and chiffons, auguring excellent holiday trade.

The William Murphy Co. is receiving some extra fancy White Mistletoe mums from Frank Schneider, of Price Hill, O., and some good Ophelia and Columbia roses from A. Rasmussen, of New Albany, Ind.

William H. Gear, of Vine street, was busy with funeral work last week.

H. W. Sheppard has had a large number of telegraph orders recently.

P. J. Olinger is cutting some good pompons from his greenhouses at New-castle, Ind.

Visitors last week included: Harry Smith, formerly with F. H. Lemon & Co., of Richmond, Ind., and Mr. Sanders, formerly of C. E. Critchell, and his sister, of Leesburg, O. G. H. K.

Melby & Allen report a steady increase in their business and fine prospects for the Christmas trade. Potted plants have been meeting with better sales of late.

The Woodland Park Floral Co., Sumner, Wash., is showing a fine assortment of Christmas goods, with some excellent cyclamens of exceptional size. A fine crop of roses is coming on in its greenhouses.

The Seattle Fern & Moss Co. reports excellent business in ferns, with especially good orders shipped out last week for Denver and Salt Lake City buyers. The movement of holiday greens is good also, according to N. B. Healey.

The Orpheum Floral Co. was one of the first shops this year to show potted poinsettias.

Ray G. Slicker, northwest representative of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, is to leave shortly for the annual conference of salesmen of his house. He will be in the east several weeks on this occasion.

Narcissi and other early-blooming bulbs which were about ready to bloom were shown last week by Randall-McLoughlin in their Seattle and Tacoma stores and good sales are reported.

Horticultural Society.

Five names were added to the membership rolls of the Newport Horticultural Society at its last meeting: Eric Otto, of this city, on the active list; and Henry Barkey, E. W. Darling, A. J. Fish and Joseph Figueireo, all of New Bedford, associate members. The resignation of Joseph Matson, who has removed to Los Angeles, Cal., to engage in fruit growing, was accepted.

The meeting was one of the most interesting held in a long time, the principal speaker being Prof. E. K. Thomas, of the Rhode Island State College, at Kingston. Walter C. Campbell, secretary of the Newport Chamber of Commerce, complimented the society on the work it is doing in the city and promised the coöperation of the chamber in every way possible.

One of the most interesting features of the evening was the address by John C. Latham, representing John Scheepers, Inc., New York city, in which he described the new dahlias that his concern is introducing for the coming season, stating there were thirty-two varieties in all. He concluded his remarks by offering on behalf of his concern the sum of $50 to be offered by the society in special prizes next fall, at its annual exhibition, for displays of the firm's novelties, particulars concerning which will be given later in the society's premium lists.

Various Notes.

The case of V. A. Vanicek vs. T. Suffern Tailor has been assigned for trial in the Superior court on the first trial day in March.

John F. Chase has sold his farm in the country and will devote his entire attention to the florists' business on Tilley avenue, making a specialty of carnations.

John Mahan was defeated for mayor on the Republican ticket in the municipal election last week. He was for many years superintendent at Hammersmith Farm, the estate of Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, and is now assistant superintendent at the Island cemetery.

Alexander MacLellan was defeated for a place on the board of aldermen from Ward 4. W. H. M.

FLOWER SHOW COMMITTEE.

Meeting at Cleveland.

A meeting of the national flower show committee was held at the Hollenden hotel, Cleveland, O., Wednesday, December 8. There were present: Chairman George Asmus, Chicago; W. H. Duckham, Madison, N. J.; Frank H. Traendly, New York; Patrick Welch, Boston; Herman P. Knoble, Cleveland; Secretary John Young, New York, and Vice-President F. C. W. Brown, Cleveland. A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind., represented the American Carnation Society, and Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass., the American Rose Society. Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., also was present in the interests of the A. R. S. Henry Penn and Major P. F. O'Keefe, of Boston, and Frank Ritzen-thaler, Cleveland, were interested visitors.

The first session opened promptly at 10 a. m. The minutes of the meeting of the committee held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, during the flower show there last March, were read and approved.

Mr. Knoble welcomed the gathering and explained arrangements made for the sessions during the day, including a meeting at which S. Prentiss Baldwin, of the Ohio Horticultural Society, and ladies who would officially represent the three important garden clubs of Cleveland would be present.

March 25 to April 1, 1922.

A letter from Floyd E. Waite, of the department of public buildings, Cleveland, was read, in which he assured the committee that the dates fixed for the fifth national flower show, March 25 to April 1, 1922, to be held in the New Auditorium at Cleveland, had been officially reserved. The secretary was instructed to send an official acknowledgment, so that it would make a contract basis and become part of the records. It was understood that the question of compensation, or rent, would be settled later. Blue prints of the different floor plans submitted showed that there would be an abundance of space for the staging of a most wonderful competitive exhibition and an extensive trade exhibit, the whole taking up two floors.

It was decided that as these national flower shows were educational in character and conducted to increase the interest in and love for flowers and floriculture generally on the part of the public, it would be better not to raise the rate for trade space; consequently, the rate in force at the Philadelphia show would be maintained, viz., $1 per square foot. The price of admission, it was agreed, should be arranged later, as it would, necessarily, be governed by the rental expense attaching to the building. The consensus was, however, that a 50-cent admission should be aimed for, so that none of the public need be denied the privilege of seeing the grand show planned for 1922.

It was decided to confine the trade exhibits to a separate floor of the building. The main floor area, on which the competitive exhibits are to be staged, is approximately 120x264 feet, with an opening, thirteen feet wide, leading to the corridors under the seating system.

Trade Exhibits.

The lower floor, 120x264 feet approximately, will carry the trade exhibits; it would be splendidly adapted for the display show itself, but the committee decided to set aside this attractive floor for trade exhibitors. Without question, the lower floor, with its high ceiling, splendid lighting and freedom from view-hiding columns, will present the finest quarters ever available for the trade exhibits. All the trade displays will be located here, excepting such displays of ornamental plants or groups as might link themselves to the decorative effect of the main floor. It was understood that this reservation would please the ladies of the garden clubs and the horticultural societies.

A discussion resulted in a conservative estimate of the cost of installing and dismantling such a mammoth exhibition, including the cost of stock, at half a million dollars.

Messrs. Roland, Duckham and Traendly and Secretary Young were appointed a committee to go over the show rules and report at a later session.

Messrs. Asmus, Knoble, Welch and Baur were appointed a committee to consider and revise the rules governing the work and duties of the local committees and present a report later.

Local Coöperation.

Mr. Knoble reported that the show would have the benefit of coöperation by the Ohio Horticultural Society, the Cleveland Garden Club, the Heights Garden Club, the Lakewood Garden Club, the Cleveland public parks, the Cleveland Horticultural Society and the Cleveland Florists' Club. It was pointed out that the horticultural societies and garden clubs could assist first by raising special prizes and by interesting the owners of private estates to the extent of preparing exhibits for the show and inducing the gardeners to make early preparation. Mr. Roland assured the committee that he had every reason to believe that the American Orchid Society, now in course of organization, would also coöperate.

It was decided that retail florists who would make exhibits should be given each a space 15x15 feet free of charge, on the floor of the show proper, and if more space were desired, it would be furnished at the regular rate, but would be located on the floor reserved for the trade exhibits. It was to be stipulated, however, that all exhibits accorded free space should be kept up so that they would be presentable continually throughout the show period.

Financing.

The secretary was instructed to proceed at once with the raising of a guarantee fund of $20,000, and it was decided that if conditions warranted it, a ten per cent dividend would be paid upon the amounts actually paid in.

The show poster was the subject of a most interesting discussion. The matter was finally referred to Messrs. Asmus, Young and Knoble as a committee with power to act.

It was arranged that the secretary should, as formerly, have full charge of the official program or guide published in the interest of the show, and also have charge of the selling of space in the trade section of the show. He was also instructed to proceed with the work in connection with these matters at once.

An adjournment for lunch was taken at 1:45 p. m.

Second Session.

The meeting was reconvened at 2:30 p. m. and at this session were present representatives of the Ohio Horticultural tural Society and the garden clubs, to listen to talks by the members of the committee and others. Walter E. Cook, president of the Cleveland Florists' Club, called the gathering to order and made a stirring address, in which he predicted real action by everyone in Cleveland and vicinity interested in floriculture in making the show the finest ever held.

Mr. Knoble, being called upon to open the meeting, explained in a forceful manner the reason for the visit of the committee to Cleveland. It was necessary, he said, that the different horticultural bodies should know what was expected of them, and that it be explained to them how they could best cooperate in the work of the show. Afterwards, Chairman Asmus was called upon to preside.

Mr. Asmus described the work of the S. A. F. in the promotion of national flower shows and the reasons which prompted the society to arrange these big exhibitions in different parts of the country. During the session he furnished much information asked as to various details.

Roland's Remarks.

Mr. Roland addressed the meeting at some length. He predicted that the coming show would demonstrate what might be termed the last word in horticulture. It was not the purpose to make any money out of the exhibition, but simply to provide an exposition that would be educational in its every feature and promote and increase the love for flowers among the people of the country. He spoke of the great influence exerted by flower shows in the east, particularly of the good work accomplished in this direction by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. This society, which possessed perhaps the finest horticultural library in the country, had arranged to give nine exhibitions during the coming year. He was pleased to mention this particular society, because he had been one of its trustees for twenty years. He pointed out that all the committee sought was the active coöperation of all interests, and it was their hope that everyone connected would consider it an obligation to help toward the success of the coming show. Should any money profit result, he said, it would be placed in a fund to be used for similar purposes.

Mr. Welch spoke of past national flower shows, and presented figures covering the attendance at them in different cities.

New York's Success.

Mr. Duckham detailed mainly the success of the now annual New York flower show. He went into history somewhat and showed how flower shows in New York had been considered no longer possible until the S. A. F., almost against the wishes of the best interests, decided to hold a national flower show there in 1913, with the result that not only was it a great success in every way, but it paved the way for an annual exhibition on the same lines, each of which showed continuous success. It was probable that a similar condition could be created in Cleveland, and therefore all should coöperate in the effort to accomplish a success with the 1922 show.

Mr. Pierson spoke of the American Rose Society, with its membership of 3,500, mostly amateurs. He outlined the good work of this organization and expressed the hope that it would not be long before its slogan, "A rose for every home, a bush for every garden," would be verified. He also paid graceful tribute to the American Carnation Society and other similar organizations, whose coöperation was expected to help materially to the success of the Cleveland show.

J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill., made an eloquent address on "The Influence of Flowers in Home Life." He dwelt at length upon various phases of the attraction of flowers in everyday life, and their influence for good. He bespoke urgent coöperation on the part of all interested and declared that the best efforts of all would be required in such a huge undertaking.

Local Organization.

At this point Mr. Asmus explained at some length the necessity for the organization of local committees and instanced the excellent work of the local bodies during the preparation for the Philadelphia national flower show, when all plans were carried out without a hitch of any kind. Following along the same lines, a local office would, he said, be established in Cleveland, in charge of a local secretary, and this office would be headquarters of the local committees until the close of the show. A vice-chairman of the national flower show committee, in the past a resident member of the committee, would preside at all general meetings when the chairman could not be present. Cleveland would be fortunate, he said, in having available the experiences of several who had been instrumental in accomplishing the success of previous shows.

Mr. Knoble then took the chair and dealt with the matter of finances, which evoked much questioning, particularly by Mr. Baldwin, of the Ohio Horticultural Society, all the questions being readily answered by Mr. Asmus, who, in the main, explained why it was necessary for the work of the show to be under the supervision of the members of the national flower show committee. It was pointed out that these members arranged for the financing and all costs of installation of the exhibition. It was explained that the chairmen of the local committees and the chairmen of the amateur bodies, such as garden clubs, would compose the local executive committee having full charge of the work.

Support Promised.

Mrs. Ingalls in a brief address assured the committee of the support of the garden clubs, and Mrs. Hills volunteered the support individually of the Lakewood Garden Club. Other representatives of clubs also promised support.

In reply to a question by Mr. Baldwin, Chairman Asmus said that the local executive committee would be the responsible body in all arrangements, subservient, of course, to the national flower show committee.

Mr. Bryden, of the Cleveland Horticultural Society, promised the hearty support of his organization, and Mr. Eastman, representing the promoters of school garden work in Cleveland, said that the school children would like to take part in the show; in fact, were preparing for exhibits. Mr. Asmus asked Mr. Eastman to notify the committee how much space could be used for the school children's plans and in what way their help was to be given, as it was possible that an appropriation could be made to cover their competition. The committee expressed much pleasure at the prospect of cooperation by the school children.

TARIFF AND LEGISLATION.

Committee Meeting at New York.

A meeting of the committee on tariff and legislation was held at the administration offices of the Society of American Florists, 43 West Eighteenth street, New York, Tuesday, December 7, at 10:30 a. m., at which were present: Chairman Wm. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; James McHutchison, New York; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; J. D. Eisele, Riverton, N. J.; J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston, Mass.; President A. L. Miller and Secretary John Young. The only absentees were L. H. Vaughan, Chicago, Ill., and Wm. H. Siebrecht, Jr., New York.

The principal business of the meeting was discussion and action on the following letter to the secretary from the United States tariff commission:

The tariff commission is preparing surveys of the nursery and greenhouse industries for the information of Congress in connection with tariff legislation. Although much of the nursery and greenhouse stock formerly imported is now shut off by quarantines, considerable imports are still being made under license and inspection.

We should like to have your opinion as to the tariff problem on these commodities, especially the advantages and disadvantages of domestic and foreign producers, and of the usefulness of the present import duties in establishing a domestic production of the imported materials. We are informed that the present tariff law, which is quoted below, contains a number of discrepancies. If this accords with your view, we should be glad to have your suggestions as to changes.

The tariff act of October 3, 1913, reads as follows:

"Paragraph 210. Orchids, palms, Azalea indica and cut flowers, preserved or fresh, 25 per centum ad valorem; lily of the valley pipe, tulips, narcissus, begonia and gloxinia bulbs, $1 per thousand; hyacinth bulbs, astilbe, dielytra and lily of the valley clumps, $2.50 per thousand; lily bulbs and calla bulbs or corns, $5 per thousand; herbaceous peony, Iris Kempferi or germanica, canna, dahlia and amaryllis bulbs, $10 per thousand; all other bulbs, roots, root stocks, corns and tubers which are cultivated for their flowers or foliage, 50 cents per thousand: Provided, That all mature mother flowering bulbs imported exclusively for propagating purposes shall be admitted free of duty.

"Paragraph 211. Stocks, cuttings or seedlings of Myrobalan plum, Mahaleb or Mazzard cherry, Manetti multiflora and briar rose, Rosa rugosa,

No order too large or small. Member F. T. D.

1. All items in paragraphs 210 and 211 now dutiable on a specific per thousand basis should be continued on the same specific basis. As these items consist of growing crops, on which there really is no standard market price, an ad valorem duty is impracticable, inasmuch as it invites fraud by dishonest traders and causes much confusion and annoyance to United States officials and importers.

2. The rates of duty are acceptable as they now stand. It would be a mistake to base new rates of duty on present consular values, inasmuch as all items that are now being imported were grown under war conditions and are being invoiced at inflated values. Standard values within two years will likely be about thirty per cent of present invoice values.

The trade wants a tariff that is clear and explicit in its terms, also fair and practicable in principle. We do not want a tariff that is ambiguous, but is the source of revenue only to lawyers and a source of trouble to United States officials and honest importers. We suggest that the following ambiguities in present tariff be corrected, and for the following reasons:

(a) In paragraph 210 the word "tulips" should be "tulip." This slight error in printing cost the United States thousands of dollars in revenue, as "tulips" was interpreted as applying to the flowers of tulips, while the term "tulip bulbs" is clear and explicit.

(b) In paragraph 210 the last words, reading "provided, that all mature mother flowering bulbs imported exclusively for propagating purposes shall be admitted free of duty," should be omitted. This clause was added after our committee had passed on this paragraph and cost the United States thousands of dollars in revenue, as practically all bulbs imported are "mature mother flowering bulbs" and it is impossible to decide, when duty is paid, whether the bulbs imported will be used for propagating or any other purpose.

(c) In paragraph 210, we suggest that after the words "Azalea indica," you add "twenty-five per centum ad valorem" and eliminate the following word, "and," so as not to confuse the twenty-five per cent with cut flowers of same items.

(d) After the words "hyacinth bulbs," in paragraph 310, we suggest that you add "$2.50 per thousand," so as not to confuse "hyacinth bulbs" with the "clumps" which follow this item.

Replying to your question, the effect of a high or low tariff on paragraphs 210 and 211 is negligible, since practically nothing in these paragraphs is imported that can be produced commercially in the United States. The importing risks and costs are so great on these living products that the only reason for importing them is that they cannot be commercially produced here. A fairly reasonable tariff on these raw materials stimulates home production.

Quarantine 37, which you mention, embargoes many items necessary for home production which cannot be produced here, also other items which are produced here but at prohibitive prices, and while it was promulgated by the Federal Horticultural Board, it is really understood by the trade as a tariff measure. It has cost the United States thousands of dollars in revenue.

Should the commission contemplate any changes in the present schedule of duty rates, we respectfully request that you so inform Mr. John Young, secretary of the Society of American Florists, so that its tariff and legislation committee will have an opportunity to be heard.

We do not dissect paragraph 211, as that paragraph embodies items of interest mainly to nurserymen, and we presume you are already in touch with the tariff committee of the American Association of Nurserymen.

The rest of the matters discussed by the committee were more or less of an informal character.

PROGRESS VS. PRESTIGE.

Old Name Meets New Fame.

In a recent conversation with a florist, the threadbare question was asked, "How is business?" His reply was, "We are going on about as usual." This florist is situated in a locality where he does not have an opportunity to cater to transient trade. As we talked over old times and the progress the business had made, he dropped the remark that nine out of every ten of his customers were the children or grandchildren of people who had been customers of his father back in the days when there were only two or three florists in the city. This florist has a splendid clientele and does a good business.

In every large city there are one or two florists like the one mentioned above. I do not mean to say that these florists have not kept abreast of the times, for had they not they would not be enjoying the patronage of these children of their former customers. For, while the grandmother would drive up in the family carryall and get perhaps a camellia for her hair to wear to some social function, the granddaughter of today will arrive in a Pierce-Arrow and get a corsage of orchids. But it is well to remember that no florist, no matter how long his business has been established, can depend long on past performances.

The New Generation.

There is such a thing in these days of modern business methods as being too exclusive. New firms are starting up every day. In most cases these are composed of young blood. Possibly the children of some competitor of early days, to whom no attention was paid, are now branching out; they have been going along, picking up all the knowledge of the business they possibly could. Perhaps they have had to go out into the world and make their own way. In some up-to-the-minute store they learned the business in all its branches and acquired a thorough knowledge of modern business methods. When the old folks became tired, but wanted to see the little business they had striven so hard to establish continued, the son or daughter came home to take charge. And sooner or later this new power in an old and small business will make itself felt.

In every city in the country there are many people today who think that if their flowers do not come from a certain store they are not what they should be. But the growth of the florists' industry is affording great opportunities for the newer and younger members. For instance, the telegraph business is doing much today to give the beginner a chance to show his ability. Supposing there is a death in a prominent family. For several generations the members have been customers of some particular florist; this florist is called upon to fill the family order, because they feel that were it entrusted to anyone else it would not be properly done. Right here is where danger lies, for such instances as these give that florist a false estimate of himself. There is no doubt that he is of much the same opinion as the customer. But this family has friends in another city, who go to their home florist and order an offering for the funeral. This florist will telegraph his order to a young competitor of the family's florist. This young man is a wide-awake business man, familiar with the prominence of the bereaved family. He goes the limit to have his offering the best he can arrange for the money he receives for it; not a detail is omitted to impress on that family his artistic ability or his service. The result is that the eyes of this family are opened to the fact that their florist is not the only one in their city who can arrange a fine funeral offering. Then did you ever stop to think that the mere fact that this telegraph order came from someone of their own station in life gives prestige in the eyes of the family to this hitherto unknown florist?

Rapid Progress.

I know personally a young florist who is rapidly making good, who uses every incoming telegraph order as an advertising medium. In these days we hear much about direct advertising. What could be more direct than to demonstrate to every new prospect that your telegraph orders show that you not only have the best flowers, but the ability to arrange them properly? But I can hear some saying such things never happen. There was a time when the writer was of the same opinion, but recently his eyes have been opened.

Let any florist go from store to store, week after week, and it will not be long before he will have greater respect for the ability of those with whom he is obliged to compete. In my rounds it has been my privilege to go into the store of some humble florist and see stock as good as, and in many cases better than, that in some of the better known stores. His is often a business that has not been long established, but the proprietor is a live wire; he is working day and night to get his business on a solid foundation, and let me say right here that you might as well try to turn back the waves of the Atlantic as to keep such a man from succeeding. You can rest assured that he is active in the local publicity campaign; he is ready to cooperate in any way for the betterment of the business as a whole. He is a man who will go out and rub shoulders with his fellow craftsmen; continually studying and learning.

Mutual Advancement.

Let any of the older florists in any city of the country, from New York to San Francisco, take time to go over the younger establishments of their city and see if the proprietors of many of them are not just such men as are spoken of in this article. In a sense, no man stands by himself in the florists' business; it is only a matter of time when the man who is progressive, the man who is willing to help his less fortunate brother in business, will be doing a flourishing business, while those who stand aloof and feel that the benefit of the industry as a whole is no concern of theirs will have perished from dry rot. These are days of keen competition, and a slogan to adopt in your business that will pay just as great returns as "Say It with Flowers" is "Do it a little better than the other fellow." Play the game, be a good sportsman,

The Market.

Indications point to a heavier Christmas business than ever and orders are being placed early. There has been no slack period since Thanksgiving and stock is being cleaned up daily. Carnations will be short, as they have been for weeks past. Roses should be plentiful and good. There will be no surplus of any stock. Last week was busy throughout and prices remained unchanged.

Various Notes.

Samuel Murray had a window of begonias last week. The plants were exceptionally fine.

The T. J. Noll Floral Co. is selling heavily on Christmas supplies and has had to reorder several times. Orders for cut flowers for Christmas are also coming in well.

the annual dinner of the St. Andrew's Society in the Hotel Baltimore, November 29. There were fifty-five tables, each with a centerpiece of fruit, Premier roses and heather. The lights were done in woodwardia and pampas. Each of the 180 women guests received a corsage of roses and heather. There were more than 300 guests. Miss Hayden designed the decorations. Mr. Murray was at one time president and has always taken an active part in the society. He has given the decorations and flowers every year for the dinner, which is one of the important social events of the city.

Holiday buying has begun for the W. L. Rock Flower Co. The company is having a nice business in colored decorative stock and in other lines.

Miss Hayden, chairman of the local advertising committee of the Kansas City Florists' Club, called a meeting of the committee December 10 to decide on Christmas advertising. More than $1,000 is now available for this purpose and more money is coming in. It was decided to advertise in the four daily newspapers December 19 to 22. On account of Christmas being a popular flower day and the prospects for business being so good, it was thought best to use only a portion of the fund now and leave the balance to be drawn on for future needs. The other members of the committee are M. E. Carter, W. J. Barnes and Alpha Elberfield.

CLEVELAND CHERRIES.

We have some Cleveland cherries just starting to bloom. Can we hold them over for next year? What is the best way to handle them?

P. F. C.—N. J.

The cherries, being so late, will be of no value this season and it would not pay to keep them until another season. Sow seed early next February; set off in small pots when the plants are large enough; gradually harden them and plant out, about May 10 in your latitude, in ground only moderately rich. Dig up and pot in September and you will have

The Market.

The market last week was quiet. This was due to the reaction that invariably sets in after the Bachelors' Cotillion, which was held Monday evening, December 6. It usually takes the society world about a week to recover from the big event. It was a good thing, however, that the demand did fall off, for with a curtailed demand, supply and demand were about balanced. Roses, which were forced as much as possible for this event, were cut closely, so that it took a few days for them to recover. What blooms are coming to the market are of fine quality—good flowers, stiff stems and clean foliage. More shorts might be used, for the demand is for funeral work. The outlook for roses for Christmas is that there will be a good normal crop.

Carnations, which were not used for the cotillion, are also scarce. No good reason is given, except that they are not blooming properly. There is plenty of stock planted, but the cut is slow in coming to the market. Weather conditions have been good; so the shortage cannot be due to the weather. However, the growers say there will be plenty for the holiday. Sweet peas are also scarce, and the demand for them is light. Violets are scarce and, like peas, have little demand. Paper Whites are in fair supply and the stock is as fine as has ever been seen on the market. Stevia is still to be had, but this useful flower is nearing the end. A few mums were still available last week, mostly Seidewitz, but they were faded in color and did not sell well. There is only a fair supply of miscellaneous stock, just enough for the demand, and as everyone is thinking of nothing but shopping these days, the demand is not likely to pick up much until Christmas. Bachelors' Cotillion.

The big social event of the season, when the florists' business, as well as the young ladies, makes its bow to society, was held at the Lyric theater Monday evening, December 6. Never since this annual event was initiated was the immense hall more artistically decorated. George Black, of Black Bros., was the man who had this work in charge. Mr. Black has grown up with the Bachelors' Cotillion, for in the old days his father always had the decorations, and many a time George as a boy helped with the work.

The galleries were screened off with latticework, entwined with southern smilax. On the stage, where supper was served, was a scene from the jungle, large palms and ferns being used in profusion. The lobby was treated much in the same way. The Lyric, which has just been redecorated with mauve walls and gold trimmings, certainly was a

But the main part of the decorations was not put in place until after the dancers had assembled. It has always been customary for Mr. Black to arrange a rack covered with wild smilax around the wall in front of the boxes to hold the bouquets of the debutantes. Monday night there were over 1,000 of these. Roses, orchids and violets found their way into this rack. As in most theaters, the wall is horseshoe-shaped, with the open part running up to each side of the stage. This was banked solidly around the entire floor, nothing but the finest of the three flowers mentioned being used.

Fifty young ladies made their bow and, it is estimated, they averaged twenty bouquets each. The cheapest roses used were $9 per dozen, and Beauties, which were in the majority, were $20, to say nothing of gardenias, orchids and violets. The cost of the bunches used on this occasion is variously estimated at $25,000 to $40,000.

There were never before so many dinners preceding the cotillion and flowers were used profusely at all of these.

Every one of the stores was able to take care of all orders, but it was necessary to work all day Sunday. One retailer alone had 245 bunches. Colonial bouquets were discouraged as much as possible, on account of the time they take to make. From a flower standpoint, this was the best cotillion that was ever held, and it is one of the best predictions of the part flowers are to play this winter in the social life of Baltimore. Tate.

MELROSINE

Gentlemen:—

Having had a try-out of the substance now called "Melrosine" before it was put on the market, I was impressed by the fact that it really did kill rose-bugs, and I don't know anything else that will do the same service without also killing the roses. Then later, after it had been introduced, I saw it being effectively used not only to put the rose-bug out of business on roses, but to do the same when they had attacked rhododendron flowers in a prominent garden near Philadelphia. I keep it on hand, and would not hesitate a fraction of a second about putting it in use as soon as the bugs appeared, because I believe it is the best available remedy for this nasty pest.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

COAL PRODUCTION HIGH.

Greenhouse men welcome the reports of the increase in coal supply and a consequent downward tendency in prices. Recovering from the Thanksgiving day depression, production of soft coal during the week of December 4 rose to a new maximum for the year, according to the United States geological survey. The total output, including lignite and coal coked, is estimated at 12,757,000 net tons.

Not only was this the highest mark attained during the present season, but it has been surpassed only four times during the period over which reports of weekly production extend. The four exceptions were the weeks ending July 10 and 24 and September 25, 1918, and October 23, 1919. The record was made possible by the railroads, which furnished empty cars sufficient to load 232,340 cars of soft coal, an achievement the more creditable because Monday, November 29, the priority in the use of open top cars was withdrawn completely.

Production of bituminous coal during the first 287 working days of the last four years has been as follows in net tons:

A 3-SECTION HOUSE.

How many feet of 2-inch pipe will it take to heat my greenhouse with hot water? It measures in floor space 50x60 feet. What size of pipe should I use for the lead from the boiler and how much should it be reduced? The boiler has forty 2-inch flues, six feet eight

Help Save the "White Coal of Industry"

The boiling hot water resulting from condensation in your steam lines is worth money. You have paid for it in terms of coal. It contains valuable heat units. It is the "White Coal of Industry"—it should not be wasted.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. It reduces coal consumption an average of 20%. At the same time your steam will be "drier" and more efficient; your production speeded up and profits increased.

Write today for facts and figures on what the Morehead System will do in your plant.

inches long. The firebox is 28x40 feet.
Do you think this is large enough?
R. G. S.—O.

The sketch shows three even-span houses with a length of fifty feet, and occupying a space sixty feet wide. If the houses are drawn to scale, we judge the widths to be approximately fifteen, twenty and twenty-five feet. The outer walls are seven feet eleven inches in height, but we cannot determine the amount of glass they contain, if any. Neither is the temperature desired in the houses stated, or any way of distinguishing them.

If an average temperature of 60 degrees will answer for the three houses, the boiler described above should be amply large. We should run a 3-inch flow pipe under each of the plates, or gutters, except on the outer wall of the narrow house, where a flow pipe with a diameter of two and a half inches will answer. Four 2-inch return pipes will answer for this wall, and seven may be used on the other outside wall. Twelve returns will be required on the posts between the 25-foot and 20-foot houses, and nine returns between the 20-foot and 15-foot houses. These estimates are for a night temperature of 60 degrees when the mercury is 10 degrees below zero outside. If 50 degrees will answer in the houses, the number of the returns should be respectively three, five, nine and seven. The above estimates are for walls without glass below the level of the plates. When there is glass below the level of the plates, there should be an additional 2-inch return on the outer walls for every two feet of glass.

To connect the flow pipes with the boiler, use two 3½-inch leads. When the flow pipe for the first house has been taken off, the main leading to the other flow main may be reduced to three

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Market.

Prospects for a record-breaking Christmas are exceptionally bright. Potted plants, such as cyclamens, Cincinnati and Melior begonias, cherries and poinsettias, are in abundance and early orders point to larger plant orders this Christmas than ever before. Prices are just about the same as last year and the stock was never better.

Mild weather for a month past has hurried the rose crop, and some of the stock will come a little early, but, nevertheless, a larger cut than last year is looked for. Carnations are looking fine, and a big cut of these is expected if weather conditions are favorable. Paper Whites will be in large supply, but there is no doubt that they will clean up well. Sweet peas will be scarce and the price will be high.

Business last week was fairly good, on account of several funeral orders. Mums are still arriving in small quantities, but the quality in most cases is poor.

Various Notes.

L. B. Westholder, of Evanston, Wyo., spent a few days at Salt Lake City last week, visiting the growers and placing orders for holiday trade.

Mr. Paul, formerly of the City Floral Co., Idaho Falls, Ida., has accepted a position with Bailey & Sons, of this city.

An exceptional sight meets visitors at the greenhouses of the Miller Floral Co., Farmington, Utah. Five thousand cyclamens in full bloom, 1,500 heavily flowered Cincinnati and Melior begonias and 1,000 Jerusalem cherries are in evi-

TO CLEAN OUT WHITE FLY.

How can we destroy white fly on our fuchsias? We have fumigated heavily with nicotine compounds and tobacco, but cannot kill the pest.

The Market.

The market was quite active last week, the wholesale houses cleaning up every day. There was a considerable shortage of carnations, lilies and roses. Roses and carnations are up to the winter's standard of quality, but there are not sufficient to meet the demand, especially of the better varieties.

Some good stevia, calendulas and yellow daisies are arriving. Orchids continue to be scarce. Paper White narcissi are plentiful. Pussy willows are also an added feature of the market, and mistletoe and winter berries have arrived.

Boxwood, smilax and ground pine are the active greens at present, as all florists are preparing for the holiday rush. Business in general has been reported good.

Various Notes.

Joseph Marks, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, was a visitor in Pittsburgh last week.

Adolph Poehlmann, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, was a visitor at the store of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., at Bakerstown.

An attractive display of artificial wreaths and Christmas materials is being shown by A. Krongold in his new store, on Smithfield street, in the Oliver building.

William T. Usinger has been added to the force of the McClements Co., for over the holiday season.

The meeting of the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held Tuesday evening, December 7, at the Carnegie library. H. J. H.

Martha Huntley is returning to this city and expects to reënter the florists' business at 97 Butler street about January 1.

Atlanta, Ga.—E. E. Parker, general manager of Parker Farms, 410 Piedmont avenue, is building some small greenhouses and will grow plants.

Newtownards, Ireland.—The offices of Alexander Dickson & Sons were completely burned out Sunday morning, November 21. The fire resulted in the destruction of the office records, including all orders awaiting execution.

Moves Hitchings Iron Frame House 40 Years Old

Newport, R. I.

At Jamestown a few days ago, we called on the veteran florist, Samuel Smith, whom we found busy at work propagating Geraniums and taking general charge of the Samuel Smith's Sons, Narragansette ave place, he having turned the business over to them some years ago. Notwithstanding the 86 milestones which he has passed, he must keep busy and is a great help to the boys who are now building up their Clinton ave. plant. Here they have 12 acres of good land excellently adapted for green house purposes. A spring of pure water will furnish an adequate supply for all purposes.

Some time ago, the best of the green-houses on what was the J. M. Hodgson place in Newport were bought and moved across the bay—and have been set up there. Those of iron frame Hitchings & Co.'s construction are as far as we could see, equal to new, and that after not less than 40 years of service. A strong commendation for the iron frame construction. When completed the iron frame house will be 230ft. in length. The heating plant at the north end is being arranged with a view to additional houses later on. So far, one house has been planted with Carnations, and another including Premier, Double, and White, etc.

Florists' Exchange

Every once in a while someone asks us "How long do we reckon our Iron Frame Houses will last?"

So far, we have never been able to answer definitely. About all we can say is that houses put up two score of years ago are like Johnny Walker, "still going strong."

If after 40 years a house is still so good, it will pay to take it down and rebuild it, then it kind of looks as if the iron frame must be good for at least another two score years.

Eighty years is about as long as the most of you will be in the growing business.

So, it begins to look as if all we had said about our houses being a gold bond investment is pretty much so.

You know we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

With YOU the question is— which kind?

Of course you're going to build early next spring—indications are that 1921 is going to be a really good year for Florists. And it's fair to assume that you know just about what you're going to build—the number, type and size of houses.

So, if you haven't already decided on the AGMCO make, the question you'll be turning over in your mind is—which kind?

When considering this question it would be well to look into the AGMCO construction, and to bear in mind the reduction of approximately 25% in prices.

Just drop us a line when to call.

Of course you are very busy just now before Christmas, but while you are resting a moment and catching your breath, cast a glance at the above section of a 36-ft. greenhouse.

It is of pipe frame construction with Louisiana gulf red cypress framework. The pipe superstructure is all joined together with "Bolted through" galvanized steel fittings that cannot break or pull off.

We feel sure that if we only had the opportunity to Show You the many advantages of this style of construction, you would place your order with us in a hurry.

When may we serve you?

Seeing Is Believing When It Comes To Our Gables

One of the ways to save on a house is to skimp the gable framing. Look at some houses and see for yourself.

Weak gables weaken the entire house.

Because of their lack of rigidity they GIVE. Every give is a strain against the entire length of the entire house's frame.

When a give stops, the frame generally goes back into place.

This going back and coming back motion, slight as it may be in some cases, causes so much of the seemingly unexplainable loosening of the glass.

A rigid gable is absolutely necessary if you want a rigid house. Our house is rigid, because our gable does its full part in preserving its rigidity.

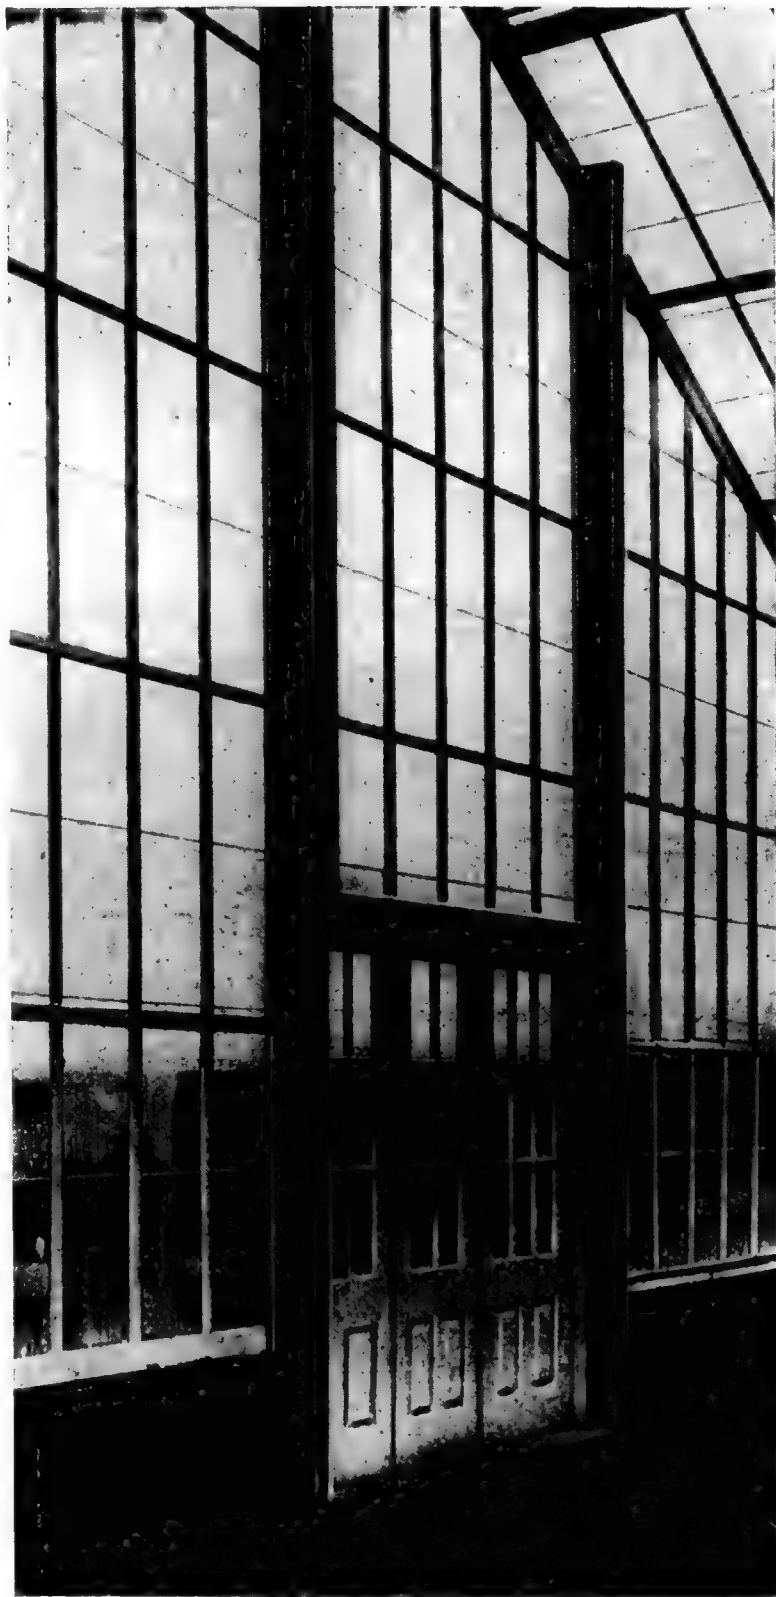

It does it because it has an ample number of good, husky rafters, combined with plenty of angle iron purlins.

These purlins are fastened to the rafters by double angle knees. These knees are on each side of the rafter, which means there are four knees in all. Four knees have eight bolts. A glance at the illustration carries its own conviction.

Our Handy Hand Book goes thoroughly into this question of gable construction, as it does into every other point of every other part of the construction.

If you haven't one, send for one.

A PERSUASIVE GOOSE FLOWER

Some persons, also lower animals and inanimate things, are so peculiar in their nature that it is difficult to find a suitable place for them. They are unprofitable misfits in ordinary conditions, but useful in the right situation. One resourceful florist found such a position for a goose flower.

GOOSE FLOWER, either in a florist's window or elsewhere, is not a strikingly beautiful object, but it is strikingly distinctive. It is so decided a rarity that it cannot fail to attract notice. It looks like one of nature's most good-humored and fantastic jokes. There are many different kinds of good window displays and their differences are among their chief merits. There is need of the greatest possible diversity and originality in window arrangements. Of course, as a general rule, artistic grace and symmetry in the designs are also eminently desirable, since the florist must establish a reputation for good taste. But the greatest danger of all, in window decoration, is the danger of being humdrum and commonplace. The phrase, "deadly monotony," is truthfully expressive, for monotony is always liable to be deadly—fatal to real success.

Animal and Angel.

The distinction between essential and nonessential industries, a question much discussed during the world war, has an important bearing on the present subject. Food and clothing are material necessities; flowers have their place among the intellectual necessities. The material commodities preserve human beings from physical death; flowers and other æsthetic articles aid in preventing spiritual and moral death. But the point to be emphasized just here is, that people usually are prone to satisfy their physical needs first. Flowers appeal to a higher and less quickly responsive part of the average person's nature, and therefore are in danger of being ignored unless skillfully exhibited and advertised. It is encouraging to reflect that human beings are angels in the making—hasn't someone so remarked?—but they are animals fully made, and the animal part of some people has so good a start that the angel part is badly handicapped. The florists' trade ministers to the angel in man, not to the animal. Florists' wares, therefore, are not fully appreciated unless attractively and persistently displayed.

An Incentive to Invention.

Only a few florists, perhaps, may ever find it feasible to exhibit a goose flower in their windows, in such manner as is shown in the illustration on this page.

But such a window display, even in cases where it cannot be exactly imitated, may suggest the use of some other article or device that may be as striking as the goose flower. Not many windows may be copied precisely by florists in general, but all good windows afford helpful hints, or at least may stir florists' thoughts and stimulate their inventive faculties.

There is reason to believe that the goose flower now under consideration accomplished its purpose. As the illustration shows, the rara avis—rare bird—was allowed plenty of space. No ordinary item of stock was permitted to approach near enough to it to detract from the startling effect. Yet it may be taken for granted that other flowers, besides the bird-shaped one, were within easy range of the bystander's vision. Perhaps the newspaper reporters were invited to call and see the strange creature, and tell their readers about it.

The Bird's Appeal.

It did not require a great deal of imagination to hear the appeal that the "bird" made to passers by. Appreciative, intelligent on-lookers could hear it say something like this:

"No, no, ladies and gentlemen; I don't expect all of you to engage in a wild scramble to purchase me. I am only a freak, but I am acting as spokesman for those other flowers, those wonderfully beautiful flowers, which you see in other parts of the window and store.

"Yes, I admit I'm a freak," continued the goose flower, "but I should not be blamed for that, since my freakishness is an unavoidable inheritance. All my ancestors were freaks and I belong to a celebrated family of freaks, the aristolochias. My really correct, dignified name, by the way, is Aristolochia gigas, or Aristolochia grandiflora Sturtevantii. One of my sisters is Aristolochia Siphon, the Dutchman's pipe; perhaps you have seen her. Others of my sisters are: A. cymbifera, the boat-shaped one; A. ornithocephala, bird's head; A. tricaudata, three-tailed, and A. ridicula—you know what that means. Miss A. ridicula has two long lobes which are said to resemble a donkey's ears. Yes, we're a queer lot and I'm the queerest of all.

Just an Overgrown Calyx.

"As a flower," the goose went on, "I am badly defective as well as freakish. I have no corolla, though the corolla, or system of petals, would usually be considered the one absolutely essential part of a flower—almost the whole flower. In common, popular opinion, the corolla is the flower. But I am just an overgrown calyx, a long, huge, grotesquely twisted calyx, ending in a yard-long tail, by means of which I am now clinging to my support, as a monkey might suspend itself by its tail from the branch of a tree. However, nature did not intend my tail for such a purpose; this use of it is the invention of the window decorator who placed me here.

"But allow me, ladies and gentlemen," the goose flower pleaded, "to draw your attention to those other flowers. Look, for instance, at that pink rose. Note its exquisite fineness of texture, its grace of form, its richness and delicacy of color. Is there anything else, aside from flowers, that is so nearly a perfect embodiment of beauty? And its fragrance—

"My fragrance! My fragrance, did you say? Did you really mean to insult me? My fragrance, you know—or perhaps you don't know—is called, at the best, an odor. That's what polite people call it, but other people give it a much worse name.

The Goose Flower Wins.

"Say, you good-looking, well-dressed man, are you going away without buying any flowers? Do you mean to admit that you were attracted, fascinated, almost captivated, by a misshapen oddity like me, but have no interest in those other flowers, those most exquisite specimens of nature's handiwork? Ah! You have changed your mind and are coming into the store. I thought you looked like the right sort. And there are two or three other people following your example."

Thus the goose flower sold other flowers all day, and several successive days, before being replaced by another window display.

If any florist wishes to grow a few vines of the goose flower, he should plant them in a bed of good, rich loam, in a warm house where they can be conveniently trained up pillars, rafters or a trellis. As a rule, they do not bloom until they have grown to a considerable height. They are easily propagated by means of cuttings taken from well matured wood in early spring.

KASTING'S MONUMENT.

By most members of the trade the name of William F. Kasting is not only well remembered, but remembered with esteem and affection. As an officer of the Society of American Florists he had, at the time of his death, in 1916, served more years than any other person up to that time, having been elected president at Washington in 1905 and having served as treasurer from 1910 until his demise. Through his wholesale business at Buffalo and other trade connections in that section he became still better known locally and was universally respected and liked. So his trade friends were shocked at his death at the early age of 46, when he succumbed as a result of heart failure while attending the Democratic national convention at St. Louis in 1916. So high was their regard for him that they wished to erect a suitable memorial, which took the form of the stone shown in the illustration on this page. The inscription reads, "William F. Kasting, 1870-1916," and below, "Laura A., His Wife, 1879-1912." On the bronze tablet affixed below is the following testimonial: "Erected by the Florists of America as a mark of our love and esteem and that his noble character may be held in perpetual honor."

BELGIAN GLASS MARKET.

Florists' Monument to Wm. F. Kasting.

fore the war, are described as follows by Consul General Henry H. Morgan, at Brussels:

"In 1913 Belgium exported 40,559,441 kilos of plate glass valued at 30,465,967 francs, and 205,561,684 kilos of ordinary window glass valued at 47,279,187 francs. Exports of manufactured glass products in 1919 amounted to 123,842,117 francs. In December, 1919, resumption had reached eighty-one per cent of pre-war activity, with fifty-nine glass-making establishments employing 22,785 men as compared with 28,149 before the war.

"The cost of manufacture has greatly increased, being now about six times what it was in 1914. Prices of raw materials have tripled and then quadrupled, while the price of labor has gone up 150 per cent or more. Lack of coal hindered output for a time, but there is now prospect of being able to light more furnaces.

"The demand for plate and window glass has been extraordinary. While orders have been received from all over the world, France has taken a considerable portion of the window glass for use in the devastated regions, and the United States has bought a large amount of plate glass and sought more. The market for plate glass remains good but that for window glass has been affected recently by the price-cutting wave and notably by competition from glass factories in Japan."

EXPRESS COMPANIES CAN JOIN.

The interstate commerce commission December 20 in Washington granted authority for permanent consolidation of the transportation business and properties of the Adams, American, Wells-Fargo and Southern Express companies into the American Railway Express Co. The commission said it was its belief that the public would best be served by one consolidated company, serving all lines, with equal rates.

The permit was based on an application filed by the four express companies last March.

The commission divided on the question, Commissioners McChord and Meyer presenting a minority report. The consolidation, this dissenting report asserted, "creates a monopoly" and "destroys every semblance of competition."

COAL MARKET BREAKS.

Price of Steam Coal Halved.

The bottom dropped out of the wholesale market for steam coal in the central west December 21, bringing about the most radical reduction recorded in years. In many instances the reductions cut the price in half.

The mild weather was given as the principal reason at a meeting of the Illinois Coal Operators' Association in Chicago December 21. Other leading operators said that the reduction was caused by the shutting down of factories all over the country.

Range of Prices.

The poorest grade of steam coal has dropped from around $2 to 83 cents a ton within the last few days. Better grades which have been selling for from $7 to $8 a ton are now begging for purchasers at from $3.50 to $4. Coal which sold for from $8 to $10 a few months ago can be had now for $3 a ton.

"There is a greater supply than a demand," said George W. Reed, vice-president of the Peabody Coal Co. "Industries have shut down all over the country. They have no further use for fuel. Conditions are beginning to readjust themselves. I would say that the drop in the price of coal is simply an indication of business getting down to normal competitive prices.

For Direct Purchases.

"The high reconsigning and demurrage charges have also helped to bring about a surplus supply. We wouldn't think of sending out a carload of coal unless it is purchased direct. Then there are those who have purchased the entire output of mines for the year. The longer they hold the more they lose and the slimmer are their chances for disposing of their goods at any price."

Several operators declared that the coal was being piled up at the mines, where full production is in progress without a sign of purchasers.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

DELIVERING THE GOODS.

Meeting the En Route Problems.

It has been noted that florists' motor vehicles are at once distinguishable from the rest of the trucks on the roads. Appearance to the man in the street has been considered, so that the advertising value alone is worth the price of the special painting, decorations, etc. In the larger cities the florists often employ a characteristic color, as, for example, one large New York firm uses violet, another blue. It is of great value to have the delivery car so painted, because it is in keeping with the tone of the business. It reflects the character of the goods carried.

The problems of flower and plant delivery are not the easiest to solve. The florist handles highly perishable goods; he must make quick deliveries; his plants come in all sizes and can not be packed in boxes so as to be easily loaded. Plants must be so transported that they will not be injured; hence a greater amount of care must be used by the driver and the truck body must be so designed as to avoid damage.

Pot Holders.

When the truck is being driven over a rough city street the body sways and bounces up and down, the tendency being for the plants in pots to be thrown against one another. This is obviously ruinous. One member of the trade uses a body in which there are three horizontal tiers of shelves. All heavy plants in pots are placed on the floor of the body. In order that they may rest upright, he uses small wooden boxes of standard sizes into which the pots can be fitted. These wooden boxes have a large bottom area, so that they are not likely to tip over. Another florist has arranged one portion of the body floor exclusively for flowers in pots and has arranged clamps to hold the pots. These clamps are made especially for that purpose and grip the pot firmly in four places. Another method is to use parallel strips of wood across the body about four inches from the floor. Six or seven sets of such parallel strips are used, each set being a little farther apart than the next, so that all sizes of pots can be accommodated.

In order that all sizes of plants can be taken care of, bodies should be so arranged that one small portion near the front or rear occupies the full height of the body. Where sliding shelves are used and are made the full length of the body, the size of plants to be carried is restricted by the height between shelves.

Keeping the Right Temperature.

One of the difficulties connected with the delivery of cut flowers is that of protecting them while in transit. Severe cold for a short period will ruin them. Extreme heat is bad. In cold weather it is necessary to keep out the cold, so that when flowers are kept in the wagon for hours they may be delivered in a fresh condition. An exhaust type heater installed in the body of the truck will not do, because gas leakage, however slight, damages the flowers and may perhaps kill them. One florist has arranged to utilize the heat in the driver's compartment. This usually is warm and when it is enclosed the heat is allowed to circulate through the body sufficiently to keep the flowers at an even and protecting temperature. If exhaust heat is to be used, the inside piping should be free from any connection. One coil of pipe within the body may be found sufficient, but the line should include a control of some sort. There should be a thermometer within sight of the driver, so that he may keep the temperature as near constant as possible.

On Time and On Record.

Flower and plant deliveries, unlike many others, must be made often at a definite time. An order may be received to deliver a funeral piece at exactly 5 p. m., and not before. Consequently it becomes necessary to have delivery wagons always in good condition and to have drivers who can appreciate the value of time.

In order to keep an accurate record of the calls, deliveries, etc., the printed forms of the florist should call for the following information: Time of receipt of order and by whom received, name and address, quantity and kind of flowers or plants, time of departure of truck, time of delivery of flowers, time delivery was requested. One retailer has a special pad for telephone calls. This pad contains the foregoing items and each order is made out in duplicate, the duplicate being handed to the driver of the wagon, who enters the information in his delivery book.

FALLON WINS WINDOW PRIZE.

December 2 was an eventful day in the history of the J. J. Fallon Co. and, in fact, the whole city of Durham, N. C. It was the opening of the White Way in that city and also the merchants' Christmas opening.

The Durham Morning Herald offered prizes for the best window displays for the event. A handsome, silver loving cup was to be awarded the merchant having the most artistically decorated window and best sales suggestion. The J. J. Fallon Co., with a beautiful trim of Russell, Ophelia, Columbia and Sweetheart roses, sweet peas and a bride's bouquet, with signs, "Say It with Flowers" and "Order Your Christmas Flowers Early," won first prize. The background for the display was a light fence, entwined with pink chiffon.

An announcement of a flower to every caller brought in thousands of people during the evening, who heartily commended the proprietors on the inside appearance as well as the window display. The store was bedecked throughout with baskets and vases of cut flowers. Ornamental baskets and Christmas wreaths also added to the effect.

Durham had a population of 25,000 when the first flower store opened in that city in 1917. J. J. Fallon, of Lynchburg, Va., opened the store October 1, with Mrs. N. W. Cobb as manager. Just two years later, in October, 1919, W. M. Doyle, Jr., became associated with Mr. Fallon and today the concern is known as the J. J. Fallon Co. A view of the interior of the store appears on the preceding page.

HOW OTHERS HELP US.

Slogan Brings Aid.

"Nothing succeeds like success," said the successful financier. The latest example of how successful success may be is the most famous trade slogan in America, "Say It with Flowers." That slogan is a success. When it was first put in print, it attracted immediate attention from the trade. Before long it attracted much attention from the public. The business world in general for some time tried in various ways to "get in on the eats." The public was advised to say it with chocolates, candy, jewelry, or anything else that seemed appropriate. The mayor of Baltimore, Md., went so far as to suggest "Say It with Oysters," to advertise that city's distinctive industry.

The recent advertising campaigns in daily newspapers, the holding of "Say It with Flowers" weeks at various cities and the display of the slogan prominently in every florist's window have won the battle. The slogan is in no more danger and belongs to the florists for good. Moreover, several industries, in advertisements, quote the florists' slogan in order to attract attention to their wares.

Iceman Lends Hand.

The advertisement of the Knickerbocker Ice Co., reproduced on this page, which appeared in all the New York papers recently, is an excellent example. In order to benefit in any way from the much advertised slogan, this firm was forced to give as much publicity to the florists' trade as to its own products.

The ice company is not an solitary example. A haberdashery store, one of a large chain of the Brill Bros. stores, recently enlarged its quarters on Broadway in New York city. A sign twenty-five feet long over the entrance read: "We 'Say It with Flowers.' Welcome to our additional floor." And they did "Say It with Flowers." Max Schling said it for them, anyway, with the effect shown in the illustration on the next page. The sign was 9x25 feet and the letters were made of single beech leaves. The flowers used were bronze chrysanthemums and Jap lanterns, or Physalis Franchetii. The flowers were replaced with fresh ones several times during the period of the official opening of the new quarters. How much publicity such a display gives the florists' trade may be imagined by the reader from the illustration. Such advertisements are florists' advertisements pure and simple, with somebody else paying the bills.

Serves as Sermon Text.

The slogan is so well known, indeed, that even clergymen make reference to it in order to attract attention to their subject. "Say It with Flowers—Not always," was the title of a sermon published in the Christian World, of Cleveland, O., recently. The sermon, after referring to the fragrance of the message flowers bring to the sick room, continued: "Some essential portions of the gospel cannot be 'Said with Flowers.' Other parts of the gospel cannot be said without flowers. A flowery preacher? Every preacher should be that at times. If he speaks truth truthfully, he will sometimes 'Say It with Flowers.'"

So surely and thoroughly has our slogan become a part of language and life that by its use, constantly and in many places, other businesses and other professions are advertising for us. Verily, our national publicity campaign performed its task well in providing florists with this slogan.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

Market conditions last week were rather poor. Business has been dragging in all lines, and the consensus is

'Say it with Flowers'

Everybody loves bouquets—of flowers or kind words. A kind word bouquet sent to Knickerbocker says that a patron riding down Fifth Avenue noticed Knickerbocker Ice Wagons in front of three flower shops. The patron thinks Knickerbocker, in keeping flowers sweet and fresh, plays an important part in "Saying it with Flowers."

To keep your flower "message" long repeating its sweet story, put a piece of Knickerbocker Ice into the vase daily. Knickerbocker is absolutely pure—a fit associate for the flowers.

Knickerbocker I C E Company

Here's How the Iceman Helps Us.

that business this year is too uncertain to put in heavy stocks. Retailers hesitate to buy this year because of the steady increase in the number of unemployed, which directly affects the market for flowers. Because of this uncertainty, retailers are at a loss to know what to buy and in what quantities. It is generally believed that a last-minute rush will mark the closing of the Christmas day trade. Stock of all kinds, with the exception of roses and carnations, has been moving slowly. Reports from the retailers state that Christmas supplies are selling better than cut flowers at present. A shortage in variety, as well as in quantity, is the market report on staple lines.

Various Notes.

John Dunstan, of Niles, O., was a recent visitor in this city.

The Riverside Florists Co., of West

Park, has recently been incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000 by Mr. Rose Kirchner, Miss Collette Kirchner, Frank Kirchner and M. Arth.

Mr. and Mrs. Stockhouse, of Minerva, O., left orders with several wholesalers for Christmas stock while on a recent visit in this city.

J. R. Cowgill, of Canton, was a visitor recently, as was H. A. Cook, of Oberlin, W. A. R.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

Local business during the last week felt little or no effects of the coming holiday. Few advance orders were taken and business for the most part has not been particularly brisk. However, shippers report better business than last year at this time. Green of the spruce variety is scarce, according to reports.

Various Notes.

Mr. Hodding, of Salida, Colo., was a visitor last week.

Fred Maler has been cutting splendid orchids this winter. At this early date he is practically sold out of pot plants. Clyde Bilegle, who is affiliated with Mr. Maler, has returned with his wife from a short trip through Wyoming.

Adolph Konesny is cutting fine carnations and sweet peas. Daniels & Fisher Stores Co. is using his entire cut. Mr. Konesny has a contract to supply the bedding stock for Mount Olivet cemetery next spring.

The death of Jacob Boxer, manager of the Central Floral Co., is noted in the obituary column in this issue.

Mr. Lewis, of the Columbine Floral Co., died recently, following a lingering illness. He was one of the older members of the trade, having been in business for about twenty years.

The Market.

Stock for Christmas is scarce. Prices, as usual, are high, but not so high as had been anticipated.

The dark days have caused a shortage in carnations and sweet peas. Carnations have been bringing $8 and $10 per hundred, but are ranging from $10 to $15 for Christmas. Roses are far from plentiful and are quoted at from $12 to $40 per hundred. Paper Whites have been abundant, but move slowly at $4 and $6 per hundred. The holiday price will probably be $8 and $10 and, because of the shortage of other stock, these may be in greater demand. Stevia has also been appearing in large quantities, but meets with a better sale.

A few good and some inferior chrysanthemums are still seen, but they are not moving rapidly. Orchids and valley are available, but high in price. The latter is bringing $15 per hundred.

Bouvardia is a newcomer to the market and brings $1.25 per dozen. Holiday dances and parties will cause these smaller flowers to be in greater demand than heretofore. Calendulas are also in evidence and are popular for corsage work. Artificial stock has been in good demand. The Christmas made-up work, such as baskets, wreaths, etc., is not in unusual demand, although some of the more elaborate pieces have been selling. The various department stores, drug stores, etc., have some baskets and wreaths on display, the sale of which diminishes the florists' sales.

Potted plants are good property. As usual, poinsettias are leaders. These are scarce and high in price. Jerusalem cherries are more numerous and are in good favor. Some good cyclamens, primroses and begonias are on display.

Various Notes.

Hartje & Elder are cutting some good Mistletoe chrysanthemums.

Adam Shideler, of the Posy Shop, at Muncie, Ind., called on local florists recently.

The annual meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association will be held Wednesday, January 12, and not January 11, as was previously announced. It will be held at the Gatling Gun Club, 709 North Illinois street. A banquet is scheduled for the evening.

Mr. Walley, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and A. Sykora, of Batavia, Ill., called on the trade last week.

The Smith & Young Co. is cutting some good orchids.

Baur & Steinkamp will begin next week to ship carnation cuttings.

M. A. Barick, of Seymour, Ind., has been seriously ill. E. E. T.

Horticultural Society.

The Newport Horticultural Society held its annual meeting Tuesday evening, December 14, with one of the largest gatherings in many years.

The society made a contribution of $25 toward the work of the general committee which is striving to amend Quarantine 37.

There was also a general discussion of the recommendation made by the Rhode Island State Grange for a reorganization of the state board of agriculture so as to give nurserymen a representation thereon.

vice-president, William Gray; treasurer, Richard Gardner; recording secretary, Arthur W. Potter, Jr.; financial secretary, William Grey; sergeant-at-arms, William F. Smith; executive committee, Charles Philpot, Charles M. Bugholt, William Gray, Richard Gardner, Arthur W. Potter, Jr., William F. Smith, Andrew J. Dorward, Andrew S. Meikle, Bruce Butterson, Frederick Carter, James Robertson, William Mackaye, Robert Patterson and E. Kempenaar; auditing committee, Herbert Bliss, Bruce Butterson and Andrew S. #### DAHLIA TUBERS DRY UP.

I have read your dahlia notes in recent issues with much interest and also the dahlia advertisements, some of which I am answering. Please tell me how to prevent my tubers from harmful drying after I cut up my clumps. I shall begin cutting up the clumps about February 1, separating the individual tubers, which will not be sold or planted for nearly four months. Cutting up means drying up, particularly as regards the bud-bearing crown end of the tubers. How can I store the separated tubers so as to prevent this?

C. B.—Pa.

A cold and dry storage cellar or shed is essential. A temperature between 36 and 40 degrees will be found satisfactory, and as little fire heat as possible should be used to maintain the temperature. After cutting, if there is any likelihood of the divided tubers shriveling, they should be covered with some material. Coconut fiber refuse has been considered excellent for this purpose, but other materials should answer just as well, such as fine sawdust, fine leaf-mold, screened peat and sand. It will not matter if these materials are not absolutely dust dry; in fact, a slight moisture is considered beneficial rather than otherwise; even in a cool cellar this moisture will disappear before long.

FUNGUS ON HYDRANGEAS?

We are mailing under separate cover two plants, hydrangea and hibiscus, which seem to be much affected by some disease. This blight or fungoid disease has spread rapidly over our ageratum, heliotropes and all soft-wooded stock. We sprayed with a strong solution of Bordeaux mixture, but it seems to remain on the hydrangeas in a cool house. We shall be thankful for any suggestions as to what it is and what remedies there are. J. E. J.—Ga.

The foliage was all dried up on the hydrangeas and hibiscus shoots upon their arrival and it was impossible to tell what your trouble might be. If the trouble is fungoid, a spray such as you have applied would seem to be the best possible remedy. I should suggest a further application of either Bordeaux mixture or Fungine. Ordinarily hydrangeas are free from attacks of this kind, except for mildew. Cold drafts and careless watering will cause the latter. Keep a drier and more buoyant atmosphere; water carefully and dampen the foliage of the affected plants as little as you can, and your trouble will gradually pass.

PAINT, NOT THRIPS.

A short time ago I wrote you about our crop of cyclamens in 4, 5 and 6-inch pots. The earliest of them were showing an abundance of buds, but as soon as the buds appeared above the foliage they became wrinkled and showed brown and black decayed spots. When the buds opened the petals soon faded and looked as if they had been scorched. The foliage, however, was in as perfect condition as I have ever seen. We were in doubt as to the cause and thought thrips were possibly the cause.

I have decided to write you and tell you what I discovered to be the cause of the damage to our cyclamens. A few days after I sought your advice on the subject, I was shocked to see every bloom on a nice crop of Primula obconica suddenly withered, and also some snapdragon and geranium blooms in the adjoining section similarly affected.

I could not believe that thrips worked this fast against a weekly spraying of diluted nicotine on the cyclamens. After some investigation, I discovered that the gas or fumes which had been rising from the hot water pipes beneath the bench upon which the cyclamens were growing were doing the damage. The pipes had been painted during July, while the bench was removed and later replaced by a new one. It was evident that the wrong kind of paint was used.

We removed the cyclamens and primulas into another house, and now every new bud opens into a perfect flower, but only one-half the crop will be in bloom for holiday sales.

William Van Langendon.

OTHER SIDE OF QUESTION.

I have received The Review for December 9 and notice that certain individuals are still working to do away with Quarantine 37. I am a potato grower, this year growing 5,000 bushels. As you know, potatoes enter this country duty free. Last season, owing to short crop, loss by rot and cold weather, those fortunate enough to have a good crop made money, in spite of the fact that over 39,000,000 bushels were imported during last season.

This year we have a bumper crop, grown with high-priced fertilizer and insecticides and highly paid help, so that we have been offered from 75 cents to $1.40 per bushel for selected No. 1 Long Island stock, with the market from $1.15 to $1.25 since October 25, f. o. b. loading station, with talk of a decline after the holidays. Fertilizer for the season of 1921 is no cheaper, and some companies are charging 25 to 50 cents a ton more than in 1920. It costs from $60 to $61 per ton, cash in advance, for complete 5-8-4 mixed goods.

According to good authority, potatoes can be bought for 40 cents per bushel, delivered at the vessel's side, in various ports in Europe. Many of the growers who cannot grow a large crop per acre, or have failure from rot, are growing at a loss at $1.25. A movement is on foot again to put an import duty on potatoes and thus help the growers.

Now, as I see it, if Quarantine 37 is removed it will place the American bulb growers in the same boat as the potato growers.

I have nearly 1,000,000 planting stock gladiolus bulbs and expect to plant bulblets enough for 500,000 another year. The other day one of the largest growers on Long Island, N. Y., said that present prices were none too high to meet the cost of production and marketing. Last July the largest grower on the island was heard to remark that the price of bulbs had to advance. Three years ago a prominent gladiolus grower said that No. 1 America gladioli had been bought in Europe for $2 per thousand. With the present rate of exchange and Europe looking for a market, it seems to me that stock will come down much below the cost of production.

I realize the fact that much stock cannot be grown here, at least not without a large expenditure of time and money. But, from what little I can read, it seems to me that the question

GHENT GROWERS FACE FAILURE.

Quarantine 37 One Cause.

In 1914 Ghent and its suburbs formed one of the greatest horticultural centers in the world. There were about 1,500 separate establishments, covering an area of about 1,125 acres, with an estimated property value of 55,000,000 francs, or $10,615,000, states Consul General Henry H. Morgan, at Brussels.

Azaleas, rhododendrons, palms, orchids and other plants of a similar nature were cultivated, nearly all for export. The value of this exportation amounted to 14,000,000 francs, $2,702,000, of which one-fifth was sent to the United States. Besides the laborers needed for building and repairing greenhouses and heating establishments, there were 10,000 workmen employed.

The industry owed its prosperity not only to the work and zeal of the horticulturist, but also to the efforts of the Syndicate of Belgian Horticulturists and the aid of the Belgian government in protecting the interests of plant growers, creating new markets and facilitating exportation.

The present situation is most disastrous. During the five years of the war there was practically no exportation. Many of the greenhouses were destroyed by the German army, and other establishments in the suburbs of Ghent were badly damaged during the allied advance preceding the armistice. Whereas before 1914 Germany had been the largest buyer of plants, in 1919 this trade had ought to be considered from the standpoint of the greatest good to the greatest number. Looked at from that angle, I believe the quarantine ought not to be lifted.

J. R. Benjamin.

BEGONIAS FROM SEED.

Can Chatelaine begonias be grown from seed and, if so, what is the best method for starting them?

J. J. W.—Ill.

This useful begonia comes readily from both seed and from cuttings. In the case of seed, sow in pans well drained and containing leaf-mold and sand. Put the rough material over the crocks and screen the upper surface until it is quite fine. Water through a fine rose and then sow the small seeds evenly. Dust a little fine sand over them, but do not water. Place in a warm, moist house; put a sheet of glass over the pans, and cover with paper to protect them from the sun until the seedlings germinate. Be sure not to allow the surface to dry out and always water with extreme care, so as not to wash the surface.

C. W.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—William Wallace, for some years connected with the trade as an employee of various firms, has a number of plants under sash and is building a small house to care for them. He will enter the retail trade here.

been obliterated by the war and the subsequent low purchasing value of the German mark.

Embargo Kills Hope.

In spite of all these disasters, after the armistice the horticulturists hoped to build up their industry, but at the end of 1918 a new disaster arose in the passing of the American law placing an embargo on all plants coming into the United States from Belgium.

In spite of the fact that Belgian plant shippers are willing to reinforce the plant inspection at Ghent and even to pay all expenses of a severe inspection on the arrival of plants in New York, the embargo still stands. The latest disaster was an embargo placed by France, April, 1920, on the importation of all live plants, fruits and flowers. Thanks to the intervention of the Syndicate of Belgian Horticulturists and the aid of the government, this restriction was removed May 19, 1920, but it had already done great harm.

Because of all this, it is not strange that several establishments have been sold. One auctioneer of Ghent has sold 155 establishments since the armistice. Several of the best firms have been obliged to stop business. In one case a large installation in the suburb was sold to a company manufacturing electrical material, and another establishment was bought by an automobile manufacturer. Unless there is a change for the better soon, the horticultural industry of Ghent will disappear in large part.

GROWING BULBS HERE

WHY GLAD GROWERS MOVED.

America's Attraction for Hollanders.

Transplanting one's stock of gladioli from one part of the world to an entirely different region, abandoning various methods of culture, peculiar to climate, weather, soil and labor conditions of the old country," and adapting oneself to environment altogether new, strange and even is a wonderful experience, unique and interesting. This is the experience of P. Vos & Son, now at Mount Clemens, Mich., coming from the Netherlands with a collection of gladioli and settling in the United States. The reasons for this move are interestingly explained by Mr. Vos as follows:

"Since gladioli are grown in almost every civilized country, one might think that these beautiful flowers flourish and can be grown in any climate and soil with equal or nearly equal results. Upon superficial observation one might judge it unwise for a grower of gladioli to go through such expense and trouble as to come 4,000 miles or more from another country for the sole purpose of changing soil and climate. We do not claim to be an absolute authority on the question at stake, but have learned much by actual experience in fifteen years of gladiolus growing.

Wet Weather in Netherlands.

"As the name implies, the Netherlands are low; the French call our native country 'Pays Bas,' i. e., 'Low Lands.' Especially where the Holland bulbs are grown is the surface of the fields below, far below, sea level. Add to this the fact that the narrow strip of land adaptable for bulb culture lies about three miles from the seashore and one will readily understand that the water level must be high and the ground moist. The climate is not at all cheery, either. There are many years that one has practically no summer in Holland. The air is moist and foggy, and anyone who has been in Holland and lived there for any length of time knows the great number of rainy days each year. All growers of gladioli have learned how detrimental to speedy, healthy growth is a continual overdose of moisture. By it, the bulbs, great or small, are checked in their growth and are more subject to disease than under less moist weather conditions. How well we remember that when a summer was exceptionally cold and rainy we would find more bulbs diseased with 'zwart rot,' i. e., black rot, than usual! There were many varieties which tended to disease so badly that we had to cut them from our stock list. Among them are the well known varieties, War, Panama, Mrs. Francis King, Glory of Holland, Mrs. Frank Pendleton, etc. And we could see no other cause of these troubles than the rain and cold climate.

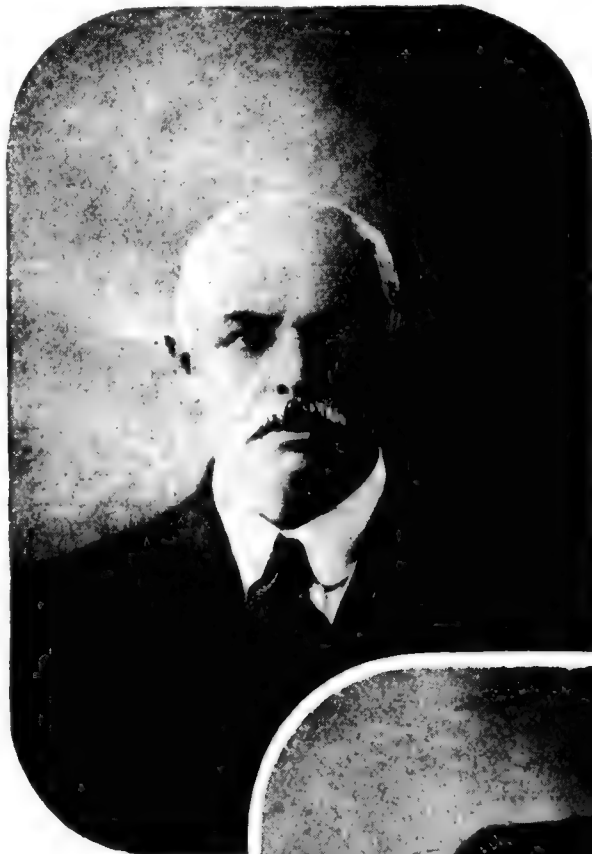

"However, this is not the only reason for our saying farewell to our native country and sailing for the United States. The two years during which we grew our gladioli in Michigan made us aware of the many advantages over our former state of existence and work. One great disadvantage in Holland is the scarcity of land, causing high rent. It is not at all uncommon for a grower to pay one florin, equal to 40 cents, rent for 144 square feet of soil. When we arrived here and saw rows of gladioli planted three feet apart we raised our hands in amazement. 'Such waste of land!' we thought. In Holland it is just the reverse. An open strip of land equal to a row of gladioli is allowed between rows of bulbs three feet wide. All cultivating must therefore be done by hand, crawling on hand and knees through a narrow path a foot wide. The American method has three advantages over the Holland way. First, it provides for easier and quicker cultivation, since it can be done by horse; secondly, it is therefore cheaper as far as labor expenses are concerned, and, thirdly, it gives the plants more soil and air around them to draw those substances from which they greatly need for speedy and vigorous growth.

"Those who have had some experience with the growing of gladioli know that one cannot grow them on the same piece of land year after year. Growers that do so will find that their stock becomes fearfully mixed, because many of the bulblets left in the ground come up subsequently and are dug up with the true stock. America, with its ample resources of land, solves this problem. One can abandon the land where one has grown gladioli for two years and start anew on virgin soil without great loss or expense, retaining thus stock absolutely true to name.

"Then, too, how great an advantage to gladiolus growers is the fine climate and low water level such as we found in Michigan! In spring there is enough rain to keep the ground suitable for planting, giving the dry bulbs enough moisture to commence rooting. The beautiful summers provide ample time for weeding and cultivating, making the rows of dark green gladioli grow by the day, while in fall one does not have to dig the bulbs out of a muddy soil, as we had to do so often in Holland.

Gerrit Vos.

"Summing up all the experience we gathered the last two years in growing gladioli in America and comparing it with the past, we are led to believe that we can grow our gladioli better and more economically in America than in Holland, with more ease and less expense."

AT YEAR'S END

MILLER MAKES ADIEU.

Pleasant Year's Recollections.

With my term as president of the society now at an end, I can look back to an office which has afforded me both pleasure and pride. A close association with my brother officers throughout the year has revealed some earnest and thorough team-work, resulting in the great benefit of our society, and my hearty thanks are tendered to them for their coöperation and cheerful assistance throughout my administration. Particularly am I indebted to our secretary, whose cordial assistance has been at all times available and whose advice has tended to make my duties pleasant and my pathway smooth.

To our executive board is due much credit for their zealous attention to the many details in the management of the society's affairs, the extent of which is only realized when one is called upon to preside over an annual meeting of their body, which calls for two days or more of incessant deliberation. I have been especially fortunate in having the advantage of a board whose personnel included some of the best brains in our membership.

Thanks Rendered.

I have greatly appreciated the assistance rendered by our state vice-presidents, who, it would seem to me, have this year taken more than an ordinary interest in the society's work. It is my hope that a continuance of this interest will be manifest in the work of the appointees of my esteemed successor in office.

To the members of our standing committees I extend my most sincere thanks for their services during the year, rendered so unselfishly and often at great sacrifice of time and frequently at much personal expense. The importance of the work of these committees cannot, in my opinion, be overestimated.

Lastly, my thanks are due to those members who attended the Cleveland convention last August and helped to make the gathering the largest in the history of the society, of which record I am, naturally, more than proud.

It is my earnest hope that the society's aims and objects have been advanced under my presidency in line with the advancements made under the administration of my predecessors in office, and I bespeak for my successor the same courtesy of service and coöperation which has been so liberally accorded to me during my occupancy of an office which will ever be considered by me the greatest honor bestowed by our industry upon anyone engaged in it.

A. L. Miller, Retiring President.

THRIPS RUIN CYCLAMENS.

We had a fine crop of cyclamens in 4, 5 and 6-inch pots. The earliest of them are showing an abundance of buds, but as soon as the buds appear above the foliage they become wrinkled and show brown and black decayed spots. When the buds open, the petals soon fade and look as if they were scorched. I have them on a side bench near the glass, with a little bottom heat at night. I spray them when the sunshine is warm. The foliage is in as perfect condition as I have ever seen. In preparing soil for their final shifting I put a little more sheep manure and horn shavings in it than usual. Could this be the cause? If so, would an application of lime water counteract the fertilizer? If this was the work of thrips, would not the foliage also be affected?

W. V. L.—Wis.

The cause of the trouble with the cyclamens is thrips. These pests work down into the crown of the plants, crippling the flowers before they have time to expand. The best means of fighting the pest is by regular sprayings of diluted nicotine extract two or three times every ten days.

M. P.

CANNAS' RESTING PERIOD.

Do canna roots require a long period of rest, or could a clump of a new variety be transferred to a greenhouse and grown on and dried down only a short time before planting time in the spring, without materially weakening the vitality?

H. S. M.—Okla.

Cannas really do not need a resting period at all, but for the sake of convenience we rest them in our latitude, as we lack a continuance of warm outdoor climate. You can keep clumps growing all winter if you desire. Cannas in pots flower well. You need not be alarmed about the vitality of your plants being lessened if they are not dried off. We dry them off because they are handled more easily when dry.

C. W.

WILTING CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

What is the cause of our Golden Wedding and Grace Burke mums wilting when cut? The soil has only a little rotted cow manure in it. The blooms are fine, some of the Golden Wedding measuring eight inches, but when they are cut and put in water they wither. We run the house about 50 to 52 degrees or cooler. We have never fed them since we planted them; in fact, we never do.

F. & F.—Wis.

I cannot account for the chrysanthemums wilting after being cut, because according to your letter they have received good treatment. It may be that after cutting, the blooms are placed where a draft blows on them. This will cause the trouble.

M. P.

BUDS TAKEN TOO LATE.

Our chrysanthemums were benched as late as July 1 to 5; consequently I thought that in order to grow big blooms I ought to feed them more than formerly. The variety Marigold, being a strong grower, seemed to require more food than the other varieties, so I applied an extra dressing of sheep manure to them. When the blooms matured I was disappointed to find that Marigold was a failure, the blooms being only the size of large asters. Was this caused by overfeeding or were they just run out? Despite heavier feeding, the foliage was not so brittle as that of other varieties, which bloomed splendidly.

W. V. L.—Wis.

I am inclined to believe that the trouble you refer to was due to the buds being taken too late. To get fine, large blooms of Marigold, the buds should be taken by the last week of August.

M. P.

SPRAY INFESTED PLANTS.

I wish to know what is wrong with the mum and pompon plants that I have sent you. Would it be safe to take cuttings from them as they are? We have given them the same attention as we did in former years. However, we purchased some new stock plants this year, and these may have been infested. The pompons became in this condition before they were ready to cut. Before they were half open they began to get black under the blooms.

B. & S.—Pa.

The specimens of chrysanthemums arrived badly infested with thrips and red spider and I would advise that before taking any cuttings you thoroughly clean them by spraying with nicotine extract and give close attention to the general routine of their care.

Geraniums

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Plant Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that the New York School of Agriculture, Morrisville, Madison county, N. Y., submits for registration the new plants here mentioned.

Geranium Purity—Seedling; parentage, Betty x Mrs. Lawrence. Has the same color as Betty and shows the semi-double form of Mrs. Lawrence. Plant dwarf, twelve inches in height; plain leaf, no zone. Free bloomer; flower cluster compact, fourteen and fifteen flowers in a cluster; semi-double; ten full petals and five small petals to a flower; color, greenish white in the bud, opening to pure white and retaining this color; pollen red.

Geranium Morrisville Beauty—Seedling; parentage, Richmond Beauty x S. A. Nutt. Plant a strong grower; zone in leaf fairly distinct. Flowers, fifteen in a cluster, semi-double. Has color of Richmond Beauty and semi-double form of S. A. Nutt. Flower  $2\frac{1}{4}$  inches in diameter. Color, light red shaded to white at center, upper petals containing the most white. Petals irregular in form.

Geranium Babe Marie—Seedling of Mrs. Lawrence, other parent unknown. Plant dwarf, fifteen inches high, a strong grower and free bloomer under ordinary conditions. Leaf has an indistinct zone, some leaves appearing plain. Flower cluster compact, fifteen flowers in a cluster; semi-double; fifteen petals; flower  $2\frac{1}{4}$  inches in diameter; color, salmon pink in center and light pink at edge of petals.

Geranium Olive Charlton—Seedling; parentage unknown (plants became mixed, so that the true parentage was lost). Plant dwarf, twelve inches high; strong grower and free bloomer; plain leaf, no zone. Flowers fifteen in a cluster; cluster large and compact; flowers single; five petals;  $2\frac{1}{4}$  inches diameter; color, salmon, shading to pink at the base of flower; white eye, color deepening in matured flowers. Flowers have good keeping qualities.

Geranium Miss Aggie—Seedling; parentage unknown, owing to mixture. Similar to Betty, except for color of flower. Plant dwarf, twelve inches high; plain leaf, no zone. Flowers fourteen in a cluster; single, five petals; diameter  $2\frac{1}{4}$  inches. Color, light pink shaded with lavender, white at the base of the upper two petals.

Any person objecting to these registrations or to the use of the proposed names is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objections to the registrations, the same will be made three weeks from date, December 15, 1920.

John Young, Sec'y.

MEMORIAL DAY GERANIUMS.

I should like to know how late I could propagate geraniums by putting the cuttings directly in  $2\frac{1}{4}$ -inch pots and, after they have rooted in these, repotting to 4-inch pots. Or would it be better to use 3-inch pots and from there shift to 4-inch? My stock plants have been in 4-inch pots set on soil in the greenhouse during the summer. The cuttings are in good shape. Can I take all the cuttings off the old stock, cutting the old plants down to within four or six inches of the soil, and after knocking all the earth from the roots, repot them in 4-inch pots; then, after breaking (or will they break in this way?) put them in 5-inch pots for Memorial day sales? Will they have time to get their growth and bloom by May 30 if I get my potting of cuttings done by mid-December? D. A. M.—Pa.

December is as late as you can root geranium cuttings and have them make good, bushy, 4-inch pot stock for Memorial day, but you can root cuttings as late as March 1 and have nice plants in 3-inch pots. Trim the leaves quite closely from your cuttings and make the loam in the  $2\frac{1}{4}$ -inch pots quite sandy. Start them on a sunny bench and, if possible, where heating pipes will afford a little bottom heat. Give a soaking watering at the start; then keep them on the dry side until rooted. Never give any shade at any time to geranium cuttings. Indoor cuttings are harder and much less liable to damp off than the more succulent ones produced outdoors. It would be better to shift into 3-inch pots and later into 4-inch.

The stock plants when cut back should be left until they start to break, keeping them on the dry side meanwhile; then shake them out and put into 4-inch pots. If necessary, make a further shift later, or you could probably get the roots into 3-inch pots and then later shift into 4-inch. These will make growth in ample time to produce flowers for Memorial day. Give them a clean, sunny house and let the atmosphere be on the dry side for the best results.

C. W.

PAINTED PIPES TO BLAME.

Almost all of our plants are like the geranium cutting and foliage I have sent you. Our begonias, sweet peas and ferns are likewise infected. Will you please tell me what causes this infection? Brown spots appear and then the plants become brittle and soon die. We had all the steam pipes painted with creosote. Do you think that could have been the cause? C. F. C.—Miss.

I have never met with this trouble before and I am inclined to believe that the painted steam pipes are the cause of your trouble. M. P.

GREEN WORMS ON VIOLETS.

I am sending you some leaves from my violet plants, which have a small green worm on them. If possible, I should like to know how to keep this pest away. H. A. C.—O.

Try spraying with a good nicotine extract, which should be effective. Directions for use, giving the proper strength of mixture for application, will be found on the cans. C. W.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS

STRAWBERRIES UNDER GLASS.

I have a greenhouse, 20x80 feet, and should like to know if the Marshall strawberry would do well in solid benches and what heat it needs. Where can I buy plants? J. E. M.—Mo.

I have had no experience in growing strawberries in solid beds under glass and have never heard of its being attempted. I doubt if you could make it a paying proposition. To achieve success it would be necessary to plant at once, rest the plants in early winter at a low temperature and start up gradually. I should say that your house could be much more profitably employed with some other crop.

I have grown strawberries for forcing for forty years and I have had almost uniform success with them when grown in 6-inch pots and when they have had the necessary heat and rest, placed on shelves or benches in a light house. Such varieties as the one-time popular Vicomtesse Hericourt de Thierri, Keen's Seedling, President, Lanton's Noble, Royal Sovereign, Nick Ohmer and Marshall have all given good results in America. Marshall still stands supreme as a forcing strawberry; it has size, color, flavor and vigor and is withal free-setting.

I should advise you to try pot culture and not plant in beds. Pot up now in 3-inch pots and later shift into 6-inch pots for best success. Careful watering, firm potting, liberal soil and liquid stimulants when well rooted are necessary to build up strong plants; also the removal of all runners as they appear.

ROT IN CELERY.

Last summer I had much trouble with my celery plants turning yellow and decaying, for which I do not know any reason. I use an overhead irrigation system and have well water with a great deal of iron in it. I planted the celery about eight inches apart in double rows, and these double rows were about three feet apart. I trust you will be able to tell me what the trouble is, so that I shall have better success next summer. A. D.—S. D.

Celery, as is well known, does well in a rich soil and an abundant supply of moisture. Even celery, however, can be overwatered, as I have found to my sorrow, particularly where the soil is stiff and water does not percolate readily. In hot weather soaking celery from above has its dangers. If the soil becomes soggy due to poor drainage, or plants remain wet for a long period while the temperature is high, trouble is likely to ensue. I should never water the celery during the day when the sunshine is strong, but rather on a cool, cloudy day. On plants which you have boarded or tied up for blanching you are sure to have rot if plants are wet for a long period when the temperature is high. Overhead watering has many advantages, but, on the whole, conserving moisture by the constant use of the cultivator is safer and better. O. W.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

QUALITY pays best in times of scarcity and of plenty.

DESPITE the gloomy predictions, advance orders for Christmas flowers are heavier in many markets than in previous years.

WAITING for "the turn of the year" is the affliction of most lines of business.
Once the turn is passed, renewed activity is looked for.

No one, grower or store proprietor, be-grudged a good workman his full due, but all welcome relief from the exorbitant demands of unskilled labor.

SEND clippings of your Christmas advertisements to The Review. Was there some feature of this year's business worthy of comment? Tell us of it.

THE man who does just enough to "get by" and no more, whether it be for his employer or for customers, is headed in the wrong direction on the road to success.

INQUIRIES regarding houses for construction next spring indicate a building boom, say the construction companies.
Many large growers are planning additional glass area.

DON'T wait for the other fellow to help you coöperate in business improvement.
The golden rule, which is the essence of coöperation, can be followed without waiting for agreements or organizations.

SUCH is the ironic lot of the greenhouse man. He who congratulated himself two months ago on ample coal for the winter now bewails the fact that his bins are full of high-priced stuff, while he who previously moaned his inability to get fuel is now able to purchase his supply at, in some cases, less than he paid last year.

THE production of plants and cut flowers would have increased, in something like the increase in production in other popular lines during the last two years of free spending, had it not been for the scarcity of trained growers. The slowing down of other industries has sent some good help back to our trade, but otherwise there has been little increase in the trade's body of capable men. Consequently, production is not likely to increase rapidly, nor are the wages of competent growers likely to fall fast or far.

SKILL comes from knowledge and should be well repaid. If it is not, where is the incentive to acquire the requisite knowledge?

It will not be long before California will be supplying the trade with large quantities of the stock heretofore obtained from Europe.

TRIFLING sums on a firm's books cause as much work as large amounts and it is a matter of business economy as well as courtesy that they be paid promptly.

MANY well informed men in the plant business believe that prices of both nursery stock and greenhouse plants are due for an early drop in keeping with the readjustment of prices in other commodities.

WITH its December 4 issue the Gardeners' Chronicle, of London, published a colored supplementary illustration of Carnation Gorgeous, which was raised by Peter Fisher, of Ellis, Mass., who also sent out Enchantress, Beacon and Benora.

IN the country towns a large number of those who start in the florists' business have previously been engaged in some other occupation. At first they use the letter-heads of the old business and then they wonder why wholesale florists will not accord them wholesale prices. The first thing for any florist to do is to get a printed letter-head.

THERE has been heavy loss of cyclamens this season from a fungous disease new to the growers. Some growers have escaped, but where the disease has made its appearance the destruction has been from half to the whole stock. One plantsman has stated that the plants lost on his place, if he had them in good shape now, would have brought him $15,000 to $18,000 this week and his case is not exceptional in his locality.

THE CHRISTMAS OUTLOOK.

The doubt that delayed almost all orders for Christmas flowers in the wholesale markets seemed to have dissipated by a week before the holiday. Instead of hesitation, there was such strong belief in heavy Christmas business that many houses had all the orders they cared to take for most items. Plants-men had sold all their available stock and supply houses felt a strong call for holiday materials.

It was evident long ago that the variety in plants for Christmas buyers would not be large this year and it proves to be scant indeed. Poinsettias are not so numerous as they have been, and cyclamens suffered heavily in some sections from a fungous trouble no one seems to have identified. Berried plants were few. Solanums seemed to be the only item of which the stock was generally large. Some stray araucarias commanded high prices. Ericas were well done in many places. Begonias and primulas were prepared for the moderate-priced buyers, but no stress was laid upon them for the holidays, since it was felt they would be as good property later.

Cut flowers also showed a lack of variety. Roses were in large supply, of course, and the cuts were generally of good size, although a greater number of growers are making no attempt to crop at Christmas, but counting on quality to bring as good returns as the cut comes.
The longest-stemmed flowers were the last to be moved, the demand being keenest for medium lengths. Carnations were affected by weather conditions in some localities, as were sweet peas to a marked degree. Violets have seldom been fewer.

The shortness of the supply naturally caused an increase in the use of artificial materials. Never have they been so largely employed. Not only did department stores advertise baskets and bouquets of artificial flowers from $2 to $15, but florists in many cases filled their windows with them. The many effects to be made with the large variety of stuff of this sort to be had attracted the notice of many shoppers.

As the big day drew nearer it became increasingly apparent that this was not to be the apathetic occasion many predicted, but a Christmas that would fill the florist's store with buyers.

THE POINT OF THE MATTER.

The use of artificial flowers, painted and dyed grasses, prepared foliages and other materials whose use many in the trade decry is more general and more extensive this Christmas than has ever been the case before. Growers of plants and cut flowers have expressed not only disapproval but alarm over it.
Some retailers deplore it, while others shrug their shoulders and proceed, in their own words, "to give the public what it wants."

The difference in the attitude of various members of the trade on this matter is one of reasoning methods. One says the public is responsible for the increase in the demand for artificial stuff. The other says the florist is responsible because he educates the public to the use of it.

But the public hasn't so much to do with the matter as the trade itself. Let the public buy more artificial stuff if it wants to. But florists' desire should be to sell more flowers. If we don't sell flowers, we lose our reason for existence.
The department stores and novelty shops can sell artificial stuff, and if we cater particularly to that trade we are only losing our identity as sellers of live flowers and plants.

There is small reason for alarm, however. The public will always want and always buy real flowers. The artificial will not supersede the natural. Rather will the reverse be true when the latter become more plentiful. Production is at present curtailed; the demand for plants and flowers has rapidly grown, while glass area has increased little, if at all.
Let's try to grow more flowers and better flowers; then artificial stuff will assume its proper place in the florist's establishment, as a useful accessory. The urgent cry should be, not, particularly, less use of artificial stuff, but greater production of flowers and plants.

EAST AND WEST.

There are indications that the knowledge there is an effective way of moving surplus stock may be of increasing value as time goes on, so letters like these possess new value:

Good results are coming in almost daily from our Classified ad in The Review.—Pfeiffer Nur-ery, Winona, Minn., December 12, 1920.

The first ad cleaned out over 3,000 chrysanthemum stock plants; had to return ten checks.—
Lincoln Gardens, Tama, Ia., December 11, 1920.

I have used The Review's Classified ads for nearly twenty years and they always bring orders.—L. E. Williams, Exeter, N. H., December 11, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

Erick A. Erickson.

After forty years of loyal and efficient service as foreman at Peterson Nursery, Chicago, Erick A. Erickson died December 18 and was buried December 21. Mr. Erickson was 66 years of age. He left Sweden in 1879 and made his way almost directly to Peterson Nursery, where he lived on the nursery property for thirty-five years and made a wide circle of acquaintances in the nursery trade. Mr. Erickson removed from the nursery grounds about five years ago to establish his family in a home of their own, where he leaves a widow, a son and two daughters. His death occurred in a hospital, following an operation on his stomach.

Mrs. Marie Gude DeShields.

Marie Gude DeShields, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., died Sunday evening, December 19, at the age of 30.

In addition to her husband she is survived by her mother, father, sister and three brothers.

Mrs. John C. Hatcher.

Mary A. King, wife of John C. Hatcher, of Amsterdam, N. Y., died unexpectedly, Friday, December 17, at the family home at Hoffmans, N. Y. Mrs. Hatcher has been suffering for some time with an affection of the heart, but was apparently in good health when she retired Thursday evening. As she was about to arise Friday morning she was seized with the final attack, and death was almost instantaneous.

Mrs. Hatcher was born at Hunton, Kent, England, and was married at Croydon, Surrey, England, to Mr. Hatcher, February 20, 1870. They came to America on their wedding trip and were so well pleased with the country that they determined to settle here. Amsterdam and its vicinity have been their home practically since that time.

She was a member of St. Ann's church and in earlier years was active in its Aid Society. Last February Mr. and Mrs. Hatcher observed their golden wedding anniversary. Seven children were born to them, all of whom preceded the mother in death except one son, George Stanley Hatcher. Surviving are the husband, one son, three grandsons, a brother, Charles P. King, of Oriskany Falls, N. Y., and a sister, Miss Harriet A. King, who lives at the Hatcher home.

Jacob Boxer.

Jacob Boxer, manager of the Central Floral Co., Denver, Colo., died Friday, December 17, following a short illness with pneumonia. Mr. Boxer was a comparatively young man in the business, being only 28 years of age. He had been manager of this company for the last two years and was widely known throughout business circles.

He is survived by his father, mother, one brother and a sister, with whom he made his home at 1300 Hooker street, Denver.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

There was steadily increasing business last week, which, with a reduction in the supply, due to colder weather and the holding back for Christmas, resulted in fairly clean iceboxes every night. Shipping was active and was, relatively, so much better than city business as to cause widespread comment. Why is it out-of-town demand is so increasingly stronger than local trade? No one seems to have the answer. But it seems plain Chicago is not consuming so many flowers, in proportion to its population, as are many other cities.

Last week's activity, too, was made greater by the booking of Christmas orders. When desks were closed Saturday night in the wholesale district it was with a general feeling of relief and satisfaction. The success of the Christmas season seemed to have been assured. Indeed, it was the general report that the number of orders then on file for Christmas was greater by a considerable margin than on any previous December 18. Some wholesalers said their orders did not average so large as last year and others said the buyers were staying off the more costly grades, but practically all agreed that they never before had so many orders on file a week before Christmas. Several houses said they were booked up to the limit of their probable supply on practically everything but long roses—the proportion of long stock is greater than ever this Christmas and selling slowed up when the 35-cent grade was passed.

One interesting feature was the way the city buyers took to cover last week. Quite a number of them had stated more or less publicly that they did not intend to place orders in advance at high prices, purposing, instead, to take their chance on the market December 24, but when they saw how the out-of-town orders were pouring in, most of them thought discretion the better part of valor and placed orders for much or all the stock they expect to need. There are, however, a few who are sitting tight, counting that the market will not be stronger Christmas eve than it has been thus far. Probably they are right so far as prices are concerned, but it seems open to question if the stock they will get will be of the most satisfactory character. First-class stores can not afford to take too many chances in that respect.

Roses were rather plentiful last week, the unusually warm weather prior to December 17 having brought on some of the Christmas crops a few days earlier than the growers wanted. Roses, that is, pink roses, will be the principal item of Christmas supply. There will be scarcely any local Beauties, the supply turning out to be less than expected. Neither red roses nor Beauties will cut much figure this Christmas. Columbia and Premier will be the reliance. It looks as though there will be enough of the longest grades at the price, but a shortage otherwise.

Many wholesalers stopped taking carnation orders several days ago. No previous Christmas has seen such a shortage of corsage flowers. The sweet peas dropped their buds at just the wrong time. There are practically no local violets any more and the shipments from the east are negligible. No Brunners are to be had from California. Orchids and gardenias are so few and dear as to cut little figure in the average retail store. This leaves valley in undisputed possession of the field.

There are more mums and pompons this week than in any previous season and, with the shortage of other flowers, they are selling well, although there are indications the public is tiring of them after three months. Paper Whites, Soleil d'Or, stevia, lilies, mignonette, calendulas, etc., are in the usual supply and likely to move at fair prices because of the limited variety of stock available.

There is little holly and boxwood is selling unusually well.

Bouquet green is selling at a record price this week, 20 cents per pound, with small supply and limited demand. Holly is scarce and commands $9 per case.

Weather Costs Trade Thousands.

The weather has been black and cold for days. It has cost the trade many thousands of dollars through decreasing the expected supply of flowers and lowering the quality. The weather scarcely could have been less favorable. It has hit the sweet pea growers an especially heavy blow. The rose growers will have a good Christmas, but hardly anyone else in this trade will.

Growers Elect National Delegates.

At the meeting at the Hotel Randolph Thursday evening, December 16, the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago, which holds charter No. 1 as a local branch of the National Flower Growers' Association, elected its delegates to the meeting to be held at Washington, D. C., January 27. Since the organization is entitled to one delegate for each twenty-five members or fraction thereof, five were chosen. They are: President Joseph Kohout, Secretary Otto Amling, August Poehlmann, George J. Ball and Henry Wehrmann. With William J. Keimel, president of the national organization, Chicago should have a good representation at this important meeting next month.

The organization voted to show its appreciation of Secretary Amling's services by passing a resolution providing remuneration for his office at the rate of $1 per member per year. The association now has 107 members.

The meeting to be held January 20 will inaugurate a series of exhibition nights, the flower for which will be selected at the meeting preceding. Carnations will be shown next month.

Peter Pearson, who had been exploring Park Ridge December 12, brought in the names of two new members from that town, Carl Schramm and Joseph Carnehl. Upon the approval of the membership committee, they were duly elected members.

Frank Oechslin's Christmas.

Christmas brings to Frank Oechslin a few days of peace, for then the rush of moving out the large stock of plants for the holiday from his ranges in Austin and Forest Park is over. Though the stock was, as in the case of most plant growers, not so large as in some years, there was more than enough to

For YOUR

NEW YEAR'S TRADE

It will not be safe to count on a large supply of stock for New Year's—there is every indication flowers will be scarce throughout the middle-west, and in unusually great demand. It will be wise to insure a reasonable supply by placing an order with us now, with additions to be wired as you keep on selling.

Amling's will have a good quantity of high grade flowers of all kinds for New Year's, but will be strongest on the better grades of Roses—our cuts had not quite reached their height for Christmas and will be at their heaviest in the next few days.

REMEMBER—Amling's prices never are higher than others ask IF able to supply an equal grade of goods. Lower prices mean inferior stock, inferior service and inferior dependability.

do, for the forty-odd men and the six big trucks were kept busy on the way to and from the leading Chicago flower stores.

At the Austin range, in addition to a large stock of foliage plants for year-around sale, were three houses of poinsettias, fine, well colored stock. There were some splendid peppers and cherries, too. A small stock of araucarias, as fine as one could wish, was on the way out, to be replaced Heaven knows how. The planted baskets showed skill in selection and expertness in arrangement. In the storage houses were 15,000 lilies ready to fill the emptied benches for Easter.

At Forest Park, where the atmosphere is clearer, are more blooming plants. Here were the famous cyclamens, which filled three sections 30x300, one 36x300, and four 20x150. Though having better success than most growers with these plants, Mr. Oechslin noted the trouble that all cyclamen growers experienced this year, the cause and cure for which no one seems to have discovered. Some splendidly colored Patten and Chate-laine begonias were in excellent shape for the holiday.

The old houses of the Forest Park range, three in number, are filled with clean, healthy Boston ferns, which go out as soon as they are large enough. For all sorts of foliage plants Mr. Oechslin reports an exceedingly heavy call during the autumn.

But the peace brought by Christmas is short-lived, for the space is immediately to be filled with stock for Easter, for spring bedding and for next Christmas. For the latter there are 50,000 cyclamen seedlings coming on. Geraniums, ivy, etc., are for spring bedding. For Easter there are 20,000 roses waiting in a storage shed for bench space. Spiræas, hydrangeas and plenty of bulbous stock will also be grown for the big day of spring. Every square foot of the two ranges, each containing about 80,000 feet of glass, is working to make money to meet the high expenses the grower has today.

Various Notes.

The A. L. Randall Co. had another successful auction sale, mostly of furniture, December 18, and many florists took the opportunity to pick up pieces for store, office or home.

If the village board of Niles Center passes an ordinance the draft of which was published in the local newspaper, no more greenhouses can be erected within the corporate limits of that village. A hearing was set for Thursday evening, December 23, at the board rooms at Niles Center.

That the general supply of carnations in this market this Christmas does not exceed half last year's supply is the opinion of August F. Poehlmann. A part of the decrease is accounted for by some reduction in the bench space given to carnations this season, several large growers having gone into other lines, but Mr. Poehlmann thinks the Christmas shortage is attributable in greater part to summer and autumn growing conditions, which brought a heavy early crop and will bring another a little later, but which left Christmas in between.

Alois Frey returned to his home at San Fernando, Cal., December 19. He has large quantities of freesias planted on his new place and expects to have close to a million bulbs of his two named varieties to market next summer.

At his greenhouses, at 5332 Bowmanville avenue, Elmer E. Wehrmann had a good Christmas cut of roses. He has approximately 24,000 plants of Russell and Premier and some Sunburst.

John Enders was the recipient of a signal honor December 18, when he was elected president of Dearborn Chorus, an organization known to every Mason.

Why is Sunburst throwing so many crooked stems this season? Some growers have the rose's initial in the neck of each flower.

Cassimir Gouza was in cities to the east, as far as Pittsburgh, last week in the interest of the cut flower department of the A. L. Randall Co.

C. J. Michelsen was able to return home December 18 for the first night in more than a month, June having recovered from the attack of scarlet fever which had kept the family in quarantine.

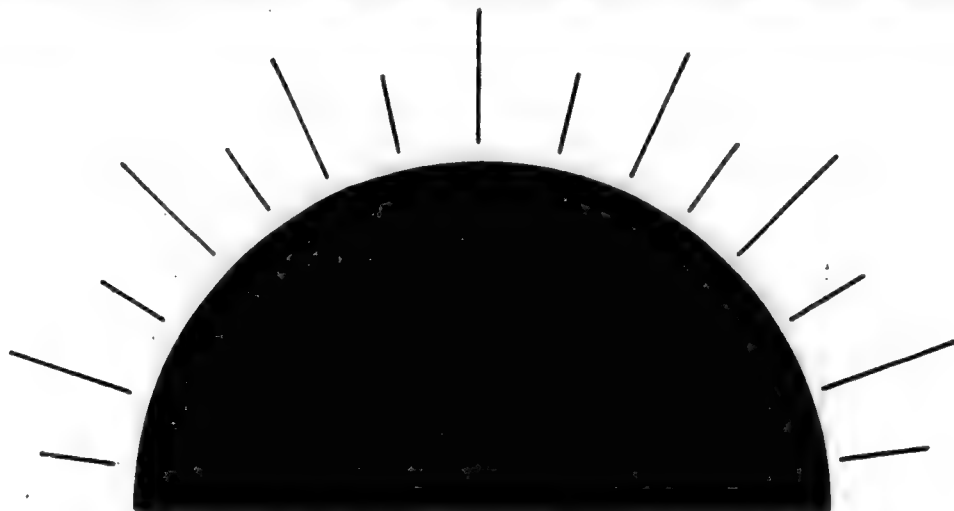

C. L. Sherer spent several days on the road last week, for the Chicago Flower Growers' Association. He visited several cities between Chicago and Pittsburgh and found the trade everywhere doing a satisfactory business and preparing for a big Christmas.

Christmas means nothing to Henry Wehrmann this year, for at Melrose Park there are no sweet peas. The dark weather absolutely cleaned the vines of buds.

Probably there is no store in Chicago which enjoys the patronage of people better able to pay good prices, but Edward Mallinson, manager of the Fleischman Floral Co., says he deplores high costs and the resultant high retail charges. It is his belief that continued high prices will "kill the game," but of course he recognizes that growers still need the money the same as retailers do.

With his lawyer, W. J. Keimel has been busy revising the primary draft of the by-laws of the National Flower Growers' Association, of which he is president, to put the document in better legal form. It will stand as adopted at Cleveland, save that the matter of dues will be decided upon at the meeting at Washington January 27.

this vicinity, but Roswell Schupp says it returns more money per square foot of bench than any other sort at the A. H. Budlong range. Grown in a limited way, two houses, it has done well there.

Artificial flowers encroached more upon the florists' business this Christmas than ever before, in the opinion of Peter Pearson. He would like to see drastic measures taken against them in the trade.

The A. L. Randall Co. has had a highly successful year and plans to celebrate its conclusion with a dinner, entertainment and dance during the salesmen's annual convention, to be held between Christmas and New Year's. The festivities will occur in the north dining room of the Palmer House on the evening of December 30.

Mrs. Henry Arnold met with a serious accident December 20, at the corner of State and Lake streets, falling backward into the basement through an opening in the sidewalk.

T. E. Waters says the Christmas business in supplies has made a splendid total, but that it resulted in an unusual amount of work because of the disposition of the retailers to avoid overstocking; instead of ordering a full supply in advance, many of them ordered three or four times as the need developed. The last-minute orders were notably numerous.

The Inquiring Reporter, who prints thumb-nail interviews in one of the daily papers each day, asked W. F. Schofield, the North State street retailer, "What do you think of the Sabbath blue laws?" Mr. Schofield's answer, printed with his portrait December 20, was: "The trou-

The Christmas outlook at the time of writing is good. There have been a number of consecutive days of clear, crisp weather and, as a consequence, rather more flowers will be available than at one time seemed probable. So far, the weather has been only moderately cold, in marked contrast with a year ago, and this has been favorable for the plantmen, who all report a good demand, with stocks of some sorts entirely sold out well in advance of the #### Remarkable Orchid Display.

Each month during the present year, A. C. Burrage, of Beverly Farms, Douglas Eccleston, superintendent, has made an extensive display of orchids at Horticultural hall and they have been easily the star features of the shows of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. The closing display of the year, December 18 and 19, was well advertised in the Boston papers and attracted many thousands of visitors. A group sixty feet in length with two fronts was staged in the center of the lecture hall. Phoenix and other palms were dotted down the center and among, or directly below, them hung phalaenopsis, oncidiums and cymbidiums, while groups or individual specimens were staged below them. Artificial rockwork was used on the fronts and green sheet moss hid all receptacles from view. This group was the best arranged of the year and contained a great wealth of choice material.

Some fine varieties were seen. Among the hundreds shown were Odontoglossum crispum Rouge Dragon, Insleayi and Diana; Phalaenopsis amabilis, exceedingly fine, and Schilleriana and Lindenii; Vandas Luzonica, Sanderiana and cerulea; Miltonia Bleuana; Cattleya Trianae A. C. Burrage, a magnificent specimen with mammoth flowers, awarded a silver medal; C. Rhoda x Hardyana Maggie,

In another group were some mammoth plants of the old Cypripedium insigne. The whole display was wonderful and the wealth of bloom, at a time when orchids, outside of cypripediums, are scarce, was truly remarkable. It is sincerely to be hoped that Mr. Burrage, who is the president-elect of both the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and the new American Orchid Society, will continue these displays in 1921.

ous funeral orders last week and had many designs for the funeral of the late George E. Keith, the well known Brockton shoe manufacturer. For the Chase funeral, at Yarmouth Port, Mass., they had a large automobile load of fine pieces.

Penn the Florist, in one of his large show windows, has a handsome model of a United States cruiser with a background of massed poinsettias. In front are well flowered plants of Saintpaulia ionantha.

N. M. Silverman, on Winter street, always keeps an attractive show window. Pansies, orchids, gardenias, bouvardias, violets and other choice flowers are shown in profusion and the display of Christmas plants is unusually fine.

At the store of John J. O'Brien are to be seen some remarkable pans of branched poinsettias, with foliage to the soil, wonderful cyclamens, azaleas, ardisias, oranges, ericas, camellias and a grand assortment of other plants and flowers. Evergreens in tubs make a fine display on the sidewalks bordering the store.

violets, planted last June, which he says are smothered with blooms. He has had no spider on them, while those who grew them outside had great trouble with this pest. The method of culture for single violets is quite the opposite of that practiced for other flowers. Mr. Comley has six houses of roses, now 5 years old, which he will replant next season, also several houses devoted to carnations, stevia and chrysanthemums.

Of sweet peas he has some fairly large houses and is getting a fine crop of Spencers at present.

William A. Hastings, the popular salesman at the Boston Flower Exchange, has the sympathy of the trade in the death of his mother, Mrs. Catherine E. Hastings, who died December 14, at Hudson, Mass., at the ripe age of 86, at the home of her son, B. W. Hastings. Mrs. Hastings, who was a most estimable lady, had been in failing health for three years. Interment was at Hudson and many of Mr. Hastings' friends in the trade sent floral tributes.

Justice Wait, in the Boston Superior court, December 16, dismissed a bill brought by J. V. Beekman to restrain Charles J. Schermer, of the Davis Dalz Copper Co., from erecting a greenhouse to be used for noncommercial purposes on a lot adjoining Beekman's in Newton, Mass. The greenhouse planned will be 48x48 feet, built of iron, concrete and glass, and Judge Wait said: "Such a greenhouse will not be an eyesore and will cause no harm to Beekman, other than the disappointment of not being able to prevent its erection." It is interesting to know from such a judicial mind that greenhouses attached to suburban homes cannot be classified as "blots on the landscape," as some cranks aver.

Alfred R. Hutson, head salesman for W. H. Elliott & Sons Co., is at business again after a week in bed with the grip.

The Beacon Florist, John Eisemann proprietor, located in one of Boston's largest retail stores on Beacon street, does a tremendous business in plants, Christmas wreaths and baskets for the holidays. The sales made here would surprise anyone who supposes that flower shops in big retail stores do not have much business. Mr. Eisemann filled several large funeral orders last week.

J. O. Thilow, of Philadelphia, will give a stereopticon lecture on "A Trip to the South Sea Islands" on behalf of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club at the big joint meeting of agricultural and allied bodies at Horticultural hall February 8. J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, Pa., will lecture at the same meeting on behalf of the New England Nurserymen's Association.

Everyone looks for a good Christmas business, but few are optimistic enough to look for a record-beater. With over twenty-five per cent of the local factories and mill works idle, many millions of dollars in deposits tied up in the banks which handled Ponzi's funds, and a general slacking up in activities, it is reassuring to know that the flower trade is nearly as good as it was a year ago.

Paul Winter, of New York, representing Sutton & Sons, Reading, Eng., was among last week's callers on the trade.

At the establishment of the W. W. Edgar Co., Waverley, the stock of some 500 heavily fruited Otaheite oranges is a prime feature. These plants are in short supply this season. A few years ago Boston bought nearly all its orange plants in and around New York. Now such firms as Thomas Roland, W. W. Edgar Co., Wollrath's, Borowski & Sons and Janiten & Kunan grow their own and reciprocate by sending quantities of high-grade cyclamens to New York growers and retailers. W. N. C.

much stevia. The other flowers generally sold at last week's figures.

It looks as though the rose would have no rival among cut flowers at Christmas. There will be more roses and fewer of all the other varieties of flowers than ever before. Beauties have already been sold up almost to the safety point. Russell is certain to be oversold in the medium grades. There are heavy crops of Premier and Columbia. The lower grades, so desirable, are scarce in both varieties, the stock being mostly disbudded. Maryland and Ophelia are in fair supply. There are only a few of the two Killarneys.

Carnations are scarce, scarcer than anybody likes, because they have always been a great stand-by at Christmas. Chrysanthemums are over, thank goodness! No one wants them at Christmas. There are still some pompons, led by Christmas Gold. Other flowers and their asking prices may be found in the price list. The novelty of the week was Golden Spur narcissi. The price, $12 per hundred, shows the possibilities outside of roses at this season.

To All the Florists,
Dear Friends:

We wish every one of you a very Merry Christmas and a very Happy and Prosperous New Year. We would like to write separately to each one of you so you would know that we appreciate the many courtesies you have shown us, only you have kept us so busy getting off your orders right up to the last minute that we have to do it this way.

We want to thank you heartily for your confidence in us as shown by your generous patronage. Should we have been unfortunate enough to vex you in any way, please think kindly of us and believe that we did our best to please you.

With every good wish, we remain, ready been erected. Mr. Coates has been a grower for this market for over twenty-five years.

The dullness in other lines has been of great benefit to the trade in prompt express service at this time. The M. Rice Co. stated, December 18, that orders received that morning had gone out by express.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Last week brought little improvement in the cut flower market. With supply at a low mark and demand in proportion, it is rather hard to imagine what form an improvement would take. Clearances have been fairly easy, except as regards a few items not generally considered as staples. Taken all in all, the situation could hardly be considered as bad, although, admittedly, far from normal.

Monday, December 20, arrivals were quite light, lighter than usual for the first day of the week, and buyers are throwing out the usual hints as to "pickling" for the Christmas trade. It may be said for the grower, however, that plenty of stock is coming in that could easily be held, so there is not much evidence to warrant the suspicion. Again, during recent periods of unusual demand the growers' returns generally have shown better results from the markets a day or so in advance of a holiday. Experiences, in fact, are in favor of uninterrupted cutting and shipping, and it is believed that the wise ones follow this plan.

Roses are not in heavy supply, but, outside of short grades, arrivals more than fill the demand. Long-stemmed flowers of excellent quality are slow to clear. American Beauty specials have advanced to $150 to $175 per hundred, and other roses show advances all along the line.

In the hybrid teas, Premier and Columbia are of noticeably high quality, the top grades having stems long enough to carry them into the "big" rose class. Hadley and other reds are meeting the best demand, which is, of course, natural at this season.

Carnations are not in great supply, making clearances fairly easy. The price range is about $5 to $8 per hundred, with superior flowers of Mrs. C. W. Ward bringing $10 and Laddie $12.

Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., 116-118 Seventh St., Pittsburgh, Pa.
Prices Right

Much short-stemmed stock continues to arrive, which is at times hard to move.

The supply of cattleyas is not generous, and arrivals meet a fair demand. The price range is $1 to $2 per flower, with culls at 50 to 75 cents. Spray orchids are not in large supply. Cypridiums are more plentiful, but the demand for them is not active, and many sales are made at prices below quotations to move stock. Gardenias are plentiful at $1 to $6 per dozen.

Easter lilies are not at all plentiful and are still held at $20 to $25 per hundred flowers for stock on the green side. Lily of the valley is in fair supply and moves slowly at $5 to $12 per hundred sprays.

Not many sweet peas are available and there is nothing in the quality of arrivals to boast about. The Christmas supply will be extremely short. The supply of violets is also short and prices remain at $1 to $1.50 per hundred.

A few chrysanthemums are arriving, but attract little attention. Paper White narcissi are arriving in large quantity and move slowly at three bunches for $1 and 50 cents per bunch for extra fine flowers.

Miscellaneous flowers do not make a large list and arrivals move slowly. Pansies, daisies, bouvardias, calendulas, ageratums, callas, mignonette and myosotis compose the list.

Various Notes.

The body of William Lappe, in business at Two Hundred and Fifty-second street and Albany road, the Bronx, was found Sunday night, December 19, hanging from a dining room transom in his home. He had for some time been a sufferer from nervous troubles.

A meeting of the chairmen of the different sections of the New York Allied Florists' Association was held at the secretary's office, 43 West Eighteenth street, Saturday afternoon, December 18. Owing to the nearness of the holidays, there was not a full attendance, but reports showed that matters were progressing and a start in the direction of actual publicity might soon be made.

A semitropical appearance is given to the store of J. J. Coan, in the Eighteenth street flower market, by well fruited boughs of the ponderosa lemon at the entrance. The boughs are sold for decorative purposes.

C. A. Ladiges, the Amsterdam avenue florist, was relieved of his watch and chain while looking over the holly market on West street last week.

The incorporation of Odink & Walther is announced, with a capital stock of $5,000. The firm is located at 1 West

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial, you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The-Market.

The indications are that it will be a veritable green Christmas, with little prospect of snow. There have been few flurries so far this winter. All kinds of small greens are in abundance, of exceptionally good quality and at reasonable prices, which do not range so high as a year ago. Trees are below the usual normal supply, but wreaths and ropings are fully equal to the demand. In wreaths, laurel, holly, hemlock and creeping jenny are the leaders. The increasing demand for the made-up artificial baskets, bouquets, etc., is manifested this season, and dyed grasses, leaves, etc., have had a big sale.

Funeral work continues to furnish general activity for the stores, while small weddings with their attendant parties, receptions, etc., help the situation. The market is somewhat limited in cut flowers. However, roses, carnations, violets, chrysanthemums and occasional novelties keep things moving.

Various Notes.

The Lowell Avenue Greenhouses, operated by Cohen Bros., have a corner of W. S. Pino's store for the holidays and report good business.

The scarcity of good palms and other decorative plants is the source of general criticism by the dealers.

Ed. Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., scoured New England for novelties, and had some fine offerings that sold quickly.

Macnair had a handsome window last week, one display being artistically arranged with partridge berry bowls, Paper Whites in bloom with a background of ferns, palms, etc., and bright red ribbons, streamers and dyed grasses.

Johnston Bros. had the largest force of clerks this year in their history, yet every one was busy. W. H. M.

QUALITY BOX MAKERS

have been made this week. Holly and holly wreaths also have made up part of the sales. The supply of roses and carnations is not at all heavy. The quality generally is fine, particularly in the long-stemmed grades. American Beauty roses and violets seem to be scarce in this market, while there appear to be no sweet peas at all. The supply of orchids is not large, but they meet with ready sale, while Easter lilies are also scarce.

Various Notes.

A red sport of Carnation Laddie has shown itself in the large carnation section at the Crystal Farm range of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. The cut flowers are of good size and the color scarlet.

John Harris, of Harris Bros., on Market street, was united in marriage Sunday evening, December 12, to Miss Procos, of Chicago. The event took place at Hotel Chatham. An elaborate celebration took place after the wedding ceremony and covers were laid for over 500. The entire ceremony was carried out in Greek. Mr. Harris has been a cut flower merchant in Pittsburgh for the last twenty years and is well known among the trade.

Albert Burki and Miss Roma Burki left for Los Angeles, Cal., Thursday, December 16, to spend Christmas with their father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Burki.

Soft coal is again plentiful. Prices have tumbled to $3.75 per ton, f. o. b. mine in Pittsburgh territory.

John Gerwig, son of Jacob Gerwig, an employee of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., died Monday, December 13.

Seed Trade News

President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

AMONG the earliest of the catalogues for the spring of 1921 is that of the Ford Seed Co., Ravenna, O., which has just been received. Though so early an arrival, it bears no evidence of undue haste, but every evidence of careful editing.

A NEW bulb farm is being started at Fortuna, Cal., some fifty miles south of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, at McKinleyville. The owner is Lesley Smith, manager of the Humboldt Evergreen Co., of Dyersville, Cal. Mr. Smith is quite familiar with bulb farming around Santa Cruz. For the last four or five years he has been experimenting with certain kinds of bulbs in Humboldt county and finds that they do much better there, both as to flower and bulb. Last year 100,000 Godfrey callas were planted. This year 40,000 Paper White narcissi, 30,000 Von Zion daffodils and 20,000 Emperor daffodils were added. The Von Zion variety grows especially well in Humboldt county.

MAY MODIFY QUARANTINE.

Both for those who hope for modifications in the plant quarantine and for those who support the present strict exclusion, there is interest in a paragraph contained in a recent letter sent from Lisse, Holland, by Tromp Bros., to bulb buyers here. It is as follows:

"One thing more we want to bring to your notice, viz.: that again efforts are being made to modify the Quarantine Act No. 37, which might have success, the Agricultural Department of Washington itself making inquiries as to the possibility of granting the importation into the U. S. of more kinds of bulbs of the same clean style as hyacinths and tulips, such as Iris hispanica, gladioli, etc. Our customers do well keeping their eyes open as to these possibilities."

G. Overduin, representing Tromp Bros., has arrived at New York to remain until May.

SEED HELD WARRANTED.

Unless Disclaimer Is Used.

The now general use of express disclaimers of warranty in the sale of seeds is again justified by the result of a lawsuit just passed upon by the Supreme Court of Minnesota—the case of Johnson vs. Foley Milling & Elevator Co.

Defendant sold a quantity of seed wheat to plaintiff, representing, as the court finds, that the grain was "genuine Marquis wheat." It is also found that, relying upon this representation, plaintiff sowed the wheat and reaped a harvest of inferior bearded wheat.

Affirming the judgment in favor of plaintiff for $296, the Supreme court says:

"The doctrine that a bargain and sale of a chattel of a particular description imports a contract or warranty that the article sold is of that description, is sustained by a great weight of authority. And where a dealer sells an article describing it by name, the identity of which is not known to the purchaser, he must understand that the latter relies on the description as a representation by the seller that it is the thing described. So on a sale of seed by name a warranty that the seed was of the kind named arises. We think the jury was justified under the evidence and instructions in finding that the defendant warranted the wheat sold to the plaintiff to be Marquis wheat and that the seed delivered was not of the kind named.

Defining Warranty.

"The contention that the court erred in defining a warranty can hardly be sustained. After outlining what the claims of the parties were, the court instructed the jury as follows:

"To constitute a warranty it is not necessary that the word 'warranty' or its precise equivalent be used, nor is it necessary that it should be in writing. It is enough if the seller definitely undertakes that the thing sold shall be of a certain kind or a certain quality, and any positive statement of fact, not of opinion, that this was Marquis wheat, made by defendant to Johnson in the course of the conversation leading to the sale which would show that the defendant intended to bind itself by its statements and which was understood and relied upon by the buyer, constitutes a warranty."

Rights of Buyer and Seller.

"Again, the court instructed the jury: 'If from the evidence you find that certain words were spoken under such circumstances by the representative of the company, and you are satisfied that they were intended and were understood to be that the milling company undertook and contracted that this seed wheat was Marquis wheat and not another kind, and that the plaintiff had the right to understand that this company intended to be bound by it as part of the contract of sale, and that the plaintiff believed and relied upon such statements in making the purchase, then you may find that there was a warranty that this was Marquis wheat. If you believe, however, from all of the testimony, that what was said by the parties there was not intended or taken as a warranty, but as an expression of opinion or so-called trade talk, or that plaintiff bought the grain without relying on what was said or on his own inspection and judgment, then you may find that the company is not liable.'"

"The instruction, when considered in its entirety, was as favorable to defendant as could be expected. It presented to the jury the real issue in clear and unmistakable terms and in our opinion could have left no room for doubt in the minds of the jurors as to what the legal rights of the parties were.

"The measure of damages was the difference between the value of the crop raised from the seed furnished and that of a crop such as would ordinarily have been raised from the seed had it been of the variety contracted for." S.

GRASSES FROM OTHER LANDS.

Some of the results in the search for and introduction of new crop plants, particularly forage grasses, into the United States by the Department of Agriculture are spectacular, says the secretary of agriculture in his annual report to the President, now made public.

Alfalfa, a native of central Asia, brought into the western states in about 1870, has come in a generation almost the basis of crop of the west, according to the report. The sorghums are the basis of the agricultural development of the southwest. Continuing.

from Egypt, produced in 1918 a crop valued at $16,000,000. Over 1,000 varieties of soy beans have been introduced from China and other parts of the Orient. From these the experts of the department have, after careful tests, selected eight of the best varieties, which are now largely cultivated and are an important element in the rapid increase in soy-bean production. Peruvian alfalfa, introduced in 1899, is by far the most productive and valuable variety for the southwest.

"Scientists are convinced that there are still great possibilities in the search for new crops, especially for plants that are cultivated little, if at all, in their native countries. Perhaps this is most strikingly exhibited in grasses, many of which have been introduced accidentally. Thus blue grass, white clover, redtop, timothy and many others which came originally from Europe make up nearly all the grass lands of the north, and Bermuda grass from India, carpet grass from the West Indies, dallis grass from Argentina, and lespedeza from Asia have performed a similar rôle in the south. California's pastures consist mainly of species from the Mediterranean region, such as alfalfa, bur clover, wild oats, wild barley and numerous others. There are undoubtedly in central Asia many species which, if properly selected and introduced, will add greatly to the carrying capacity of the western ranges, aside from what can be accomplished by rational range management. From this region came alfalfa and sweet clover, both important in the west. There is every reason to believe also that good grasses and legumes can be found for the cut-over lands of the south, and thus prepare the way for the further development of the live stock industry in that section."

Henry C. Eckert, Belleville, Ill.—Two pamphlets. One of them is entitled "A List of Twenty Strong and Vigorous Gladioli"; the other contains a list of Iris germanica and I. sibirica.

Alessandro Squadrilli, successor to M. Herb, Naples, Italy.—Wholesale catalogue of vegetable and flower seeds; forty large, compactly arranged pages, printed in English, German and French, with prices in francs. The first eight pages are illustrated and are devoted to the newer varieties, partly of Mr. Squadrilli's raising.

United Bulb Growers, Inc., New York, N. Y., with headquarters at Sassenheim, Holland.—"Dutch Bulbs Direct from Growers," a compactly printed, 16-page wholesale list, comprising large assortments of varieties, grown on several farms in Holland and offered for shipment in the fall of 1921. A condensed list of French bulbs appears at the end, without prices, but with this notation: "Orders are taken at market prices; will notify our customers as soon as prices are ready."

Fancher Creek Nurseries, Fresno, Cal.—An exceptionally well printed, illustrated catalogue of general nursery stock; thirty-one pages, in a tasteful blue cover. The stock offered is produced on three large, separate tracts of ground, designated as the General Fruit Tree Nurseries, Ornamental Nurseries and Citrus Orchard Nurseries. Several pages are devoted to broad-leaved evergreens. Two pages are occupied by roses, of which the statement is made: "Every rose bush we sell is grown entirely in the open ground and almost all are budded."

H. G. Hastings Co., Atlanta, Ga.—A handsomely illustrated catalogue of seeds, bulbs, plants and nursery stock; 112 pages and colored cover. Among the illustrations are sixteen full-page colored plates, "showing as closely as possible," says the company, "just what can be expected when Hastings seeds of these varieties are planted." "We are really proud of this catalogue," says the company again. "It begins to measure up to some ideas of catalogue-making that we have had for many years, but have not been able to carry out till this season."

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Phoenix, Ariz.—In a 2-page list of suggested Christmas gifts, published in the largest daily newspaper in Phoenix, appeared a paragraph of the Donofrio Floral Co., suggesting that one and all "Say It with Flowers" before and after the holidays. Charles E. Morton is manager of this establishment.

Sacramento, Cal.—Upon the completion of the new greenhouses, at Forty-sixth and M streets, the East Lawn Nursery held a formal opening, December 9, and advertised in the daily newspapers, offering a gift of a potted fern to all visitors who purchased a dollar's worth of flowers or plants on that day. A. Cruikshanks is superintendent.

Santa Barbara, Cal.—At the annual meeting of the Santa Barbara County Horticultural Society officers were elected as follows: President, E. O. Orpet; vice-president, P. Reidel; secretary, A. R. Gould; financial secretary, Charles Waugh; treasurer, Otto Neidemuller, and directors, James Brown and P. A. Vincent. The society has plans for a flower show early in April.

SANTA CRUZ, CAL.

Owing to the increased demand for Los Robles bulbs, the Los Robles Co. has found it necessary to discontinue the retail nursery and florists' business. The company will devote itself exclusively to the growing of bulbs for eastern shipment. This change made necessary a slight alteration in the firm name. It is now known as the Los Robles Co. From now on the bulb growings will be restricted to freesias, callas, Paper Whites, miniature or Colvillei gladioli and other bulbs for forcing purposes. The growing crop is in excellent shape and a banner harvest is expected this coming season.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

At the time of writing the indications are that the dry, open weather will continue until Christmas, and if this is the case, there will be a better and more abundant supply of stock in this market than ever before. Poinsettias are large and of fine shipping quality, while all kinds of outdoor flowers are plentiful. Baby zinnias and other tender stock that has not been cut, owing to lack of demand, look as bright and as showy as in August. Roses from indoors were never in better supply and the growers say their cut will last well over the holidays.

The heather being shipped for Christmas is, unfortunately, not so well developed as usual at this time of year, and it is considered a pity to have to ship this, as it gives the stock from this market a bad name early in the season that may check the sale later, when the stock is at its best. Except for a few parts of California, it is hard to get outdoor stock in time for long-distance shipping for Christmas. Plants grown under glass or frames are, of course, more forward and help out in basket work or as specimens. Both wholesalers and retailers are in good humor over satisfactory business and, from present appearances, the holiday trade will be excellent. The stores carrying greens and holly report heavy sales.

Various Notes.

Fred Howard and Roy F. Wilcox left for San Francisco to attend a meeting of an executive character in connection with the California Association of Nurserymen.

F. H. Allen, of the Allen Water Garden, has purchased two acres of land near the foothills to increase his area for lily ponds and other aquatics. Several new ponds and also a greenhouse for water plants are in prospect and Mr. Allen still keeps his Hollywood store for retail sales. He has made wonderful progress in the few years he has been in business.

Sufficient money has been subscribed or promised to provide financial support for the new market, to be known as the American Florists' Exchange of Los Angeles, while a most favorable option has been obtained on a suitable location. An enthusiastic meeting was held December 10, when the articles of incorporation and suggested by-laws were read by Tom Wright. In addition to Mr. Wright, the following were present: Arthur Howard, C. Bates, M. Dennison, E. A. Rust, F. R. Hills, treasurer; Walter Armacost, A. F. Borden, John Polder, J. Roller, John Bodger Jr., F. H. Allen, Robert Mesick, H. R. Richards, Frank Warner and his son, M. Warner, George J. Hall, G. Bridgeford, Albert Goldenson, Gebhard Precht and H. Amling. Gus Swenson was not able to stay for the meeting, but left a check for his subscription. While many of the details are not yet available for publication, the interest taken by many prominent men in the trade is a guarantee of the safe launching of the idea in a practical and successful manner.

A trip to J. Dieterich's new place at Wintersbury, recently, was full of interest. Although to some extent in the experimental stage as yet, there are great possibilities here. Erica melanthera grows remarkably well; about 12,000 plants from 2-inch pots last spring were large enough last week for 6-inch and 8-inch pots and full of blooms. Pussy willows from cuttings had made immense bushes six to eight feet high, a forest of stock, then just ready for the market. Aucubas, hydrangeas and aspidistras in great numbers, as well as various ferns and palms, were all at home in the peat soil here and the growth was exceptional. A spring forms the source of water supply for what will eventually be a fine fish and lily pond under lath and, when the planting is finished, this will be a most attractive corner. Mr. Dieterich is further to be congratulated in that oil fields are opening close to his location and he has received some tempting offers for the lease of his land.

Probably the finest cut of roses ever made by Walter Armacost & Co. is now being sent to their store and the demand is unusually good.

George W. Eischen and Carl Brose have returned from a pleasant and successful hunting trip to Buena Vista lake.

At the Athletic Club Florist's some of the biggest undertakings in the history of the establishment were brought to success recently. At the annual dance of the Athletic Club in the same building, the decorations used were Woodwardia fronds and palms, while the tables were also beautifully trimmed. Another novel decoration was at the Los Angeles Country Club, when Bert Boteman, the head decorator for the firm, worked out a scheme of peacock's feathers and art shades of flowers that was quite successful. J. Roller also promises something quite new in his Christmas store decorations.

A most attractive arrangement of colored foliage, grasses and other stock was noticed at F. Lichtenberg's store. This display is large enough to be effective and the colors are artistically blended.

Robert Mesick, of Whittier road, says he is practically sold out of the

Dear Sir:-

These Review ads certainly have an awful wallop. It keeps us busy running blue pencil through price lists, and printing "Sold Out" signs.

Those heavy 4 and 5-inch Cyclamens are all sold. We still have some nice 4-inch for 50 cents each, and some 5-inch for 75 cents. You can still get some 6-inch and 8-inch, but you will have to hurry.

The Heather, Cinerarias, Begonias, Primroses and Table Ferns are all gone for Holiday sales. Plenty more when they have a few days to open up.

You have no type big enough, or black enough, to tell about our Roses. You just have to see them to appreciate them. If you cannot come to the Greenhouses, order the Roses sent to you.

Greens? Of Course! We have them by the Acre. We have everything in season, and just a little bit better than the other fellow. That is what makes us-

The Broadway Florist is keeping up to its reputation for big funeral orders. Some immense pieces were on the floor last week and the workroom has been full day after day with high-priced work of all kinds.

C. Gutting, of the Superior Nursery, is making up and selling some fine mixed plant baskets. His stock of fine-leaved crotons, cyclamens and various other showy plants helps out materially along this line.

At the store of the Morris & Snow Seed Co., some magnificent Boston ferns were shown. Albert Morris is now in perfect health again and the new nursery on Figueroa street is making great strides under his care.

Fraser & Son, of Pasadena, are handling a quantity of plumosus and Sprengeri seeds, as well as the many specialties raised during the last fifteen years, in which Mr. Fraser, Sr., had charge of the well known Busch Gardens. The dahlia-flowered zinnia and the double cosmos are two noteworthy specialties.

The Market.

Cold weather, following the recent heavy rains, has made good stock scarce and consequently high in price. All the growers would be happy if some days of warm sunshine would come between now and the holidays, but the sun was rather chilly and wintry last week. Mums are almost over and the few that remain are high-priced, on account of the fact that there are not enough to supply the local market. While a good many violets come into the market every day, the scarcity of other stock causes them to go rapidly. A few firms say they have good carnations, but the market consumes every day's cut without filling the full demand.

Short stock in roses is scarce, owing to the fact that almost all growers have disbudded. Out-of-town buyers mostly want medium-priced stock, creating a heavy demand for shorter-stemmed blooms, which at present are hard to obtain.

Many potted plants are coming into the wholesale and retail stores, in anti-

Mrs. R. E. Darbee expressed the sentiments of many local florists when she said recently, "How fortunate we are to be florists! Merchants in so many other lines are loaded up with goods which they bought at the apex of the market and now have to dispose of, with prices dropping rapidly. We are thankful not to have accumulations of stock on hand. We have an excellent holiday season ahead of us and are just glad to be florists."

J. A. Axell states that he is almost booked up to capacity with holiday orders. Among Mr. Axell's holiday goods are some fine Helichrysum monstrosum, in bronze and yellow, which growers are bringing in just when the straw-flowers are scarce.

General A. J. Gooch's growers are supplying him with enough freesias to fill some extensive orders. He is featuring pepper boughs, which are rich in red berries.

plants in their nurseries are practically all contracted for.

The United Flower & Supply Co. has about 200 dwarf Japanese trees left, which are expected to be in demand for the holiday trade, as no more are coming from Japan.

Just enough roses to supply all its customers are coming in from the nurseries of the E. W. McLellan Co. The last two days of the holidays, December 24 and 25, will see all the rose cut of this firm devoted entirely to the San Francisco trade.

The miniature redwood wreaths, designed by the Misses Hannon, are in demand at points as far away as the Hawaiian islands and New Zealand. This store's tiny boutonnières, made of strawflowers wired with artificial foliage, are being much worn locally, and are being shown in dainty gift boxes.

Podesta & Baldocchi are enthusiastic over the number of holiday orders that are pouring in.

F. C. Jaeger & Son have reinstalled their telegraph delivery window display as a seasonable holiday suggestion.

The Art Floral Co. is finding it no light task to fill all its orders for art floral baskets.

Redwood wreaths, slightly silvered to suggest frost, are a novelty which the MacRorie-McLaren Co. is featuring. Some fine potted heather has its color accentuated by the wrapping on the pots, which consists of Japanese mat in small squares of pink and French gray, the heather mixture. Bows of pink fiber ribbon complete the color effect.

The Thomas Floral Co., on O'Farrell street, and its new store, the Conservatory, at 901 Larkin street, are experiencing a big holiday demand for potted plants. Both stores are in the apartment house districts, where flowers help to introduce an element of home.

Potted flowers, especially poinsettias and cyclamens, are coming in plentifully to the store of the Charles C. Navlet Co. from the firm's nurseries. This is one of the few stores able to fill all orders for cyclamens, which are somewhat scarce.

The local reappearance of Kolb & Dill, comedians, who first became known at San Francisco, caused Julius Eppstein to be busy with floral offerings.

Telegraph orders from guests at the Palace hotel are showing the holiday spirit early, according to Fred Bertrand. The Palace Hotel Flower Shop had an important ecclesiastical ceremony and noon luncheon last week for Bishop Hanna. The arrival of the Imperial Potentate of the Shriners was the occasion of a decorated dinner in the evening and a breakfast, at which ladies were present. M. M.

Carnations are coming to hand more freely from the local growers. The reds are making a better showing as to color lately, and whites are stronger-stemmed and better as to keeping qualities.

The cut of orchids has been below normal and not large enough to fill the local needs. However, local growers say they have plenty of stock coming on between now and Christmas to care for the final holiday business. Valley

The approach of Christmas finds the market well supplied with all seasonable flowers, with the exception of roses. Among chrysanthemums, Chadwick and Seidewitz are the most abundant, with prices ranging from $3 to $5 per dozen wholesale. Carnations range from $8 to $15 per hundred. According to present indications, all wants in potted plants and decorative baskets will be supplied, as an exceptional quantity of stock is on hand.

Various Notes.

The demand for Christmas wreaths, ornamental baskets and cedar rope is greater to date than in former years and, with the continuance of mild weather until after the holiday season, it is believed a record will be established.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club was postponed.

Jack Burt, of Burt's Flower Shop, recently purchased Donart's House of Flowers. The transaction means that Mr. Burt will have the active management of both stores, with the assistance of his daughter. The House of Flowers is located on one of the busiest corners in the city and has excellent windows for display.

R. Briggs is again with the Spokane Florist Co., after an absence of several months.

Donart & Lewis, of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, are reported to have the best stock of late mums they have ever had. Their shipping business to coast points is especially brisk.

Peters & Sons, of Hillyard, Wash., have an exceptional stock of potted plants and beautiful specimens of chrysanthemums to supply the heavy Christmas trade.

SOME people tell you that they are the leaders of all others in their line of business. All right! The same people tell you that their goods cannot be had elsewhere; and that they never make a mistake. Well, we hope that they can live up to it all! But, here we are, just ordinary florists.

There are probably many florists in Montreal better than we. Our cut stock comes from the best growers, and we grow our own fine pot plants, but others have them just as good; and when it comes to mistakes, we wonder if others make them as often as we do.

But, listen! When you send us an order we do our best to be careful, to be prompt, to send fine flowers, to have the card right, and above all to give the package a distinct touch of good taste and originality, if possible, that will delight the recipient.

MAKE MORE MOVIES.

Success Inspires Success.

It was the privilege of the writer recently to spend an evening at the movies. Now, I will admit that there is nothing uncommon in such an experience, but on this particular occasion the reels were of especial interest to florists. As I looked at picture after picture thrown upon the screen, the thought that was uppermost in my mind was, what a valuable educational feature they were to florists themselves and especially the young men, those who, after long years of weary toil in the ranges of their fathers, are debating the question whether to remain in the trade or to seek new pastures. It is an admitted fact that one of the most serious problems our industry has to face is the lack of trained young men to take up its burdens as the older ones are dropping out. How many young men are there in this country today who have spent their young manhood in some antiquated range and are becoming discouraged? They know what the struggles of their father have been, and often they sit down and reason that it is not worth the effort, that there are other industries offering a better future, and so they drift away. When I was a boy, how often did I reason in the same manner!

When I saw some successful business man of the time come into my father's small range, the thought that entered

Some Kinks From Kankakee

WHEN the newspaper cartoonists get out of funny stuff, they turn to Kokomo or Kankakee and hang some moth-eaten joke on them, of the vintage of 1842. And folks laugh. Not seemingly at the joke—because there never is any—but because it's Kankakee.

I laughed my last laugh at the Cleveland Convention. Laughed in the presence of a regular 6-foot Kankakeer. After which, he sat me down at lunch and between kicking my ankles under the table, and pointing his fingers at me over the table, I gradually awoke to the fact, that he was talking serious.

He handed me out some kinks from Kankakee that have put the loud pedal down on my cash register in a way that makes me feel in a very grateful kind of mood.

Drop in sometime and I'll tell you what it was. That is, provided you'll never mention Kankakee in other than a serious manner.

my mind was that no florist could ever reach such heights. In those days there were several ranges in the east that the older florists themselves used to look upon as purely phenomenal, with no idea of ever equaling them.

Two Boys' Achievement.

About the time I am talking of, or, to be exact, in 1889, there were in Washington, D. C., two boys working in the old Studer range, at Anacostia, William F. and Adolph Gude. These boys had reached early manhood and, like every other boy in the industry, were reasoning along the lines noted above. But fate decreed that they should remain florists. They both loved the business and were both hustlers. They had no capital—it is true they had some credit—but their principal assets were robust constitutions and an unlimited quantity of determination. Instead of reasoning that some other industry offered a more successful future, they reasoned that if they could get to where they had 10,000 feet of glass, they would be in a position to make a comfortable living. And so they started, growing only limited varieties of the old-fashioned type of flowers, such as geraniums, verbenas, some pot roses and carnations, all of which were disposed of in the markets of Washington. Today these two men, still in the prime of life, are the proprietors of two ranges of about 600,000 feet of glass, in which nothing but the best quality of stock is grown. But I started out in this article to speak of moving pictures; it was the two ranges of Gude Bros. Co. in operation that I witnessed at the movies, over forty miles away from the location of the establishment.

Past and Present.

The majority of those in the audience were young men, all connected with the florists' business, and to many of them it was an inspiration, as it was to the writer. I can remember my first visit to the Anacostia range, away back in 1886, when it was just a group of antiquated greenhouses, the kind you could take the sashes off in the summer time, much the same as frames are handled today. As I looked at house after house of modern iron construction thrown upon the screen, I marveled that such a transformation could take place in little more than thirty years. We often hear of romance in business; did you ever stop to think that no other industry in this country today can boast of the same romantic progress as the florists' industry?

The history of Gude Bros. Co. is just a repetition of that of nearly every successful florists' establishment in the country. Besides possessing executive ability of the highest order, William F. and Adolph Gude find their recreation in the production of high-grade flowers. Flowers are a hobby with them, though not a hobby such as golf or fast horses are to some men. Their hobby is to produce the best stock to "Say It with Flowers," and it was only necessary to look at the samples which William F. Gude used to illustrate his lecture to realize how well they were succeeding with this hobby. What a pleasure it must be for a man like William F. Gude to spend an evening with his brother craftsmen and see the results of his thirty years of toil all pass before his eyes in one evening!

Lessons of Real Life.

As I sat and looked at this big, jovial fellow, as he joked with those about him, my mind went back to 1889; then down through the years to 1920. I thought of the success made of this business; of the many obstacles the brothers must have encountered; of the manner in which they surmounted them, and yet today Mr. Gude is just a big-hearted boy. How often have you seen men who have reached the top in other industries unable to enjoy the fruits of their labor; their dispositions embittered; their life spent in some cramped office, with only one thought—money! But the florist has been living close to nature, out in God's sunshine, and instead of his thoughts being continually on money they are on assisting nature and producing new varieties of flowers. On the same evening we witnessed three reels showing pictures of the Hollywood Gardens, Seattle, Wash. These, too, are wonderful, and every florists' club in the country should show them. It would be a great benefit to the trade if every successful firm in this country should have pictures made of its establishment and send them out on a mission of education. Most clubs meet once or twice a month, and in what better way could a club spend an evening than in looking at what some brother florists have been able to accomplish? Such movies will interest the young men in the industry and spur them on to greater things. One of

The Market.

Neither wholesale nor retail markets were so brisk as usual last week. The wholesalers were kept fairly busy shipping supplies and the retailers were busy making preparations for a large Christmas trade. During the week a heavy sale was reported by some retailers of wreaths, festoons, ruscus, artificial flowers in baskets, holly and other greens, especially boxwood, which is in great favor here. This was especially true of the downtown florists. The west end florists sold little of this class of stock, but had on display a wealth of fancy blooming plants and the best quality in cut stock. The plants included some extra fine cyclamens, crotons, poinsettias, Otaheite oranges and foliage plants. It was intimated last week that, if cut flower prices should become high, plants would be pushed to the limit.

Roses in all varieties arrived daily last week and at reasonable prices. Prices will, of course, jump on all stock this week. The rose growers assure the retailers that there is a big crop of Premier, Russell, Ophelia, Columbia and Killarney. Milady and Sunburst are not so plentiful.

Carnation growers, as well, promise an excellent crop for the holidays. The varieties expected here are Nebraska for red, Enchantress for white and pink, Benora for variegated and Ward for dark pink. There will be mums for Christmas, as some of the local growers will have an excellent cut of Bonaffon, Hamburg, a late pink, and pompons, which should meet a large demand.

Other stock, such as calendulas, snapdragons, valley, mignonette, stevia, Paper Whites, bouvardias and poinsettias, will be in good supply. Orchids, however, will be scarce. In greens, the market will probably offer plenty of adiantum, smilax, asparagus, both plumosus and Sprengerii, galax, both bronze and green, and plenty of fine boxwood.

would be fully discussed. All bills were ordered paid. Delegates to the meeting of the National Flower Growers' Association, to be held at Washington, D. C., January 27, were selected as follows: Walter Amling and W. A. Rowe; alternates, J. A. Cole and L. J. Bourdet. Should the membership reach fifty by the time of the Washington meeting, J. A. Cole will become a regular delegate.

The membership committee will select two pot plant growers, two rose growers and two carnation growers to visit all county growers and urge them to become members of the district branch. L. Jules Bourdet and the secretary were given charge of the printing of the district constitution and by-laws. The membership committee then passed in twenty-five applications for membership and all were elected after the committee had reported favorably. The chairman appointed a nominating committee as follows: L. J. Bourdet, chairman; W. J. Pilcher and W. J. Hembreiker. They are to report at the annual meeting of the district.

 The secretary reported that every mail has brought one application for membership, as a result of the 200 letters he mailed to growers throughout the district. He expressed a hope that by the time of the annual meeting the membership would total 100.
 The selection of the place for the annual meeting then came up and, on vote, St. Louis was selected. The date was changed from January 25 to January 18, so as not to conflict with the date of the national association's meeting at Washington. All arrangements were left in the hands of the entertainment committee. J. F. Ammann, secretary of the National Flower Growers' Association, was present and gave an interesting talk on his recent travels. After a general discussion for the good of the new district branch, the meeting was adjourned.

mittee will meet Wednesday afternoon, December 29. All members of the committee, it is expected, will attend. Chairman Bourdet stated that a great deal of important business will be transacted.

The Foster Floral Co. held an opening in its new quarters last week, on Seventh street near Olive. The first week's business at the new location was up to expectations.

Joseph Keuthan, for many years in the employ of Ostertag Bros., has branched out for himself. Last week he opened a store at 4023 Newstedt avenue. The place will be known as the McGill Floral Shop.

Walter Amling, of Pana, Ill., expects to cut 50,000 Premier roses for the holidays. The production of his establishment is marketed at St. Louis.

The wonderful display of Christmas novelties in the big show windows of Grimm & Gorly, on Washington avenue, attracted buyers last week and the selling force was doubled for this week.

The St. Louis Seed Co. sent out large shipments daily of holly, greens and ruscus. August Hummert said the demand from outside points was larger than ever this year.

Oscar C. May, of Sappington, Mo., had an excellent season with cut mums of the highest quality. Mr. May will have a large cut of yellow pompons for Christmas.

A. Werner & Bro., of Clayton, Mo., and Otto Bruenig, of Olivette, Mo., have cut a splendid crop of roses.

The entertainment committee of the St. Louis district branch of the National Flower Growers' Association, consisting of L. J. Bourdet, W. A. Rowe and C. E. DeWever, who will have charge of all arrangements for the annual meeting, January 18, will meet at publicity headquarters, December 29, and formulate a program.

L. Jules Bourdet, head of the Bourdet Floral Co., can take things more easily now, since his two sons, Andre and Roger, are members of the company. Andre, the older, has charge of the greenhouses, and Roger, the younger, attends to the retail part of the business.

There will be a splendid crop of violets this season. The early predictions were that there would be a shortage, but according to our violet growers, including Ude Bros., William Meier, Henry Meier, Joseph Hauser and Charles Meier, the market will be well supplied.

The "Say It with Flowers" bowling league rolled some splendid games December 15, when the Roses defeated the Sweet Peas and the Carnations defeated the Gladioli. There will be no bowling this week. The next session will take place December 29. J. J. B.

The Market.

Trade has shown considerable life during the last week, and all the stores have been exceedingly busy for Christmas. Stock is fairly plentiful and of good quality, and the demand is great. Prices naturally are higher, and are about even with those of a year ago. Every effort has been made to get most of the potted stock into the market for the holidays, and, according to reports, conditions are favorable. While a few chrysanthemums are still available, the supply is quite small, but it is possible they may last until the first of the year.

the other window, the display is all in one color. He has booked several good-sized orders for the holiday.

At J. B. Keller Sons' store is a window filled nicely with many of the store's novelties for the holiday. Pyramid trees made of the natural spruce trimmed with berries and ribbons are shown, two and three in a basket, and individuals in a jardiniere. Bowls filled with narcissi and Mexican ivy trimmed with ribbon are attractive.

H. E. Wilson and the Rochester Floral Co. have a good stock of poinsettias of good quality for the holidays. Cherries, peppers, palms and ferns are also plentiful. Baskets of artificial and natural dried flowers are in large quantities here and are selling fast. Balls of prepared lycopodium with ribbon sell well.

H. Zipfel, of North street, who has just returned from a month's stay in the holly fields of the south, is doing a big business in holly wreaths and is employing a large number of helpers.

Visitors last week were: A Valentine, of Syracuse, N. Y.; J. H. Wiese, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Trautman & Smith, of Geneva, N. Y.; Robert H. Bard, of Syra-

Club Meeting.

The Rochester Florists' Association held its regular meeting at the Osborn House, Friday, December 10. John G. Davis delivered an address on "How to Grow Dahlias," and went into some details in the culture of this flower. Four new members were taken into the association. George M. Keller, president, appointed a nominating committee, with John Dunbar as chairman, to nominate officers for 1921. The nominations will be voted on at the next monthly meeting of the association, to be held January 14.

The Market.

The week before Christmas week, as usual, the market was quiet; all shopping for flowers was put off until the last minute. Some orders are being booked by the retail stores, but in most cases the public was waiting until all the holiday stock was in. All blooming plants are reported sold by the growers. One grower who always has fine poinsettias reported his entire stock sold out ten days ago. It looks, at this writing, as though blooming plants were going to be scarce, and the retailers have been taking time by the forelock and making their purchases early.

With any sort of favorable weather during the next week, the rose crop should be a good one. Nearly every one has been timing his crop for the holidays and in most cases the crops will be just right. Carnations will be in good supply. There will, however, be a shortage of red. This is not a new condition, for there never are enough of this color to go around. There should be plenty of white and pink, and the quality this year is all that could be desired. It is hard to say just what the violet situation will be. If local stock is to be depended upon, they will be scarce; but the wholesale houses have hopes that the out-of-town stock will relieve the situation. This will depend a great deal on transportation. Sweet peas will be in fair supply and the quality will be good. Paper Whites will be in good supply.

All miscellaneous stock is promising. Never have red immortelles sold better. The wholesale houses are about cleaned up on these, and as most immortelles

Club Meeting.

Monday evening, December 13, the Florists' Club had one of the finest and most largely attended meetings it has ever held. The idea of the entertainment committee is to make each meeting educational, and if the last meeting is a sample of what is to come in the future, then the florists of Baltimore will learn much about how the business is conducted throughout the country. First, there was a splendid lecture by W. F. Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., in which he made a strong plea for the F. T. D. and for the national publicity committee. Then there were moving pictures of this firm's two immense ranges in operation. Mr. Gude used some fine cut stock from these to illustrate his lecture. It was a wonderful inspiration to the younger men to see what this firm had accomplished in the short span of thirty years.

Then there were three reels showing the Hollywood Gardens, of Seattle, Wash., and this was certainly a wonderful picture. The lesson to be learned from this is how much can be accomplished through system. There is much more in the Hollywood Gardens than the name would denote. Besides the ranges, there are retail stores for disposing of the products; these consist of poultry, milk, eggs and flowers, besides cattle of the finest breed. One is supposed to be seeing this great farm from an automobile, and as one's view glides over the fine concrete roads, through a beautiful and fertile country, it is not hard to imagine one is having an actual ride.

Then there was a local rose exhibition, and much pride was taken by the members in their home products. Stevenson Bros. had twenty-five Dunlop and twenty-five Double White Killarney roses. The first certificate of merit was awarded to each of these. The Henry F. Michell Co. had an exhibit of Laddie carnations which were fine blooms.

The ladies were present, and a pleasant as well as profitable evening was spent. Besides Mr. and Mrs. William F. Gude, Fred Michell was a visitor and made an address on business conditions as he finds them. Mr. Michell was optimistic over the outlook. He said all that is required is a little care and the florists will come safely through any slump that may occur in the business world.

Various Notes.

C. E. Akehurst & Sons, who are devoting part of their range to roses for the first time this season, have demonstrated that they are as good with this crop as with carnations. Their roses are in good shape and are going to be just right for the holidays. This firm is growing 30,000 carnations this year.

Stevenson Bros. are going to have a fine cut of roses for the holidays. Their Dunlop and Double White Killarney are certainly of blue ribbon quality.

Jesse P. King, of Mount Airy, is sending in some fine sweet peas.

Lohr & Fritze, who never crop their roses, preferring the steady cut, are going to have some fine stock at Christ-

MONTREAL, QUE.

The Market.

The weather man has been illtreating us lately. We have had little sunshine, but plenty of snow, sleet, rain and slush.
Perhaps some readers will not know what slush means. A proper slush, as we have it in Montreal, is a foot of soft snow, on which a good day's rain has fallen, resulting in six inches of slush. All of this is bad for growing flowers and still worse for selling them.

This bad weather makes flowers

The best carnations came in last week billed at $20 per hundred for the best stock and $15 for the ordinary; culls are $12. Roses have been $25 per hundred wholesale for some time. Violets are scarce, at $2.50 per hundred for singles. Easter lilies have been $25 per hundred; iris, $25; Paper Whites, $6; Soleil d'Or, $8. But we have plenty of potted plants.

Yankee readers would be delighted to see our azaleas and especially the large quantity of them, including fine Petrick and Verveneana. Cyclamens are good, but not overabundant. However, there is an ample supply of Cleveland cherries and primulas. Poinsettias are scarce, but they are hard to handle in this cold climate. Ferns are plentiful because they have not been in great demand lately.

Among the Growers.

Arthur Legare has large quantities of azaleas and cherries.

Victor Cardinal has a great display of azaleas.

J. Bennett, of Lachine, has excellent poinsettias and cyclamens.

C. Nielson has his usual stock in fine shape.

Camille Gratton, though handicapped during the season with a short water supply, has a good stock.

its own stores, has immense supplies of azaleas, poinsettias, cyclamens, crotons and everything needed for the holiday demand.

Retail business has not been exceptionally brisk, but all florists look forward to a busy Christmas season.

Hall & Robinson have their cyclamens in better shape than ever; also ericas, Cleveland cherries, poinsettias and Primula malacoides. Their azaleas did not arrive until November 15, and were frost-bitten; so they are not strong on these plants.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Prospects for Christmas business are exceedingly bright. There has been much shopping in flowers for several weeks. Prospective buyers apparently are comparing prices of flowers with those of other merchandise. As a result, many orders have been placed earlier than usual. Growers realize that the public is not spending money so lavishly as it did a year ago and have prepared accordingly. Plants to sell from $1.50 to $7 have been largely stocked for the average buyers, with a large part of the supply between $1.50 and $3. Of course, there are many which are more expensive and these will be sold too, but most preparation is for the less expensive trade. Thanksgiving demonstrated that the buying was above normal in number of sales rather than in large amounts.

In cut stock roses are plentiful, while the supply of carnations is limited. Sweet peas will not figure largely in this market.

Various Notes.

Miss J. E. Murray has sold many strawflower baskets and wreaths the last two weeks.

The Muehlebach Flower Shop is handling Christmas trees and greens this year.

The Peterson Floral Co. has been working nights since December 1, making wreaths and baskets. This company specializes in fancy baskets for the holidays. The workroom is on the second floor, above the retail store.

Mrs. Edith Roberts is now with J. Austin's retail store, on Troost avenue. J. Austin has sold large numbers of cherry and pepper plants this year.

The T. J. Noll Floral Co. has disposed of a heavy stock of florists' supplies. Ribbons and all kinds of artificial flowers sold well. The company expects to handle between 12,000 and 14,000 carnations for Christmas.

The spirit of Christmas is reflected in the retail window displays. The W. L. Rock Flower Co. has an attractive arrangement of candles and blooming week or more, burning several hours at a time.

The Alpha Floral Co. window is ablaze with poinsettias and red globes, with the sign, "Give Flowers," in frosted cotton at the base of a handsome plant.

Fifteen thousand narcissi have been cut by A. F. Barbe, all of which he expects to sell, as well as other flowers and plants. His stock of holly and other wreaths is large.

L. R. Bohannon, of the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co., has returned from a week in Chicago and Rock Island, Ill. Mr. Bohannon states that long-stemmed blooms are plentiful in that market, but that short stock is scarce and high.

An order from Hamilton, Ont., was received last week by the Linwood Floral Co. It was for a casket cover and a large design.

August Luther, Jr., has a larger stock of wreaths than ever. They range in price from $2 to $10. He is also well stocked with plants and prepared for a record business.

The Pinchurst Floral Co. has taken no orders for carnations. It began turning down orders for roses December 17. Stock has been so close all week that the company has sold roses as the boxes came from the greenhouses.

Ed A. Humfeld has a good crop of roses and carnations for the coming week.

Mrs. E. H. Hedges reports particularly heavy funeral work last week.

Mild weather has allowed tree and shrub planting to go on uninterruptedly so far. The Chandler Landscape & Floral Co. has been busy in this line all season and is still filling orders.

Miss Lou Boggess had the decorations for several funerals last week.

Three foreign telegraph orders have been received by Samuel Murray. One is for Scotland, one for England and the other for Rome, Italy. The first two were received in time to be sent by mail, but the order for Rome was cabled to Nice, France, to be relayed to Rome.

Adolph Mohr is entirely sold out of poinsettias and cyclamens. He has a few begonias left for the first of the week.

Henry Kusik & Co. is not accepting orders for carnations. J. F. K.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

KANSAS apple seedlings seem to be of excellent quality this year and the demand for them heavy.

THE D. Hill Nursery Co., Dundee, Ill., shipped large orders of Christmas trees all over the country. The largest orders went to florists in the big cities. The total number of trees available this year fell short of the demand.

THE Fancher Creek Nurseries, at Fresno, Cal., has 240 acres in the general fruit tree nurseries, twelve miles south of Fresno, 160 acres in its ornamental nurseries, two and one-half miles northwest of Fresno, and 320 acres in its citrus orchard nurseries at Exeter.

THE New England Nurserymen's Association will meet at the American House, Boston, January 25 and 26. The present officers of the association are: President, Charles Adams; vice-president, John K. M. L. Farquhar; secretary, Sheldon Robinson, and treasurer, V. A. Vanicek.

ACCORDING to advices received at Seattle, Wash., from Hood River, Ore., Charles T. Rawson has secured a location in the upper valley there and will re-enter the nursery business. Mr. Rawson was formerly in business with Frank Stanton at Hood River and had since retired.

CONGRESS has been asked by the Department of Agriculture to appropriate $300,000 to be used in checking the spread of the gypsy and brown-tail moths in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. More than 100 square miles in New Jersey have been infested, the department said.

THE Toledo Blade December 9 printed an interview with Edward G. Greening, of the Greening Nursery Co., Monroe, Mich., under the caption, "Trees Appreciate in Value While House Depreciates." This kind of advertising is not only of value to Mr. Greening's firm, but helps to educate the general public to look on nursery products as investments and not as mere ornaments.

IMPORTED seedlings are so scarce and so difficult to obtain that the Loma Rica Ranch, Grass Valley, Cal., is preparing to plant 15,000 additional trees during the coming planting season. Tree digging started in the nurseries of the ranch early in December and a modern tree digger has been lifting from 25,000 to 50,000 daily. Manager A. L. Wisker is confident of a market for all the additional seedlings he can plant.

THE DeGalvez Nursery & Development Co., the incorporation of which was reported in this department December 16, has been incorporated to do business at Chicago and New York as well as Pine Harbor and Pensacola, Fla. Pine Harbor, Fla., will be the location of a general nursery establishment. The company will also engage in general farming at other points. The officers are as follows: President, Charles N. Goodnow; vice-president, Arthur M. McCold; secretary, John C. Coonleigh; treasurer, Charles Crutehoff, and general superintendent, William E. Johnson.

THE case of Chase Bros. Co. vs. William Miller, at Norwalk, Conn., was recently postponed for lack of evidence. It has been recontinued.

THE death of Erick A. Erickson, for forty years foreman at Peterson Nursery, Chicago, is reported in this week's obituary column. He was known to nurserymen all over America.

THE NURSERYMAN'S SERVICE.

Relations of the nurseryman to his customer, far different from those of most other sorts of merchants, are described, in a way that should urge those who follow this profession to make the most of the opportunities so presented to them, by George C. Roeding, president of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, at Fresno, Cal., as follows:

"In this day of progress business is being divided up into two classes. In one the patron pays for the service rendered and the transaction, as far as the performance and acceptance, is completed without any further exactions from either of the parties concerned. In the other class of business there is an aftermath, or to be more to the point a reckoning which either redounds to the credit of the man or firm who receives the customer's money for the merchandise delivered, or on the other hand, the merchant may be branded as indifferent to the rights of his client, ready to take his money, congratulating himself if he succeeds in getting by without his customer discovering that he has been a victim of sharp practice.

"In most lines of business where deception has been practiced on a customer, it is only a question of a short time when he learns of the sharp practice. It is in this one respect that the nursery business differs from practically all other lines. To have nursery stock 'true to name' is what every nurseryman aspires to, as being the pivotal point in his business. He cannot afford, however, to consider that his duties are completed even after having fulfilled this part of his obligation; for there are a number of other considerations. Among these may be mentioned the securing of buds, cuttings, scions from trees which are not only thrifty but which are recognized for producing fruit of the best quality; to have the trees, so far as conditions will permit, free from disease and insect pests; to grow trees in such localities and in such soil as will produce trees of the best quality; to deliver to his customers only such stock as he would be willing to plant himself, and to pack the same in such a manner as will insure the arrival

SEATTLE NOTES.

Floral Co. here, has started in business for himself in a small store at Los Angeles.

John Holze, of the Queen City Floral Co., sent in the first tulips of the season and reports a splendid crop in prospect. He is also showing some fine potted ferns and reports a ready sale of these at the firm's retail store.

Fred Linegar is now with the sales force of the Burns Floral Co. and will fill in during the holiday season. His brother, Bert Linegar, reports an increase in decorations for the last fortnight. This firm is still receiving some of the finest large mums on the market.

H. H. Peterson, of the Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash., was a street visitor last week and reported prospects for the best holiday season yet at Everett. The growers in that section are entirely cleaned up and he found it difficult to secure enough stock in several lines from the local growers.

Florists of Seattle last week received formal notice of the marriage of Patrick W. Lee, of Vancouver, Wash., and Miss Anna J. Burns, former owner of the Burns Floral Co., at Immaculate Conception church, the latter part of November. The groom's brother acted as best man, while Miss Betty Ryan was bridesmaid.

L. W. McCoy has been showing a novelty corner alcove in his window, which has attracted considerable attention. A cardboard reproduction of a bright-colored parakeet seated in a ring hung across the front, while a bright-colored basket was set in the alcove.

Guy French, representing the American Bulb Co., Chicago, called on the trade last week.

The Beall Greenhouse Co., at Vashon Island, Wash., is adding a new greenhouse to its range, a unit 40x200 feet, which will be ready with roses for next fall. This firm sent in the first cut freesias of the new season.

The Orpheum Floral Co. has doubled its sales force to care for the holiday business and reports a splendid call for both flowers and foliage in small, bright-colored baskets.

Rosaia Bros. are showing some of the finest pink poinsettias ever seen in this market, and this flower in combination with the red blooms is made into some effective baskets and crates. A large cut of orchids between now and Christmas is promised from the greenhouses, and the same fine showing of cyclamens is reported.

The Seattle Fern & Moss Co. has been shipping large orders of holly and cedar moss to points as far east as the Mississippi river.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop has been busy with store decorations. This and funeral work resulted in overtime work for the staff nearly every night last week. Harry Crouch and E. W. Clark, of this shop, were on buying trips the greater part of last week.

One large wedding and several decorations were reported last week at Kenney's Home of Flowers, and the increased social activities are helping to keep business up.

The Hollywood Gardens have been enjoying good business and there has been a demand for the novelties worked out for the holiday season at this shop. Potted orange trees are again being shown at this store, with good results, and it is expected that their own greenhouses will supply all the poinsettias needed for this holiday.

It has been suggested that Seattle offers a chance for the secretary of the S. A. F. in protecting the trade slogan, "Say It with Flowers." A local baker has for the last few weeks been featuring in his advertising the phrase, "Say It with Fruit Cake—It Lasts Longer," and last week a furniture house in the university district branched out with "Say It with Wall Paper—Why Not?"

A fine sale of potted offerings and holly wreaths to transient trade is reported by Melby & Allen, and this shop also notes an increase in the sale of cut flowers. The entire work of decorating the recently opened Queen City market for the holidays was handled by this firm.

Advices from Hood River, Ore., to the trade say that Charles T. Rawson, formerly associated in the nursery business there with Frank Stanton and since retired, has secured a location in the upper valley and will reënter the nursery business.

The sailing, last week, of the final Oriental liner to get its passengers on the other side before New Year's day was the occasion of some fine orders. Not the least interesting part of this business was the sale, through the port steward, of a number of potted plants to be used in brightening the Christmas festivities at sea. H. M.

LANCASTER, PA.

Club Meeting.

December 16, the Lancaster County Florists' Association held its regular meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, with President W. B. Girvin, of Leola, Pa., in the chair. Fifteen members were present. Nominations for officers for 1921 resulted as follows: President, W. B. Girvin; vice-president, B. F. Barr; secretary, Albert M. Herr; treasurer, Harry K. Rohrer.

Mrs. Albert M. Herr read a summary of the year's work, and members of the club are elated over the work accomplished in 1920.

A committee was appointed to arrange a trip to the carnation show, at Washington, D. C., January 26 and 27. B. F. Barr, Elmer J. Weaver and Harry K. Rohrer constituted the committee named. Numerous plans for next year's work were discussed. One new member was elected.

The meeting was preceded by a trip to Strasburg, Pa., calling first on Amos H. Rohrer, whose carnations were in fine shape. White Wonder, Belle Washburn and Ward are the standard ones. Mr. Rohrer's range is a model for neatness and good management.

At J. Wade Gayley's, an entire house was planted with Matchless, which was grown to perfection. The plants showed from twenty-five to thirty-five flowers and buds, and growth following. Beacon, as grown here, shows the same vigor it possessed when introduced. Ward is the favorite shade of pink. Laddie is making a fine showing, and next year considerable space will be planted with it. Mr. Gayley's treat of Baldwin apples and cigars was enjoyed.

At Charles B. Herr's, the carnations were also found in excellent condition. Matchless, Ward, Supreme and Belle Washburn were the favorites. Fisher's new red does not show up as well as had been expected. A sport of Ward, similar in color to Ruth Baur, excited favorable comment. In neatness and cleanliness his establishment is not surpassed.

LAKE CHARLES, LA.

J. G. Strong, formerly with the Lang Floral & Nursery Co., Dallas, Tex., has built a greenhouse, 15x50 feet, at his residence, near Lake Charles. A large space has already been given to Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus. He is also contemplating growing small roses. He believes the soil is ideal for rose culture. Mr. Strong is cutting a large quantity of fish moss for use in nothern homes, which is a new venture also.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

The highest quality in Chrysanthemums is accorded our products by the majority of Commercial growers.

A few so-called Exhibition varieties under the best state of cultivation have in a degree Commercial qualities, but such qualities are greatly depleted under conditions slightly adverse. In other words, there is little or no middle ground—they are either good or bad.

In considering Commercial qualities, the best returns for the labor bestowed designate the varieties most useful to the grower.

A list of up-to-date varieties comprising new, recent introductions, and the best of the older kinds, will be furnished upon request.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

RECORD COAL PRODUCTION.

For the second time in a fortnight production of soft coal has made a new maximum for the year. The output during the week of December 11 is estimated at 12,865,000 net tons, an increase of 33,000 tons over revised figures for the preceding week, which up to then was the record. The output the week of December 11 has been exceeded but three times in the history of the country, the weeks of July 13 and September 28, 1918, and October 25, 1919.

The week of December 11 was the tenth in a period of sustained heavy production which has been equaled but once before and that in the summer of 1918, when the zone system, car pools and other war-time measures designed to stimulate production were in force.

The present rate is far above that in the corresponding period in any of the three years preceding. It is the more remarkable because, effective November 29, the last measure of priority in the use of open-top cars was withdrawn.

Cumulative production for the calendar year 1920 up to December 11 now stands at 525,403,000 net tons, or at the rate of 1,799,000 tons per working day. If this rate be continued for the sixteen working days remaining, the total output for 1920 will be 554,000,000 tons.

Production during the first 293 working days of the last four years has been as follows, in net tons: 1917, 525,365,000; 1918, 556,343,000; 1919, 431,091,000; 1920, 525,403,000.

In bituminous production 1920 is rapidly gaining upon its predecessors. It is within 31,000,000 tons of 1918, but this does not mean a great deal, because in that year production exceeded consumption and provided for a net addition to consumers' stocks of more than 30,000,000 tons. Neither does it signify that 1920 is far ahead of 1919, for in 1919 production fell short of consumption and consumers used up the extra stock they had acquired in 1918. It is particularly significant to note that 1920 has now passed 1917, a year when requirements were large and production about equaled consumption.

PIPING FOR A NEW HOUSE.

We contemplate building a greenhouse 25x85 feet, with 7-foot walls with four feet of glass. Both the gables will be glass and the roofbars will be fourteen feet long. The building will extend east and west. The boiler will be placed in the northwest corner, separated by a glass partition. It is an 8-section Pearson Ideal. We also have 500 feet of 1¼-inch black pipe, which we should like to use for our hot water system. Will you please tell us how to pipe this nouse? We shall not use benches; so the piping will have to run overhead or on the sides. W. C. S.—N. J.

In order to use the 1¼-inch pipe on hand we should suggest running a 2½-inch flow pipe about three feet below the ridge and supplying with it six lines of 1¼-inch returns, arranged in pairs on the purlin and ridge posts at the level of the plates, or if there are no posts in the house they can be carried on the truss rods.

For the side walls run a 3-inch flow pipe at each plate and connect each flow with a coil of five 2-inch return pipes, carried on the side walls.

We are not familiar with the Pearson Ideal heater, but to heat the house to 65 degrees in zero weather it should have a rating of about 1,500 square feet of radiation. This will require a grate about thirty inches square.

The Market.

The Columbus market is well supplied with all necessary stock for the Christmas rush. Reports are that business is excellent thus far and that this will be one of the biggest years the florists have ever had. Among the cut flowers which are plentiful are roses, carnations, violets, sweet peas, poinsettias, narcissi and daisies. Magnolia, boxwood, galax, moss, holly and rope wreaths are in abundance. Among the plants which are on sale are poinsettias, begonias, Cleveland cherries, cyclamens and ferns. Ruscus appears this year in red, green, gold, silver and white. As usual, red and green rope, loose holly, mistletoe and green moss are in the market and receiving their share of the sales of decorative articles. F.

The Market.

Last week showed a marked increase in business. Mums are gone except a few of the later varieties, and these are of poor quality. Roses of all kinds are moving well, and the quality was never better. Dunlop, Ophelia, Hoosier and Columbia are the leaders at $10 to $30 per hundred. Carnations are in good supply, but clean up well at $4 to $10 per hundred. Sweet peas are arriving in larger numbers, but the demand is far in excess of the cut. Paper Whites are plentiful at $6 per hundred.

Pot plants are beginning to move in larger numbers, and a good supply of cyclamens, Begonias Cincinnati and Melior, poinsettias, Primula obconica, ferns, cherries, peppers, etc., is in evidence for Christmas trade.

Various Notes.

A. A. Comes, formerly with the Evans Floral Co., has organized a company and has opened a store at 38 South Main street. The firm name is the Ideal Floral Co.

A firm known as the National Florist has opened a new store at 145 South Main street. Mr. Eldridge, of the American Floral Shop, will manage the business.

According to reports from all growers in this section, a bumper Christmas is almost at hand. Many growers who were afraid their stock was too large are already sold out. Prices this year are in nearly all cases the same as last year. Roses will bring $10 to $45 per hundred, carnations $8 to $20, sweet peas $2 to $4, poinsettias $3 to $8 and Paper Whites $8 to $10.

V. G. Gill, of the Fern Shop, at Ogden, visited the trade December 18.

The Miller Floral Co., at Farmington, which has the largest and best stock of Christmas plants in its history, has more orders for cyclamens, Cincinnati begonias, cherries, poinsettias, etc., than it can fill.

GREETINGS

In again extending to our many friends—customers and others—our best wishes for a

MERRY CHRISTMAS AND HAPPY NEW YEAR

—we want to thank them for the many favors they have extended to us during this past year. It has been a great year for us; yet notwithstanding the difficulties of production—shortage of labor and materials and disorganization of transportation—we have maintained our reputation—

To deliver or complete a job at the time specified or to refuse to accept the order.

Following this time-honored principle, we are proud to say that, although we have had a big business, we have not failed to “come through” on every job.

With us a June contract means June—not December, as some of our friends have found that some other builders figure.

Our friends may have felt disappointment at our refusing their work, but any well posted builder who had a reasonable amount of work on hand knew that it would be impossible to meet these specified dates and we were averse to making contracts that could not be kept. We would rather lose one order from them than their friendship.

Foley promises—like Foley Greenhouses—make good every time. May we have the pleasure of proving both to you?

Our prices are down—our facilities are increased—and inquiries are coming in.

TORONTO, ONT.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club was held December 13, with President S. A. McFadden in the chair. There was a large attendance and there were several good discussions. All the members were enthusiastic over the outlook for the Christmas trade.

The publicity committee chairman, Geo. M. Geraghty, reported as to the work of the committee in Christmas advertising. Both growers and retailers had supported the advertising fund liberally, with the result that effective advertising was made possible. It was decided to use the Sunday papers and some of the daily papers.

The advertising committee also reported on the "Say It with Flowers" signboards. It was decided that the growers located at the entrances to the city should have the first chance to purchase the signs and several have been sold. Several of the members wanted signs, but will have to take second chance.

It was decided to unite with the Gardeners' and Florists' Association in staging a flower show next year. The president will appoint the committee.

S. A. Frost is scheduled to read a paper at the January meeting. The conveners of the social and entertainment committees were instructed to make arrangements for the annual dance in January. The date will be announced later.

Carl Grobba was congratulated on the splendid show which he staged for the benefit of the trade at his greenhouses.

Steps will be taken to stop Sunday selling. Power has been given authorities to secure evidence and see that offenders are punished.

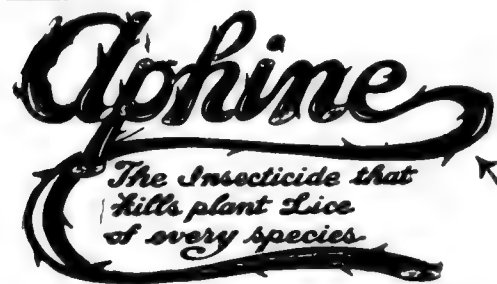

In February a St. Valentine's social will be held.

Various Notes.

F. R. Pierson, of Tarrytown, N. Y., was a recent visitor.

Business is piling up for Christmas. Memorial wreaths are selling particularly well this year. J. J. H.

Texarkana, Tex.—Mrs. E. Garrett has opened a flower store at 1624 West Seventh street and is enjoying a good trade.

FLOWERS AS SOUVENIRS.

On several occasions I have had applications for prices of flowers for use as souvenirs, to be given away at the opening of stores, such as jewelry, and being a little in doubt, should be glad to have your opinion or some of your readers' if in that case they would be entitled to a wholesale price by taking several hundred to be given away to visitors.

W. M.—Mich.

Flowers seldom are used as souvenirs at store openings except at times of abundant supply. At other times the demands of the trade are such that it is impossible to furnish flowers in quantity at a price which will justify their use for souvenir gift purposes. When a florist has more stock than he needs for his regular trade, if somebody wants to take the surplus off his hands and give it away to the public, the florist usually is willing to make a price that will make the transaction possible. It isn't the cost of production which regulates the price of flowers, though it should; the price of flowers is determined by the relationship of supply and demand.

HARDY FRAGRANT LILIES.

Will you furnish the names of hardy, white, fragrant lilies and the season of blooming for each? When planting lilies I desire to have the season of bloom extended over the longest time possible by obtaining the necessary variety.

M. P. C.—Ky.

The following are the more desirable varieties of liliun adapted for open-air culture. The time for flowering given is for the neighborhood of New York city. The period would, of course, be earlier in Kentucky.

L. candidum, commonly known as the Madonna, St. Joseph's, Ascension and the Annunciation lily, must be planted not later than October 1 and the bulbs covered about four inches. North of France bulbs are the best and these usually arrive early in September. The flowers open June 25 to 30. Associated with larkspurs, these immaculately white blooms are especially beautiful.

L. speciosum album flowers in August and September. Bulbs arrive from Japan about the end of November and should be planted at once, eight to nine inches deep.

L. longiflorum giganteum, the variety mostly grown for Easter flowering under glass, succeeds well outdoors. Japanese bulbs are excellent, but some home-grown bulbs are now offered and should be even better. This lily, with a little mulch, winters well, even in New England, and flowers in late May and June.

L. regale, or L. myriophyllum, the regal lily of China, is a hardy, magnificent garden lily. The flowers are white, slightly suffused with pink. The throat is pale yellow. Plant in late October or November, seven to eight inches deep. This variety of lily flowers early in July.

L. auratum, the handsome golden-rayed lily of Japan, carries flowers six to eight inches across, pure white in color, with a wide band of gold in the center of each petal and numerous crimson spots. This is a beautiful and highly fragrant garden lily and should be planted in November or December, eight to nine inches deep. The blooms remain from July until September.

L. Brownii has large, fragrant, trumpet-shaped flowers, pure white inside and purple outside. It is a handsome garden lily, flowering in July.

This completes the list of hardy, fragrant, white-flowered liliuns adaptable for garden culture. Fall is the proper planting season. Deep planting is necessary for all but L. candidum. Put some sharp sand below and over the bulbs. Let no fresh manure come in contact with them and give a winter mulch of straw or leaves.

THREE CROPS OF SNAPDRAGONS.

We should be pleased to know if you have any data at hand relative to leaving snapdragons in a bench after the first cut was taken; that is to say, after the blooms were out in September and October. The plants appear to be free from rust, but we were wondering if second growth would be a thin growth. The spikes do not seem strong, but will the stock be strong? K. & S.—Wis.

By all means keep your snapdragons from which you have just cut a fall crop. The shoots may look somewhat thin now, but these plants will give you a splendid crop towards spring and the spikes will be immeasurably superior to those cut in the fall. The idea that snapdragons should be discarded after one crop is utterly erroneous. For some years the writer has benched plants early in August. These produced a nice fall crop. In midwinter they hang fire somewhat, but in March and April they always produced a great crop; and usually, by leaving the plants in, I have secured a third crop from Memorial day until July 1, when the plants are discarded. To secure spikes of the best quality, it would pay you to remove a number of the weakest shoots from each plant. But if you want spikes of moderate size, adaptable for a home retail trade, disbudding need not be practiced. One point to remember, and it is an important one, is that you should not pinch any shoots until the spikes show color. If pinched while the shoots are soft, the plants will break all right, but the shoots will be, for the most part, blind. Before your second crop comes in, a mulch of old manure will benefit the plants. If you decide to leave them in for a third crop, an additional and somewhat heavier mulch should be applied. To avoid rust, keep moisture off the foliage. Air freely, let the minimum temperature be 45 degrees to 50 degrees, and do not use gas as a fumigant; tobacco papers are safer. C. W.

—and speaking of ranges that were erected by us—

The one erected for the Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn., is generally conceded to be the most complete and up-to-date erected in the middle west this year.

Many who visited this range on their way to or from the meeting of the Tennessee State Florists' Association felt that an inspection of this range was in itself well worth the trip.

And so this is a double purpose range—it produces the high grade stock handled by the Joy Floral Co., and it advertises it at the same time.

When you say the word, we'll be glad to figure on houses for you that will boost your business in two ways.

Zuck of Erie Keeps Building

You know it was not so long ago when our iron frame house was thought to be "too good for anything but roses and carnations."

As for growing tomatoes, cucumbers or lettuce, it was nothing short of rank extravagance.

How things do change!

And what think you brought about the change toward Iron Framers?

Why did Zuck stop building other kinds and keep right on building the one kind, the Iron Frame?

Why did Davis, "The Cucumber King," start right at the start with iron frames and keep right on building until he now has over half a million invested?

Mostly the use of a pencil and paper combined with common sense.

Simple enough is the answer.

They build iron frame houses because they are the best permanent investment.

Built the way we build them, they produce more, beyond a doubt.

Once built, they stay built.

Which is only another way of saying that once you put your money in them, your money stays put.

Zuck of Erie, Pa., keeps right on building our 72-footers.

When you are ready to talk building, say when and where and we'll be there.

TRADE CELEBRATES BIG CHRISTMAS

Little affected by general business apathy, florists enjoyed excellent Christmas trade in both plants and cut flowers. The supply of the former was not so large or varied as previously and the weather hindered the latter, but sales were large. To get the stock desired was more difficult than to sell it.

OW independent is the flower business from the general depression that affects other lines was demonstrated in the Christmas trade last week. A hesitancy on retailers' part to prepare for a large business indicated two weeks ago their opinion that the public would curtail its holiday purchases in the same spirit that it bore, and bears, toward merchandise lines in general. But the "buyers' strike" did not extend to flowers, as the trade now well knows, for Christmas sales, as a general rule, were not far behind the record set last year, a fact that may be considered remarkable in view of the lack of holiday buying in other lines. Not only has the trade reason for satisfaction in an excellent Yuletide business, but it may also congratulate itself on having so firmly established the desire, if not need, of its commodity in the public's mind that the demand therefor holds strong though other lines feel general depression.

Close to Record.

From all parts of the country reports agree that this holiday's business was one of the best the trade has had. Few florists assert that it was a record-breaker, though in some places it was exceptionally good. But in many localities this year's sales were so close to last year's high mark that the trade feels elated. Many florists had anticipations of much less and were therefore agreeably surprised by the last-hour tide of buying that brought the total so high. Of course, there were localities where the shutdown of factories and mills cut down the buying capacity of the local trade to a marked degree; in those places this Christmas has been far behind the profitable pitch of some other years. But these places are not so numerous, nor is the slump so notable as many believed it would be.

The sudden descent in temperature which took place the day before Christmas in certain sections of the country cost the less careful florists a part of their otherwise good profit in replacing frozen plants and flowers. Thursday, December 23, was none too mild, the temperature hovering close to freezing in the north central states, though it was generally higher and more favorable in the east.

Weather a Handicap.

Friday brought a drop of from a dozen to a score degrees, necessitating more care and greater wrapping. The snow and cold, too, kept indoors many who would otherwise have been out shopping that day and deprived florists of much counter trade.

Some districts were better favored and florists in those places experienced good cash sales and little difficulty in delivering orders. From those sections reports of the holiday's business are brightest.

To the growers, of course, the weather of the preceding month had been a handicap, though whether more than usual is hard to say. The effects were most marked in cut flowers. The variety was notably small this year, and good stock was not overabundant. All of the best that could be had found a ready sale, but some poor stock could not be moved. Beauties were not plentiful. Carnations felt the effects of the weather, and the small supply available brought excellent prices. Red, naturally, was all too scarce. Violets were not in their usual supply and were missed in many stores. Sweet peas, because of the weather, cut less figure than usual. Paper Whites and Soleil d'Or helped out in some places, the former being quite abundant in some places. Other items did not cut much figure. Roses were the big item and, as always, were too few in the good grades and too many in the poor. These conditions, one should remember, are generally stated, though some items varied widely in different localities.

Plants Not Plentiful.

In plants the supply was not the most favorable. The variety on hand seemed less than in former years. For a second season that Christmas stand-by, the cyclamen, was far from plentiful enough. Nor were any other items in markedly large supply. The opinion was general among retailers that there were not enough of the handsome specimens that appeal to the best trade. In place of such offerings were substituted baskets of plants in which the artistry of the arrangement was made to supply what the culture failed to furnish. Some large poinsettias and some fine ericas were seen here and there, as were a few of other kinds of plants, but the general run gave rise to expression of the sentiment that the greenhouse industry, which lost ground during and since the war, must accelerate its progress to keep step with the retail profession. The scarcity of help in months past was reflected this Christmas, and since this is over, there are hopes of immediate improvement.

Foliage plants sold better this Christmas than on many past occasions, for the simple reason that blooming plants were lacking for desired purposes. This fact is regarded with favor by all the trade, for such sales promote the use of plants the year around in the home.

As an Augury.

Interpreted as an indication of what the trade may expect in the way of business during the coming months, the Christmas trade contained propitious omens. As mentioned above, it showed that the slump that had hit other lines of business did not affect the sale of flowers to the extent many members of the trade feared. Indeed, it is believed that the strain of high prices on the salaried class is being somewhat relieved and that the resumption of flower buying by individuals so affected will offset the loss that will accrue as a result of the return of extravagant wages to something like normalcy. This Christmas trade also indicated what had been earlier remarked, that supply was falling behind demand, in plants as in cut flowers, and that a real effort would be needed to catch up. High price of coal, now past, and scarcity of labor, also at an end, were contributing causes, and with them removed, the outlook is more promising. Signs point, too, toward a building boom in the greenhouse trade next spring, which will better production next year.

For Easter, however, special efforts must be made to prepare sufficient stock by the early date on which it falls in 1921. Present indications are not for an exceedingly large supply, though it is yet early to prophesy. If general business resumes its active advance, as financial men forecast, then the big day of spring will call for all the material the trade can prepare.

CHICAGO'S ADVERTISING.

The early hesitation on the part of flower buyers seemed to have been overcome in Chicago by some means or other, for last-minute business was exceptionally heavy. The advertising of the Allied Florists' Association was doubtless instrumental in this. For the occasion two advertisements, occupying nearly one-quarter page each, appeared at the beginning of Christmas week. In the two Sunday papers, December 19, the Tribune and the Herald and Examiner, appeared one advertisement suggesting flowers as gifts and calling attention to telegraph delivery service. This advertisement was repeated in the four afternoon papers the following day. December 21 and 22 appeared the advertisement reproduced on the preceding page, three papers being used each day. The total circulation reached by the six insertions of these two advertisements, according to Secretary H. V. Swenson's estimate, is 4,000,000. That means, approximately, that everybody in Chicago had a chance to see florists' advertising twice.

Individual florists also carried conspicuous advertising the week before Christmas, the largest and most striking being that of the Fleischman Floral Co., Thursday morning, December 23, which occupied nearly an entire page.

TAKE TIP FROM REVIEW.

Seek to Explain High Prices.

A month ago, in the December 2 issue, The Review indicated how florists could, in the words of the article's caption, "Check Complaints on High Prices." The newspaper publicity given this subject at Thanksgiving time prompted the article and the suggestion then made was that effective work of this character could be done for Christmas, when it would be notably needed. The simplest procedure of getting this explanatory material on the subject of prices into the columns of the daily press was illustrated by a letter from The Review to the editor of the Tribune, Chicago's largest daily, printed in the latter at that time.

The suggestion and the mode of procedure indicated at that time by The Review were followed last week in Chicago. Working in behalf of the Allied Florists' Association of Illinois, Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, who had gone to that city from Cleveland for the purpose of getting articles into the daily papers, succeeded in breaking into the Herald and Examiner, the smaller morning paper, in the department headed "Letters from the People." Under the caption "Why 'Say It with Flowers' Is Costly," she developed the idea suggested by The Review, giving a few interesting details for the public's consumption. Her letter, which appeared in the Herald and Examiner December 24, read as follows:

Recently there appeared in Chicago papers an article which gave the impression that the florists are profiteering. Here are some of the facts: If a rose is a new variety it costs the grower anywhere from 25 cents to $1 per plant. It has to be cared for by a $5-a-day man-watered once each day, given air and ventilation, according to weather conditions, stakes pruned and fumigated at least weekly, sometimes oftener. It requires expert treatment by a man who understands roses. Then one or two shoots only are allowed to come up and mature for flowers.

Meanwhile, the coal that costs $12 a ton has been used to force these two roses into bloom. Every single thing that enters into the production of the roses has advanced 100 to 300 per cent—glass, stakes, fertilizer, insecticides as well as labor and coal, and not one item has come down as yet. The same scale holds good for all flowers grown under glass.

After the roses are grown they have to be cut, put into water, packed and sent by truck to a city wholesale house, where they are graded into extra selects, selects, firsts, seconds and culls—all depending on the length and strength of the stems. Then they are sold to the retail stores. Retail prices are governed entirely by the wholesale market, and the whole sale market bases its prices solely on the question of demand and supply.

At Christmas time there is very little sun to ripen and open the flowers; sometimes a rosebud will stay dormant for a week or two during such dark weather as we are having now, whereas a bright, sunny day will bring them popping open.

The retailer must recut the stems, etc. The customer, told to "Say It with Flowers," thinks he will, but when the high-salaried clerk tells him these long-stemmed roses will cost him from $8 to $18 a dozen, he thinks hard things of the florist. If the customer understood and considered what it cost to lay that dozen long-stemmed roses before him, he would wonder how the florist could sell them as cheaply as he does. One grower told me he had 105 men employed and had put in 50,000 tons of coal and did not expect that would see him through. And, besides, the city retailer has high rents, expensive help and expensive deliveries to make.

WELL PLANNED

HEAVY CHRISTMAS RUSH.

Fails to Faze Fox.

[I have never had even a few moments to spare on the day before Christmas. There was always too much to do. So when an invitation came to see how a flower shop in the center of Philadelphia is conducted during a holiday rush, I just accepted and made the time.—Phil.]

It was a little after 11 on the morning of Friday, December 24. The time is of especial importance because it signifies the peak of the Christmas rush. Charles Henry Fox was standing a few paces inside the door of his attractive flower shop just below the Ritz. He looked serene and cheerful, as though he had not a care in the world, and after a cordial greeting proposed a stroll through the place.

The shop was exquisitely clean and neat. Many beautiful plants were arranged effectively; yet the impression created was that they happened to be there, as it were, by the merest chance. Each plant was a perfect specimen and was placed in a basket of a color that harmonized best with its fruit or foliage. Mr. Fox favors plants at Christmas, because their value and quality are known in advance. Nothing raw is sent out. Everything must be the finished product that will reflect credit everywhere. Customers were coming and going, yet there was no hurry or bustle about the shop; rather an air of quiet elegance. The bookkeeping department, immediately in the rear of the shop, was busily employed entering the orders that had been filled.

Departments for Everything.

The shipping department was packing and tagging the orders preparatory to delivery. As the order was wrapped it was placed in its special compartment with its fellows. A map of Philadelphia on the wall showed clearly all the streets and to which route the parcels belonged. The city is for convenience divided into sections, such as central, north Philadelphia, Germantown, Chestnut Hill, the main line, and so on. Each section is a route; each route is assigned to a truck. Wherever possible, delivery is made by messenger rather than by truck.

The next and most important department was devoted to filling orders. W. C. Harry was supplying both executive and motive power, aided by able assistants. Charts, alphabetically arranged, were on the walls, showing the facts concerning all the Christmas orders; by whom sent, to whom, their contents, when sent, where and the route. Each order slip either had the card fastened on it with the tag, or the words, "No Card," were written on it. Beyond the packing room is a natural cooling room formed by the space between two tall brick walls. It is filled with shelves and is ventilated by means of a shaft with an opening at the top at one end. There is an opening near the floor at the other end to induce circulation. Flowers placed here retain their vitality, even in summer, for a long time.

"The idea in all this," Mr. Fox said, "is to keep the departments separate. Let each do their own special work and do it well. There is no rushing in and out of the store to fill orders, no closing the store to fill orders. The packing for today began at 5:30 this morning. It will probably be finished by 5:30 this afternoon, and it will be well done. There will be few mistakes, because each person's mind is on what he or she is doing and the work has been carefully planned."

While parting, Mr. Fox gave a glimpse at his floral policy. "I think the drift of the market toward roses is an advantage. At best, the carnation is a plebeian flower. I do not have them at Christmas, because it is impossible to judge their age. Had I 500 carnations in the place, there would be a lot of complaints Monday morning. I do not favor begonias for the same reason. They are even more perishable than carnations. We like cyclamens, poinsettias and oranges at Christmas. No, people do not care for ardisias. We put them in the window. They say, 'How pretty!' and buy the others. Yes, crotons are good."

"I think it is a mistake to offer pussy willow now. Stock should be confined to reds and purples. Pussy willow should not come until after New Year's. Violets have been unsatisfactory this year, and we have no good substitutes for them."

"Before you go, observe how the colors on these pots harmonize with the fruit or foliage or flower of the plant, as the case may be. They are selected with great care."

Phil.

CHRISTMAS CYCLAMENS.

Though, in common with the other plant growers in the Chicago district,

Frank Oechslin observed the effects of the fungous disease that caused grave concern to some cyclamen specialists, he had an abundant stock of this Christmas stand-by, including a large quantity of fine specimens in 5-inch to 8-inch pots. Mr. Oechslin has always done well with this plant and this year, as formerly, none better were to be had in his vicinity. They are now all gone, for every plant was called for by Chicago retailers for the holidays. But the illustration on this page gives an indication of how fine a stock Mr. Oechslin had. This illustration shows one of the four houses filled with cyclamens. At the right is Mr. Oechslin himself. He is entertaining some members of the American Bulb Co., including the president, A. Miller, and Guy Reburn, who were interested in seeing how their seed turned out. The view is in Mr. Oechslin's Forest Park range, about ten miles west of the heart of Chicago.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Annual Convention.

The American Carnation Society will hold its convention in Washington, D. C., January 26 and 27, 1921. Headquarters will be at the New Willard hotel, where the exhibition will also be staged. The premium schedule has been mailed to all the members and additional copies will be mailed upon request to those who are interested. Classes are provided for the various colors and varieties in both the new and standard sorts, with both cash and medal prizes. Entries must be in by January 16 to escape penalty for late entry. A large attendance and a complete exhibition are expected. The secretary urges all who possibly can to attend the convention. Washington offers unusual opportunities for sight-seeing, aside from the interest in the convention itself, making this meeting both pleasant and profitable. Following is a program of the business sessions:

MARYSVILLE, KAN.

"The best Christmas trade on record," is the way H. R. Fisher put it. "If there was a shortage of money we did not notice it, as we cleaned up on everything." Plants sold better than ever and at much better prices, according to Mr. Fisher. Cut flowers also made a record, making this the banner year in every respect. Flowers were furnished by H. R. Fisher for six funerals during Christmas week, making an exceptionally busy week. He reports numerous orders ahead for more funeral work.

Mr. Oechslin has always done well with this plant and this year, as formerly, none better were to be had in his vicinity. They are now all gone, for every plant was called for by Chicago retailers for the holidays. But the illustration on this page gives an indication of how fine a stock Mr. Oechslin had. This illustration shows one of the four houses filled with cyclamens. At the right is Mr. Oechslin himself. He is entertaining some members of the American Bulb Co., including the president, A. Miller, and Guy Reburn, who were interested in seeing how their seed turned out. The view is in Mr. Oechslin's Forest Park range, about ten miles west of the heart of Chicago.

Annual Convention.

The American Carnation Society will hold its convention in Washington, D. C., January 26 and 27, 1921. Headquarters will be at the New Willard hotel, where the exhibition will also be staged. The premium schedule has been mailed to all the members and additional copies will be mailed upon request to those who are interested. Classes are provided for the various colors and varieties in both the new and standard sorts, with both cash and medal prizes. Entries must be in by January 16 to escape penalty for late entry. A large attendance and a complete exhibition are expected. The secretary urges all who possibly can to attend the convention. Washington offers unusual opportunities for sight-seeing, aside from the interest in the convention itself, making this meeting both pleasant and profitable. Following is a program of the business sessions:

MARYSVILLE, KAN.

"The best Christmas trade on record," is the way H. R. Fisher put it. "If there was a shortage of money we did not notice it, as we cleaned up on everything." Plants sold better than ever and at much better prices, according to Mr. Fisher. Cut flowers also made a record, making this the banner year in every respect. Flowers were furnished by H. R. Fisher for six funerals during Christmas week, making an exceptionally busy week. He reports numerous orders ahead for more funeral work.

LADDIE WINS IN ENGLAND.

December 1 the British Carnation Society held its annual winter show in London, and Laddie made its first appearance in quantity. This carnation was first in the salmon-pink class. It was one of the winning twelve vases in the champion class and one of the vases of winners in the class for three American-raised novelties. A vase of this variety received a special medal awarded to the best vase in the show, and it also had an award of merit from the British Carnation Society, as well as a similar award from the Royal Horticultural Society the previous day. Not a bad record for a debutante.

RUINED BY BUD-ROT.

We are sending under separate cover a few carnations, some in bud and bloom, for your inspection. These flowers came from what seemed to be healthy plants. Any information you can give us as to what the trouble is, etc., will be appreciated. K. F. C.—Ia.

Your carnation buds are being ruined by a mite which causes what is commonly termed bud-rot. This tiny insect gets into the heart of the young buds and punctures the tissue of the petals. If the plant growth is rapid the damage is less severe than it is apt to be during the dull days of winter, when the growth is slow. Any check the plants are subjected to will aggravate it also. Pick off the affected buds and burn them. Spray regularly twice each week with nicotine, but keep the plants dry overhead otherwise. Matchless seems more susceptible than most other varieties. A. F. J. B.

TOO MUCH FUMIGATION.

What is the matter with our carnation plants? I am sending under separate cover a cutting of our Beacon. The whole bench from which it is taken has brown tips on the foliage. We have eight benches in this house. A bench of Beacon on the opposite side of the house has no such trouble. We have had little sunshine for three months. We have grown carnations successfully for seven years and have never had anything like this before. They are growing well and are in good crop. We have fumigated on the steam pipes and sprayed overhead and are inclined to think we have overdone one or the other and have burnt the leaves. We are troubled by neither thrips nor aphids. C.—Ore.

You are probably right in surmising that you have overdone the fumigating or spraying on your Beacon carnation plants. The dark weather has most likely caused the growth to be rather soft and if the plants happened to be dry at the roots at the time the spraying was done, the damage mentioned would likely result. There is nothing to do now, except to let the plants grow out of it. The shoot submitted showed no indication of disease, outside of the burning of the tips. A. F. J. B.

BRANCH ROT OF CARNATIONS.

Our carnations do not seem to grow. In the case of many, half of the plant dries up or becomes wilted and the stems are so brittle they snap in two at a touch. They are growing in a rather shady place, on account of the office being built close to the house. The office is lighted with gas. Do you suppose that would have anything to do with the carnations? Another peculiar trouble is that the roots do not seem to take good hold of the soil. This trouble we had last year as well. L. & G.—Ill.

Without a specimen, it is impossible to give a definite opinion as to the nature of your trouble. The wilting of portions of your plants might be caused by branch rot. Examine the stems of the branches and see whether they are healthy. If the wood is dead and the rest of the plant seems healthy, the trouble is probably branch rot. There is really no remedy for it. If the rotting is close to the main stem, you might as well pull up the plant and burn it. If the decay is some distance from the main stem, you can sometimes cut away the diseased branch and save the rest of the plant. The gas in your office can do your plants no good and a little leak in the pipes might do much damage. Better arrange to discontinue the use of gas altogether. A. F. J. B.

THANK YOU, MR. ARMACOST!

The Review has many good friends, to whose kind words much of the paper's new business is due. But not often does an advertiser buy space in The Review to tell its readers of The Review's merits as an advertising medium, the way Walter Armacost did last week. Refer to page 59, issue of December 23, where Armacost & Co. begin their page as follows:

These Review ads certainly have an awful wallop; it keeps us busy running blue pencil through price lists and printing "Sold Out" signs.

Thank you, Mr. Armacost! Your way of putting it should cause some other good grower who wants more orders to try your way of getting them. And Review readers will do the rest.

COSTLY FIRE

CHRISTMAS BLAZE IN ATLANTA.

C. A. Dahl Co. Losses $30,000.

Atlanta, Ga., witnessed a spectacular fire Christmas morning, when the store of the C. A. Dahl Co., one of the largest retail flower shops in the south, was completely destroyed and the Nunnally Co., a flower and confectionery company in the same building, suffered heavy losses. The damage to the Dahl Co. is estimated at $30,000 and that to the Nunnally Co. at $20,000. The losses of both firms were covered by insurance.

Fortunately, the two companies had nearly all their holiday orders delivered and, up to the morning of the fire, had done an exceptionally good trade. All unfilled orders of both firms were taken care of through the courtesy of brother florists, who came promptly to the rescue. The Nunnally Co. resumed business a few days later at the same location and the Dahl Floral Co. opened a new store Monday, December 27, at 72 North Broad street.

Three-Hour Blaze.

The fire originated in the basement of the building, 101 to 103 Peachtree street, shortly before 10 o'clock Christmas morning. Defective wiring was blamed for the blaze. Water and smoke caused a considerable portion of the damage to the Nunnally Co. The fire, besides gutting the above-named establishments, spread to the rear of 105 Peachtree street and did considerable damage to an optical firm's stock there. The total damage, including the value of buildings, was estimated at over $100,000.

The fire was discovered by R. I. Gresham, manager of the Dahl Co., but before the firemen could begin operations the building was wrapped in flames and it was almost three hours before the blaze could be brought under control.

Great volumes of smoke rolled out from the front of the burning structure and the firemen were faced by many difficulties. Tons of water were poured into the building and, running through into the basement of the Nunnally establishment, ruined thousands of dollars' worth of candy and confections of various kinds.

Dahl Co. Moves.

Eight pumping engines were in operation and more than a dozen streams of water played on the burning structures for three hours. All traffic was held up during the entire morning. It was with difficulty that the flames were prevented from spreading to adjacent buildings.

When it became apparent that the establishment of the C. A. Dahl Co. had been wiped out, Mr. Gresham announced that business would be carried on as usual and that the company would occupy a part of the Goodhart-Tompkins store, at 72 North Broad street.

Still Another Fire.

Ralph Dean had a small blaze Christmas week in his workroom, North Broad street. He managed, however, to extinguish it unaided, although at the expense of his person. His hands in particular were badly burned, but at the time of writing were much improved.

ONE YEAR OF QUARANTINE

FEDERAL BOARD'S REPORT.

For First Year Under Quarantine 37.

The annual report of the Federal Horticultural Board, submitted by Chairman C. L. Marlatt to Secretary of Agriculture Meredith, is of especial interest this year because of the summary it gives of the first year's operation of Quarantine 37 and the result upon this country's horticultural imports. Regarding this subject the report says:

"Quarantine 37, which applies new and important prohibitions and restrictions on the entry into the United States of nursery stock, plants and seeds, became effective June 1, 1919. The fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, therefore, represents the first year's record of the enforcement of this quarantine. Under this quarantine three classes of entry are provided for:

"1. Entry of fruits, vegetables, cereals and other plant products which are capable of propagation, intended for medicinal, food or manufacturing purposes, and field, vegetable and flower seeds. These classes are permitted entry without permit or other restrictions and therefore no record has been kept by the board of such importations.

"2. Nursery stock and other plants and seeds for which permit is required, but of which unlimited commercial importation is permitted. This class is restricted to five categories, chiefly certain bulbs, fruit stocks and rose stocks and seeds of trees and ornamental shrubs for propagation.

"3. Entry of any of the prohibited classes of nursery stock under special permits for the purpose of keeping the country supplied with new varieties and necessary propagating stock; in other words, for the establishment of reproduction enterprises in this country so that as soon as possible this country shall be independent of all foreign supplies of that character.

Imports of Stock Allowed Entry.

"The three tables on this page record the importations of nursery stock and other plants and seeds of which unlimited commercial importation under regulation 3 is provided for in the quarantine under permit. The records of importations given in these tables are based on the notice of arrival viséed by the customs officers as is required under the quarantine, and therefore represent probably as accurate information of the plants thus imported as is obtainable.

"The first table gives a record of the importations of fruit stocks and rose stocks, together with country of origin. It is interesting to note that the importation of fruit stocks this year represents a total of 7,856,620 plants and compares therefore favorably with the total importations recorded in the annual report for the previous fiscal year and would seem to dispose of the contention frequently made that the unavailability of foreign fruit stocks during the last fiscal year was due in any part to the refusal of the foreign growers to sell to American importers in retaliation for Quarantine 37. It is, however, a well known fact that during the last two years, owing to postwar conditions and failure of the fruit crop in France, the stock of seeds for the production of seedlings was very low, and whatever shortage has arisen has been due to these two causes. The number of rose stocks imported this year is about the same as for last year.

"The second table indicates the number of bulbs imported under regulation 3 of Quarantine 37.

"The third table is interesting as showing the general classes of tree seeds and ornamental shrubs imported during the last fiscal year and also the countries of origin.

Imports on Permit.

"As already noted, provision is made in Quarantine 37 for the entry under special permit of limited quantities of otherwise prohibited nursery stock and other plants for the purpose of keeping the country supplied with new varieties and necessary propagating stock. The question of availability of plant material for which special permits are requested is passed upon by a committee of specialists of the bureau of plant industry. The issuance of such permits is then based on the recommendations of this committee.

"Three hundred and eleven special permits were issued during the period from June 1, 1919, the date on which Quarantine 37 became effective, to June 30, 1920, a period of thirteen months. These permits included a wide range of plant materials and are each issued for a specific importation of plants. The importations authorized have already been made in the case of approximately 174 of these permits. The other permits have been canceled for a number of reasons, as a general rule because of the inability of the grower to secure the desired stock or because of transportation difficulties abroad and other similar hindrances.

"The material thus imported was found as a whole fairly free from dangerous insects or fungous diseases. It was, however, necessary to destroy several shipments because of the presence of injurious insects which could not have been eliminated by any known treatment. In spite of the fact that emphasis has been made at all times on the necessity of bringing in plant material free of sand, soil or earth about the roots, twelve shipments were found the roots of which in whole or in part were embedded in soil. These shipments were returned to country of origin or destroyed.

"A large number of special permits have been issued also for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921. The record of these permits is not included in the table on page 20, which gives the classes of plants actually imported up to June 30, 1920, and the country of Inspection of Imported Plants.

"In spite of the reduction in the number of plants imported into the United States during the last fiscal year as the result of Quarantine 37, the total number of different kinds of insects (290 species) intercepted exceeds that of any previous fiscal year. This increase in the number of interceptions can probably be explained by the fact that all plants imported under special permit were examined under very favorable conditions by expert inspectors at Washington, D. C. Moreover, this material ceptions have been made at the port of New York, including a large shipment of Italian broom corn infested with the European corn borer. A careful inspection has been made of all foreign boats arriving at New Orleans, 1,608 in number, 289 of which carried contraband material either as cargo, ships' stores or in passengers' baggage. Exclusive of Canadian arrivals, 195 foreign ships were inspected at Seattle, seventy-seven of which carried contraband material. The work at this port also included the supervision of cotton fumigation and corn sterilization.

"In order to strengthen the plant quarantine service of the state of California, the board has placed a trained pathological inspector at San Francisco to assist and cooperate with the state inspectors at that port. As in the past, the plant quarantine inspectors of California as well as of the state of Florida are carried as collaborators of this board. In order to further safeguard against the entry into the United States of quarantined products or injurious insects and plant diseases, inspectors have been placed at Portland, Ore.; Philadelphia, Pa., and Norfolk, Va. Moreover, it is proposed to study the conditions at other ports and if necessary establish an inspection service at the places presenting the most danger. It is understood that all port work is conducted in close cooperation with the customs officials.

"The matter of strengthening the port inspection service was brought between 6 and 7 p. m. Would that be the cause of this root decay and dropping of leaves? H. G. A.—Ia.

Sharp drops in temperature are the most probable cause of your plants losing foliage, but this should not affect the roots in any way. On the mornings after the temperature had dropped down sharply you may have noticed how the foliage, even though green, drooped badly. When this occurs some loss of leaves is liable to follow, unless a steady temperature thereafter is maintained. My experience has been that one sharp drop may not do much damage, but a recurrence is sure to cause trouble. Abstracts develop, if the temperature is gradually lowered no harm will result, provided always that the plants are carefully watered and not exposed to any cold drafts. C. W.

HOW TO STERILIZE SOIL.

We should like to know how to sterilize soil which is in the greenhouse. We have two houses, containing three beds, 7x160 feet. What we want to know is how many lines of 1-inch pipe should be used for each bed, the size and distance apart of the holes in the pipe, how long the steam should be turned on and at what pressure. C. W. & S.—Ind.

While we have seen excellent results from sterilizing soil while in place in the greenhouse beds, we should advise placing the soil in special sterilizing boxes, perhaps 8x30 feet with a depth of about two feet. As these boxes may be covered, a more thorough process of sterilization can be obtained.

Whether for use in the beds described or in special frames or boxes, we suggest three rows of pipes about twenty-seven inches apart. One-inch pipe would answer for the short boxes, but it should be 1½-inch for the first 100 feet in a greenhouse 160 feet long.

To allow the steam to escape, drill ⅛-inch holes every thirty inches. Bury the pipes to a depth of eight inches. Sterilize with about ten to fifteen pounds of steam for an hour or so after the ends of the beds have reached 150 degrees. It will be helpful if the beds can be covered with canvas, hotbed sashes, shutters or a similar covering.

Instead of supplying each bed with a sterilizing system, we would suggest that the pipes be transferred from one bed to another. The cost of labor would be slight. If the pipes are left in the beds, there is danger that the steam openings will become clogged with rust. T.

TEMBLETT'S TELEGRAPH IDEA.

That the Pink Part of The Review has become recognized as an important part of florists' telegraph delivery service is evidenced by a recent display window staged by William H. Temblett, 10313 Euclid avenue, Cleveland, O. From the various cities on a large map in the window ribbons led to small cards on which were pasted advertisements clipped from the Pink Part of The Review. The city from which the ribbon led was represented at the other end by the advertisement from The Review of a prominent firm in that place.

The floral display accompanying ranged from corsages to pot plants. Mrs. Temblett and Mr. Kent, the manager, state that the display brought more visitors into the store and caused more passers-by to stop and look than any previous display.

did not arrive in large quantities and it was possible to give each plant a very careful examination. Some of the more important interceptions follow: Gypsy moth egg masses on shipments of nursery stock from France; pink bollworm in shipments from China, Japan and Mexico; potato tuber moth from Australia, Chile, Costa Rica and Panama; the sorrel cutworm from France; spiny citrus white fly from Cuba; West Indian fruit fly from Jamaica and Cuba; injurious avocado weevils from Mexico, Guatemala and the Canal Zone; apple-seed chalcids from Germany; wireworm, injurious to potatoes, from Denmark; sweet potato weevil from Bahama, Cuba and Porto Rico; West Indian sweet potato weevil from Antigua and Porto Rico, and two other injurious sweet potato weevils from Hawaii and Jamaica. Numerous other pests were collected, including scale insects, mites and ants.

Port Inspection Service.

"The inspection and disinfection of plants and plant products required as a condition of entry at the principal ports of the United States have been continued substantially along the lines described in previous reports. Numerous inter-strongly to the attention of Congress in connection with the estimates for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, and $100,000 was included in the estimates for this purpose. Of this amount, $76,756 was appropriated by Congress. The enlargement of the work under the plant quarantine act leads to a constant growth in the requirements of this port inspection service and the funds available are still very inadequate to give the service and protection which is necessary to secure the full benefits of the plant quarantine act. Most of the increase granted last year will be taken up in strengthening the existing service and extensions of the service to the ports of greatest danger which it has not been possible hitherto to safeguard."

POINSETTIA LEAVES DROPPING.

I have a question about poinsettias. The leaves have partly dropped off and the roots have decayed. I have been most careful about the watering, and they have not been watered too much nor have they got too dry. I have used little manure water and what I did use was weak. The temperature dropped in the greenhouse from 65 degrees to 55 and 50 degrees for four or five nights

ANTS ON SWEET PEAS.

I should like to ask you what can be done to get rid of a bad dose of tan ants. I have a ground bed of sweet peas and it is just full of them. They come out by the thousands and are spreading to other beds. Some have wings and can fly. Please answer at once, as every day they spread farther. I tried sugar and Paris green, but they would not eat it. M. T.—Md.

The enemies of the sweet pea seem to be multiplying. Oil of cinnamon is used with good effect in dealing with ants. Druggists also sell specific remedies for this purpose. Kerosene along the edges of the beds will turn them back, and as for the aviators, a strong dose of Nicofume will at least make them quite sick. G. J. B.

AFFECTED BY BLACK LEG.

I should like to know about a disease that has struck my winter-blooming sweet peas. I planted my peas from pots after having used Mulford's culture on the seed. They seemed to grow well for a while, but when they were beginning to bloom all the leaves close to the ground dried up. On close examination I found that the roots had suffered the same fate. What is the cause and the remedy? H. H.—Colo.

The plants are probably affected with the fungus known locally as black leg, caused by the unseasonably warm weather of the last autumn.

If the plants are in a growing condition, the dried leaves about the base can be ignored, but if the condition complained of seems to affect the growth of the plants, the bed should be promptly resown. It does not pay to worry along with sick plants of any kind in a greenhouse, especially when they can be as easily replaced as sweet peas. If there is active growth, white feeding roots will be found two feet below the surface. Unless the soil is fundamentally wrong, planting at this date in the same soil can be safely advised. However, the soil should not be used for early planting, as starting plants in the heat of the summer is working against the natural requirements of sweet peas. In their weakened condition they are easily attacked by any fungus which accumulates in old soil, while the vigorous plants, produced in a lower temperature, are able to ward it off. G. J. B.

FALL VS. SPRING PLOWING.

Would you advise fall or spring plowing for a field that we intend to put out in hardwood cuttings?

A. G.—O.

Late fall would be preferable to spring plowing, but in all probability the ground in your section is tightly frozen now. Therefore, you should plow in spring as soon as possible after the frost has left the ground and it is dry enough to be workable. W. C.

BEST MAIDENHAIR FERN.

What do you consider the best variety of maidenhair fern for cutting? I have only one house and wish to grow the best. G. W. D.—N. Y.

For cutting you could have nothing better than an excellent form of Adiantum cuneatum, named Croweanum. C. W.

OLD FRONDS ON FERNS:

I am sending you a fern. Please notice the dried-up and crippled ends of the leaves and, if possible, tell me how to cure or prevent this trouble. This happens to perfectly healthy plants and seems to be due to a fungus, which spreads quite fast. G. E. B.—Mo.

I do not find anything seriously the matter with the sample fern. The crippled and dried-up ends complained of were on the old fronds and should be removed anyway. The young growths were all right and so were the roots. I noticed a few traces of white fly on the older fronds which should be closely looked after and removed. I should also suggest giving the plants a little more water at the roots, the soil in the center of the root ball of the plant sent being quite dry. M. P.

ADIANTUM UNDER BENCHES.

I have been trying to get adiantum to grow, but seedlings which I have bought, even 2½-inch plants, die. I have a new greenhouse and, to my surprise, underneath the benches have come up thick patches of adiantum—I think the cuneatum variety. I cannot imagine where the seed came from. Will you tell me the best way I can take care of these seedlings? The soil under the benches is poor and hard, but naturally moist. I greatly wish to succeed with these plants. S. J. R.—Tenn.

The seedling adiantums may be lifted from the ground beneath the benches of your greenhouse and transplanted to shallow trays or flats, the most convenient tool for the purpose being a wooden label with the end sharpened to a knife edge. With such a tool as this the seedlings may be taken up in small patches, about the size of a finger-nail, and transferred to the surface of the soil in the trays, where they should be gently pressed down. As soon as the tray is filled, it should be carefully watered and placed in a partly shaded place in the greenhouse. The seedlings should be protected from drafts by covering with paper during the day for a week or so, after which they may be more exposed to the air, but not to full sunshine.

After the young plants have put out a leaf or two, they may be potted in small pots, but must still be protected from too much sun and air until they become established. A night temperature of 58 to 60 degrees during the winter is satisfactory to these plants and almost any light soil without manure will answer at this time. W. H. T.

REMEDY FOR FERN SCALE.

I am sending you some fern leaves, on which you will notice small spots, which are first yellow and then brown. We grow our own ferns and have never had any trouble until last winter. Can you tell us what the remedy is? W. G.—Wis.

The ferns in question are infested with fern scale, an insect that is frequently found on these plants. A close examination of the plants will show some of the large, light brown female insects and a much greater number of the small, white male insects. The attacks of these insects soon produce yellow spots on the foliage. Dipping and spraying with solutions of whale oil soap and nicotine seem to be among the best methods of fighting this pest, and by cutting out some of the most seriously affected foliage the stock of insects will be lessened. It is probable that your plants have been infested for some time and are now just showing the effects. W. H. T.

NAME OF FERN.

Can you tell me the species to which the native fern I am sending you belongs? E. B. E.—Mich.

It is a species of polypodium, useful in bouquet and other floral work. It might be useful for pot culture if we did not have such a wealth of nephrolepis of easier culture. C. W.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The prophets who predicted a poor Christmas for the flower growers saw, in a way, their predictions verified. It certainly was a poor Christmas trade if we count upon a fulfillment of growers' hopes and the attainment of the price standard which many of them set. And right here it might be said that this price-setting is entirely out of place and conflicting with a healthy demand for perishable goods. By this is not meant a pre-Christmas quotation, for if the majority of retailers are to be believed, they could have doubled their sales of cut flowers if the wholesalers had quoted prices a day or two in advance. To put one case as a general example, a retailer was asked for a price on hybrid tea roses for Christmas day delivery, and he had to make a safe guess on cost, so safe that he did not get the order. The criticism here is that while Chicago wholesalers can quote prices a week or more ahead, New York wholesalers cannot, and so crab their own game. One wholesaler in the up-town market ventured quotations and as a result cleaned up on everything.

The Christmas buying of cut flowers did not really set in until Christmas eve, retailers preferring to push plant trade to the end before speculating in cut flowers, and then the buying was of a hand-to-mouth nature. With one or two exceptions, the wholesale houses were open all night, a certain inducement to small purchases. It is not learned that any plant-growing establishment conducted a night business.

The rose offerings were especially fine. Never before at Christmas were seen such hybrid teas as were available, but they did not get home at $150 per hundred as was expected, but slumped at the end to $50 or less. In contrast to this, American Beauty specials sold as high as $250. It's true, there were not many of the big rose, and a market for them is always certain. A quantity of long-stemmed Premier made some nut-sized flower heads of Beauty look ridiculous in comparison.

Violets were in fair supply, but there was no demand for them and Christmas morning street venders were offering them at 50 cents per hundred, despite the asking price of $2.50 the afternoon before. Sweet peas met the same fate; nobody cared to handle them at $8 per hundred for the best.

Carnations were not in especially large supply, and the usual Christmas prices were in force, $12 for Enchantress, $15 for Mrs. C. W. Ward and $20 for reds, these prices for best quality, of course.

Cattleyas were in good supply and the best moved at $1.50 to $2 per flower. The supply this year was characterized by a quantity of passé flowers of a quality which really disgraced the market, and which would not move at any price. Oncidiums, held at $20 per hundred flowers, were not in demand, although the quality was superfine.

Lilies of the valley were in too large supply to clear and much stock was left over. The price range was $8 to $12, with a few tops at $15. Paper White narcissi were available in great quantities and moved slowly at 40 to 50 cents per bunch.

There was the usual quantity of cut poinsettias, but business in them was not active, and much stock was left over, as usual, for post-holiday use. About $50 per hundred flowers was the average price. Miscellaneous flowers presenting a bit of color sold fairly well.

Monday, December 27, the market was dull, arrivals being light and trade being largely in left-overs. Prices in general went back to the pre-holiday level. The supply of roses is large, with short grades in best demand.

Carnations are in light supply, but meet an equally light demand.

About every orchid that could be cut evidently figured in the Saturday arrival list, so no fresh stock was to be seen Monday. Easter lilies are in small supply, and command $25 per hundred flowers for the best. Lilies of the valley are in oversupply and moving slowly.

The list of miscellaneous flowers is augmented by arrivals of Iris tectorum, Buddleia asiatica, and tulips, the latter of inferior quality in most shipments.

PLANTING TABLE FOR GIGANTEUM LILIES

THE REVIEW receives so many queries in regard to giganteum lilies, for Easter mostly, but in some measure for other occasions, that it has endeavored to arrange a planting table, with the dates of starting, the approximate time of flowering, and the average temperature needed to bring them into bloom at various periods. Of course these dates are merely approximate; severe cold or intense heat may retard or advance plants, and long spells of dark weather will also have their effect. While some lilies do well when grown comparatively cool, the best success with giganteums is always secured when they are grown warm from the start. Moderate watering is necessary until the pots are nicely filled with roots; then an ample supply is needed. Fresh bulbs require more water at all stages of their growth than cold storage ones; they also require a longer season to come to perfection.

From January to June the small sizes of cold storage bulbs give most satisfaction; from June until early October the 7 to 9 and 9 to 10 sizes do better, while during the last three months of the year, when fresh bulbs are to be had, the larger sizes should be used.

As lilies make all their best roots from the tops, and not from the bottoms of the bulbs, it is an advantage to start them in 4-inch pots, later shifting and burying the bulbs deeper in 6-inch pots, or to pot in 6-inch pots at once, setting the bulb well down, and, after growth has started, to give a top-dressing.

Christmas Business.

This year's was the best Christmas business this city has ever enjoyed. This is all the more remarkable in view of the great number of people out of work. There was an ample supply of plants in bloom, but the variety was limited, the plants including poinsettias, cyclamens, heather, begonias and cherries. Cyclamens were easily the best plants offered and sold at from $3 to $12 each. As is usually the case, more plants than cut stock were sold.

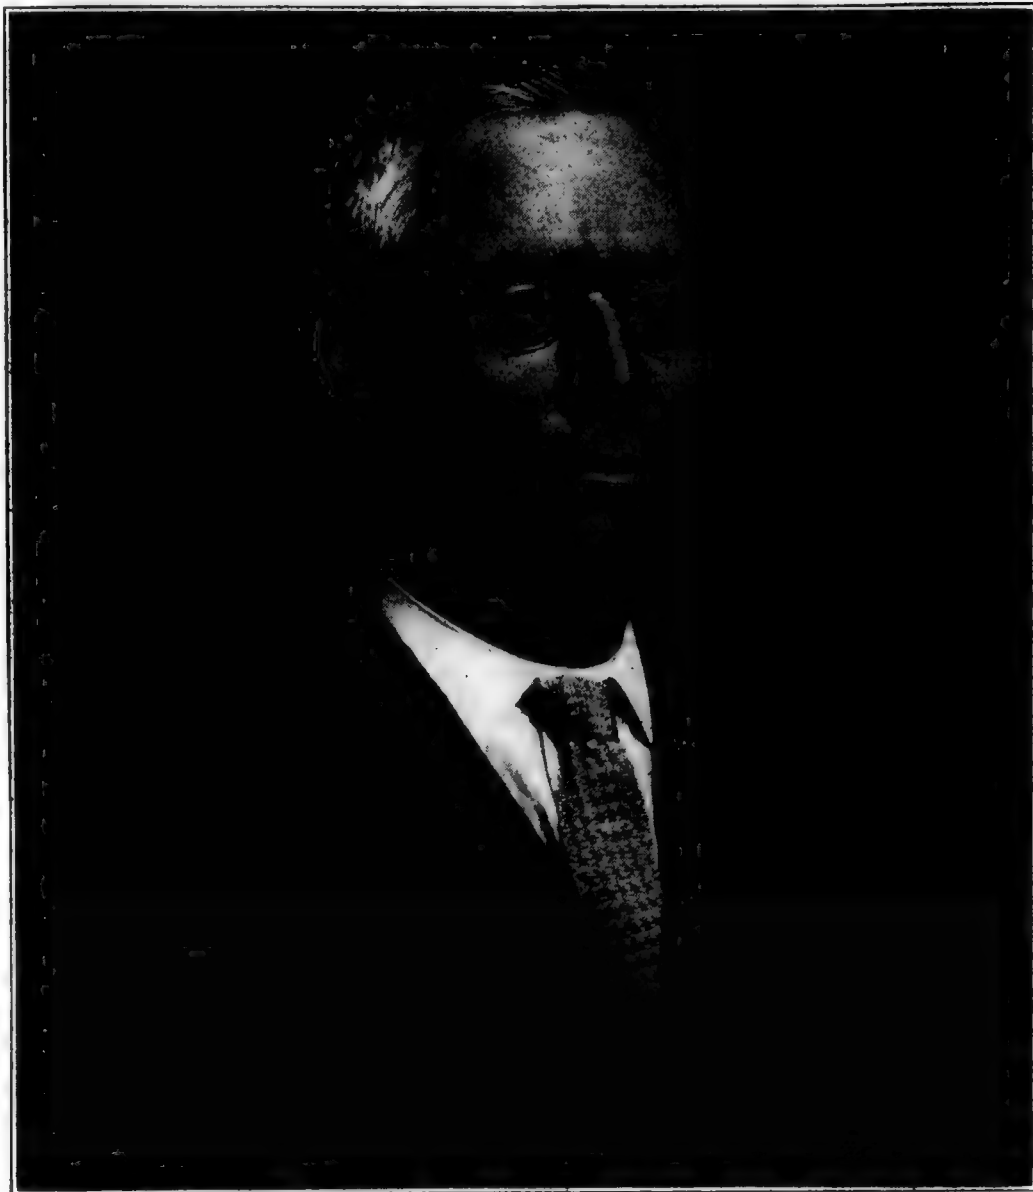

The cut flowers offered included Beauties and other roses, violets, carnations, sweet peas, orchids, calendulas and stevia. Roses were the most popular cut flowers and ranged in price from $5 to $12 per dozen. Violets, usually popular flowers for corsage work, at $3 per bunch of fifty, did not sell so well as formerly. Carnations retailed for $3 to $5 per dozen, the higher price being for Ward and the red varieties. Narcissi went at $2 per dozen. The prices of both plants and flowers were about the same as those a year ago.

The sale of greens was good, quantities of wreaths made of princess pine, boxwood and laurel being sold. Holly was scarce and high in price and not handled extensively. Baskets made of boxwood, ruscus and dry material sold unusually well.

SINCE the days when, as a boy, he helped his father grow vegetables, shrubs and plants in Oskaloosa, Ia., W. E. Kemble has been a successful florist. When he reached the age of 22 years, he took over the business, which then consisted of four small greenhouses at Oskaloosa. In 1900 these were rebuilt and the amount of glass was increased. In 1912 the business began its real expansion and a range in Centerville, Ia., was opened. It was not long before Mr. Kemble acquired ranges at Grinnell and Chariton, Ia., and built greenhouses and a store at Ottumwa. The firm was incorporated July, 1920, under the name of the Kemble Floral Co., controlling 250,000 square feet of glass. Mr. Kemble was born October 14, 1859, at Oskaloosa, and has lived on the same place since he was 6 years of age.

poinsettias were beautifully arranged and attractively displayed. Every salable plant was sold by Christmas day and at a good price. More telegraph orders were sent out than ever before at this establishment. Taken as a whole, it was the best Christmas this firm ever enjoyed.

Brant Bros., who do both wholesale and retail business, reported a general clean up of a good crop of roses and carnations for Christmas.

Jess Williams, who makes a specialty of Christmas wreaths and decorations, had a good business. Quantities of laurel roping for store decorations was disposed of.

William Gray, who still retains the firm name of Pierce & Gray although Mr.

Pierce withdrew from the business some time ago, has a well located shop and a good Christmas business was reported.

The Holland Gardens, on Holland avenue, had some good cyclamens, all of which were disposed of. A new delivery car was purchased by this firm a short time ago.

WORMS ON BEDDING PLANTS.

I wish to inquire as to the best means of ridding some of my houses of a small yellow worm, from one-quarter to one-half inch long, that is working on the geranium stock plants. As soon as the plants are disturbed the worm curls up and often drops from the plant. I believe these worms came from a few weeds that were not cleaned up from the edge of the walks. The houses that are affected, three in number, are stocked with geraniums, carnations and vincas. It would be hard to reach the worms with a spray and there is too much surface to cover. Would hydrocyanic acid gas be all right? How strong should such a fumigant be made for this stock, which is carrying 10 bloom? C. W. M.—N. Y.

An efficient spray of any good nontoxic preparation should kill the worms. Arsenate of lead would disfigure the foliage greatly, although it would be effective. I should be inclined to use hydrocyanic acid gas at the strength often recommended in The Review. Exercise care when using it and no harm will come to plants, animals or humans. Cool weather and a low greenhouse temperature are the safest conditions for using this gas. Great care should be exercised when it is used. C. W.

SEEDSMEN STILL STUDY

VEGETABLE NOMENCLATURE.

Committee Issues Second Report.

Some time ago a report was made of the work of the joint committee on vegetable nomenclature from the American Seed Trade Association and the Vegetable Growers' Association of America. As a part of the program, a detailed study of the various vegetable varieties was to be made by men best qualified to judge from their close experience with these particular crops.

Twenty-one committees were appointed, and we believe that in order that those interested in this work may know how to judge of the importance and the value that may be forthcoming, it is well worth while to have public announcement made of the personnel at work on it.

Members of Sub-Committees.

The following men were appointed by this committee, and have signified their willingness to undertake the work. As a matter of fact, at the time of writing many committees have already made preliminary reports, and considerable data is in hand, which indicates real progress. The first person named in each sub-committee is chairman thereof.

Through an error in our former report, the name of Dr. Will W. Tracy, Sr., was mentioned as a guest. In reality he was officially appointed on the vegetable growers' branch of the committee by President E. A. Dunbar and at the time of the last Washington meeting was made member ex-officio of all of the sub-committees mentioned below, this appointment being made in view of his vast knowledge of American varieties of vegetables. It is a matter of great satisfaction that Dr. Tracy's health is so greatly improved. The sub-committees are:

Asparagus—J. B. Norton, Hartsville, S. C.; Wilfrid Wheeler, Concord, Mass.
Beans and peas (all bush beans)—C. N. Keeney, Le Roy, N. Y.; A. L. Rogers, Chicago, Ill.; L. D. Coulter, Detroit, Mich.
Beans, lima and pole (pole and bush lima, all pole beans)—Henry Fish, Sr., Carpinteria, Cal.
Beets (garden beets, sugar beets, mangels)—S. F. Willard, Wethersfield, Conn.; W. W. Tracy, Jr., Fort Collins, Colo.; W. H. Woodruff, Milford, Conn.

Onions, parsnips, parsley—Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago; Waldo Rohnert, Gilroy, Cal.
Potatoes—Wm. Stewart, Bureau of Plant Industry, Washington, D. C.; J. C. Millward, Madison, Wis.; J. C. Waid, East Lansing, Mich.
Potatoes, sweet—H. C. Thompson, Ithaca, N. Y.; T. C. Johnson, Norfolk, Va.
Pumpkins, squash—H. F. Hall, Moorestown, N. J.; Edgar Gregory, Marblehead, Mass.; J. C. Robinson, Waterloo, Neb.
Radish—R. J. MacKinnon, Detroit, Mich.; George E. Starr, Grass Lake, Mich.; Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago, Ill.
Spinach—T. C. Johnson, Norfolk, Va.; James R. Moreland, Norfolk, Va.
Tomato—Josiah Livingston, Columbus, O.; A. B. Haven, Santa Ana, Cal.; L. D. Coulter, Detroit, Mich.; George E. Starr, Grass Lake, Mich.
Turnips, rutabagas—W. H. Woodruff, Milford, Conn.; G. W. Kerr, Doylestown, Pa.; Dr. C. A. Zavitz, Guelph, Ont.; J. W. Crow, Guelph, Ont.

Plan of Work.

The plan of work for these committees has been as follows:

1. To assemble all the varietal names for the kinds in question.
2. To group the names which are used for the same kind or kinds so nearly identical that they cannot be recognized as different.
3. To recommend the name for the group which best characterizes the variety which represents the group and is most universally known.
4. To designate the best ways and means of elimination of duplicate names and elimination of unimportant varieties.

It is hoped that out of the recommendations of these committees can come suggestions for a working plan which will make it possible so to standardize and designate standard types that both the seedsmen and commercial grower will have in mind the same type for the same variety, at least over a large section of the country. More important than this, such procedure would make it possible for plant breeders to see more clearly the problem for improvement and eliminate a tremendous amount of wasted time in attempting to develop types that are already in existence, but not known.

Field Trials Next Summer.

The study that has already been given to this question has made it clear that many field trials must be undertaken in the summer of 1921 to determine whether certain so-called varieties are really different one from another. Already several of the leading seed firms of the United States have volunteered to carry on complete trials of certain vegetables during the coming season. For the purpose of perfecting plans for special 1921 trials for clearing up matters of uncertainty regarding old vegetable types and also for the purpose of perfecting arrangements for the registration of new varieties as offered, it is expected that a second meeting of this committee will be held the third or fourth week in February, the place and exact time to be announced later.

Postpone Publication.

It has been definitely decided not to submit a list of vegetable varieties for publication in the first edition of the variety catalogue which is being issued by the American Joint Committee on Horticultural Nomenclature, of which J. Horace McFarland is chairman and Harlan P. Kelsey is secretary. Our committee has reached this decision at the urgent insistence of our sub-committee chairmen, who feel that, at best, their reports, if finally submitted at this time, would have inaccuracies and a lack of completeness which will be avoided after this summer's trials have been completed. It is hoped that a full and complete report may be submitted for publication with the other horticultural societies in their second edition, which will no doubt, be issued about six months after the first edition.

It has been a great satisfaction to our committee to note that in the 1921 seed catalogues so far received there is a vast decrease in the number of new "introductions." This undoubtedly indicates that a different attitude is being taken, a change which can only work for better conditions in the seed trade.

H. F. Thompson, Sec'y.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

WILLIAM F. GUDE celebrates his fifty-third birthday January 4.

ONLY six weeks till St. Valentine's day and then six weeks till Easter.

SOCIAL activities presage an excellent New Year's business to complete a most satisfactory holiday season.

COMPLAINTS of high prices of cut flowers were most prevalent in localities where counter trade was formerly heaviest.

RICHARD VINCENT and his estimable and widely known wife celebrated their fifty-third wedding anniversary at White Marsh, Md., December 26.

CHARITY, runs the adage, begins at home. And so, we might remember, does education of the public in floral decoration. How about your store?

ACKNOWLEDGE receipt of telegraph orders promptly. A 1-cent post card is enough to reassure the sending florist of the correctness of telegraphic transmission.

READY-MADE advertising has been found by florists in the verses, "Give Them the Flowers Now," by Leigh M.
Hodges, which several have reprinted from Joe Mitchell Chapell's "Heart Throbs."

THRIFT does not mean saving, but spending and spending wisely. The thrifty grower is he who knows when to spend largely in order to get large returns. Unwise saving is as wasteful as prodigal spending.

THOSE little 1-inch ads in the Pink Part are constantly attracting more retailers, because $1.25 a week is easily recompensed by the telegraph orders received. Nearly 700 florists are represented in that section this week.

ALMOST a year ago the King of the Belgians bestowed upon Sir Harry J.
Veitch the cross of Officer of the Order of the Crown in recognition of his services in connection with the war horticultural relief fund. He is now the recipient of the cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor from the President of France.

GROWERS of high quality stock complain the least of a poor market.

THERE is no better rule of business conduct than the golden one. Apply it in the matter of answering inquiries and complaints as well as in filling orders and paying bills promptly.

ONCE in a while forget you're the proprietor and walk into your store or your greenhouse as if you were a critical stranger. Sometimes you'll see things that way you never noticed before.

THE "Own Your Home" and "Home Beautiful" exhibitions offer opportunities during the spring for florists to present their wares to the public by cooperation with local furniture houses. Do you know when the show is to be held in your city?

NATIONAL GROWERS' MEETING.

The National Flower Growers' Association will hold a meeting in Washington, D. C., Thursday, January 27.
The meeting is scheduled for 1 p. m., following a midday recess after the second session of the American Carnation Society meeting.

The meeting is open to all growers and it is believed there will be a large attendance. However, only regularly accredited representatives from the permanently organized district locals will have the privilege to vote. Those who will be eligible are representatives from the New England, Chicago, St. Louis, Mid-West, Western New York and Cleveland locals.

The principal matters for consideration at this meeting will be the final adoption of the constitution and by-laws, and the election of officers for the ensuing year. The work of national publicity and the part the growers expect to take will be discussed at this meeting. Plans will also be laid for the further organization of districts.

WHY SHOULDN'T THEY BE?

An English contemporary makes the following statement: "It has been estimated that $45,000,000 are spent on cut flowers every year in the United States of America. American florists are dissatisfied, however, because they find $50,000,000 are spent on chewing gum during a similar period."

SETTING THE FASHION.

One of Henry Penn's best stories, so far as the moral to florists is concerned, is that of the woman customer who inquired of a salesman in a jeweler's store if scarf pins were in vogue. Upon his declaration that they were, she remarked that he, who ought to be in accord with latest jewelry style, wore none.

Mr. Penn's moral is that florists should set flower styles, and if they would have other business men wear boutonnieres, florists should themselves wear a flower on their coat lapel, especially in their own stores. Many of the trade are careful to do this. Many more might be.

IN BUSINESS WINDOWS.

Walking down a business street recently, an observer noted flowers —live flowers, not artificial—used in the decorations of six windows. They were those of a milliner, a tailor, a restaurant, a novelty store, a phonograph shop and an automobile salesroom. That was an exceptional street, but it indicated what might be done to develop a steady, year-around trade.

It is to be noted that this was in the month of December, when there was no glut of flowers. These blooms were not gifts to the store proprietors; they were paid for in hard cash by business men who estimated that their decorative value was worth the price in attracting trade.

In various cities retailers alive to their opportunities have built up a respectable addition to their sales by doing missionary work among their business neighbors. The standing orders for so many dollars' worth of flowers each day or each week are easy to handle and therefore lucrative. With slight effort every retailer could add a little to his profits in this way.

"BETTER AMERICAN HOMES."

We, as florists, have a direct interest in the success of every movement for the betterment of home life, as each step in that direction brings new customers into our stores. Also, we are interested when some other industry follows in our footsteps, as the furniture trades' associations are doing. They have just organized for publicity purposes and are preparing to launch a campaign with "Better American Homes" as the slogan. We wish them success, but at the same time we congratulate ourselves on our own great good fortune in possessing that unmatchable slogan, "Say It with Flowers." Our furniture friends are a long way from equaling that.

STILL AT THE OLD STAND.

Times may change, but the helpful qualities of The Review are altered only as they improve:

We pass the money as pleasantly as possible.
Here it is. The Review is indispensable to us.—
Cisco Floral Co., Cisco, Tex., December 20, 1920.

When a trade paper is considered indispensable by its readers there is no question of its usefulness to those who have things to sell:

The Classified ads have done fine work this season.—Hugo Kind, Hammonton, N. J., December 17, 1920.

The ads in The Review sure bring results.—
R. J. Rasmussen & Sons, Marlette, Mich., December 20, 1920.

We had wonderful results from our ads in the Classified section.—Lakewood Greenhouses, Minneapolis, Minn., December 17, 1920.

Have been busy returning checks, as one insertion brought us more than enough orders to clean out our stock. We sure can speak a good word for advertising in The Review.—
Baxter Floral Co., Baxter Springs, Kan., December 18, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money

Joseph Meehan.

The death of Joseph Meehan, of Philadelphia, formerly a nurseryman and a prolific writer on horticultural and landscape topics, occurred December 23 at his home, 121 Pleasant avenue, Mount Airy, Pa. He was 80 years of age.

The deceased planned many of the landscape effects on the large suburban estates near Philadelphia. He was an expert adviser in landscape problems for Thomas Meehan & Sons, Germantown, Pa., now managed by S. Mendelson and P. Franklin Meehan, sons of his brother, Thomas Meehan.

Joseph Meehan was born at Ryde, Isle of Wight, England, November 9, 1840. He went to work in the Gardens of St. Clare, Isle of Wight, where his father was gardener for over fifty years.

In April, 1859, he came to America to take charge of the small greenhouses of his brother, Thomas Meehan, who had started a nursery at Germantown a few years previously. After a connection of fifty-two years with that enterprise, he retired from nursery work; in that time the nursery had grown from the original three acres to about seventy acres, being since conducted under the name of Thomas Meehan & Sons.

He was well known as a nurseryman, but even more widely known as a writer on horticultural subjects, being one of the best authorities on shrubs in America.

August 13, 1862, he enlisted in the One Hundred and Eighteenth Corn Exchange regiment, was wounded at Shepherdstown, W. Va., September 20, and was discharged the following winter.

In June, 1863, he enlisted in Landis' Battery of Light Artillery; he was taken prisoner and paroled after the Battle of Gettysburg.

He was sadly afflicted in the last few years in being deprived of his sight; this, in addition to the loss of his hearing, which was never good, left him in a particularly sad condition.

He is survived by two sons, Charles E. Meehan, wholesale florist of Philadelphia, and A. Rothwell Meehan, and one daughter, Mrs. George W. Williams.

Funeral services were held at the late residence of Mr. Meehan, 121 Pleasant avenue, December 27.

Augustus P. Calder, Sr.

In the passing, December 23, of Augustus P. Calder, Sr., after a brief illness, the oldest of Boston florists was removed, one who was well, widely and favorably known and who, throughout his long and active life, made and retained a large circle of friends. Born on the old Calder estate in Roxbury, in 1837, at that time a large farm, the deceased had seen more of the growth and development of Boston's florists' industry than any other man. He married Miss Etta A. Upton, the wedding being of a military character on account of Mr. Calder's prominence in the Roxbury Horse Guards, of which he was captain. Six children were born, of whom five survive. A. P. Calder, Jr., is connected with the Newtonville Conservatories. Mrs. Calder passed away seven years ago.

For many years Mr. Calder conducted a large retail store on Boylston street, where the Hotel Touraine now stands, and later in the Hotel Pelham, now replaced by the Little building. Of late years, though not conducting a store, he handled many floral orders, particularly for various lodges with which he was prominently identified, and the week of his death he visited the wholesale markets to make purchases, apparently in his usual good health.

Mr. Calder was one of the oldest members of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, joining it as long ago as 1870. He was a charter member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, serving as vice-president in 1887 and 1888, as president in 1890, the year the S. A. F. held its convention in Boston, and as a member of the executive committee in 1889 and 1891. He was extremely active in the work connected with the 1890 convention and had been an S. A. F. member for a long period.

The deceased was particularly eloquent and on that account was often in demand as a post-dinner orator and toastmaster at various functions. He performed the installation ceremonies for officers of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club in a manner which always delighted the members, and this body will particularly miss his genial presence.

Mr. Calder was a veteran of the Civil war and was at Gettysburg with the Roxbury Guards, although he did not take active part in that great battle. The late Jackson Dawson was a private in his company. Only a few days ago he was elected president of the Roxbury Historical Military Association and at a recent meeting in the Commonwealth armory, held for the purpose of forming a reorganization of the Horse Guards and allied bodies, he was the only person who was able to give necessary data.

He was prominent in Masonic circles and was associate prelate of Joseph Warren Commandery K. T., and a member of Washington Lodge A. F. and A. M., of the Red Men and other bodies.

Funeral services were held December 26 at the Universalist church, Buena Vista street, Roxbury, and were largely attended. Many of his old confreres in florists', Masonic and other circles were present and there was a veritable wealth of floral tributes. W. N. C.

Ferdinand H. Teute.

The death of Ferdinand H. Teute occurred at his residence, 12 Hoeltzer street, Rochester, N. Y., Monday, December 27, at the age of 82 years. He is survived by his wife and four children. Three years ago he underwent an operation and had been ill most of the time since.

He was born in Saxony, Germany, and after several years' experience in the florists' business he started in a small way for himself at Nidda, Oberhessen, Germany, at the age of 34 years. He continued in a successful way for eighteen years; then he decided to come to America with his family. In 1890 he went to Rochester, N. Y. and was employed by Bausch & Lomb for a period of two years. He then started in the florists' business in that city and had continued until the time of his death.

He married Miss Margaret Reitz forty-nine years ago. There are four children living, two of whom, Hugo and Richard, are florists in Rochester, each having his separate business.

Mr. Teute was one of the best known old-time residents in Rochester. He was in his earlier days connected with several German societies and was a charter member of the Rochester Florists' Association.

The funeral was held December 30 at 3 p. m. Interment was at Mount Hope cemetery. H. J. H.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

There is more than the normal variation in the Christmas trade reports this year. Some wholesale houses ruefully confess that they are a considerable distance behind the record of 1919, while others report increases that range all the way from slight to as much as fifteen per cent. A sincere effort to arrive at a fair estimate of the Christmas business in this market this year leads to the belief that on the whole the result for wholesalers was practically the same as in 1919, while the retail end of the business suffered some decrease.

The wholesalers seem more than satisfied; the results achieved apparently are better than they had expected. On the other hand, the retailers are less well pleased, their business having been attended by great uncertainty, by a last-minute rush that overtaxed their facilities and by a sudden fall in temperature which made delivery slow and expensive. They would not be pleased with the outcome except that nearly all of them seem to have enjoyed a better Christmas trade than did their neighbors in other lines of business. Most of the retailers came somewhere near equaling last year's record total and apparently few of them had hopes of doing so much. There were few pot plants and they bought cautiously on cut flowers.

It is the unanimous report of the wholesalers that shipping demand was stronger than the city demand. Nearly all the wholesalers say they had a larger number of orders than ever before, but that the orders did not average so large as last year. They all saw the disposition on the part of the buyers to order only limited quantities of the higher-priced flowers, though quality was demanded everywhere.

The Christmas business was done principally with roses. No other flower was in normal Christmas supply. It is probable there were more roses than this market ever before had for Christmas. But there was only a fraction of the usual number of carnations, and violets were in nothing like the supply frequently available. In a general way there was a clean-up. Many houses could have used more stock, even of roses, while the shipping was going on, but these same houses nearly all had roses left when they closed about noon on Christmas; it was the close-cut stock received Christmas eve and Christmas morning. A few houses had more long roses than they could dispose of, but most of the unsold stock was seconds. This year there was a larger percentage of fancy long roses than ever before, but many growers were just a little early with their crops and cut an unusual proportion of seconds, which buyers did not care to handle even at material price concessions. There were so few Beauties that they sold clean, practically every good flower bringing $1.50. The rose growers whose stock was in

A PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

It is a pleasure to feel that at Christmas and all through 1920 our House has contributed (with good stock and good service) to the prosperity and progress of large numbers of Florists. To all those who have found it advantageous to deal with us in 1920 we say that in 1921 we shall fill orders in the same good manner as in the past. To those who may not have been wholly satisfied with some other source of supply we say, "Try us—we HAVE the stock and the will to serve your interests as our own." We never lose sight of the fact that OUR progress depends on the prosperity of OUR CUSTOMERS.

January Flowers

We call attention to our supply of Long, Special and Extra Special Roses. There may be equally good Roses elsewhere, but there surely are none finer and our supply is so large we expect to be able to fill all orders.

Carnations again are in fair supply and we shall be able to take good care of some new customers in the New Year.

good condition seem to have averaged rather better prices than a year ago, but those who had pickled too much or who had an undue proportion of seconds find their average price considerably below that of last year.

There were practically no corsage flowers in the market and still, most curiously, corsage flowers were left. Orchids, valley and violets stood unsold, one or all of them, in nearly every wholesale house. It was a surprise, because everyone had supposed the demand for all corsage flowers would exceed the supply. Apparently so much noise had been made about the scarcity of these flowers that the retailers were afraid to take orders for them and, ha-ing booked no orders themselves, placed no orders. There were hardly any sweet peas.

It was the scarcity of carnations which cut the biggest hole in the Christmas sales, and even at that there were carnations which went to waste; some of the growers had held their stock back until it was in such condition no one would buy it. Happily, there was not much of this.

The supply of poinsettias was much smaller this year than last, with the result they sold cleaner than last season. White flowers never are in strong demand for Christmas and Paper Whites, Romans, Easter lilies and callas experienced no special rise in price, but sold nearly clean.

The Christmas supply of pot plants was limited, both in quantity and variety. Many of the smaller stores made little attempt to handle cut flowers, buying only after they had taken orders, but the scarcity of pot plants forced the larger stores to take up cut flowers in a stronger way than they have in recent years. It is reported that some of the retail stores had stock left, both plants and cut flowers, but the way the market opened December 27 indicated that the retailers must nearly all have been pretty well cleaned out. The supply of stock this week is larger than had been expected, in view of the cold weather and the closeness with which everything was cut before Christmas. The brighter weather has improved the quality and there is a general feeling that Christmas was good enough to lend confidence to the view that January will be another prosperous month in the trade.

Various Notes.

With three rooms on the second floor of the Palmer House, Mangel was able to handle expeditiously a Christmas business that rivaled last year's record. Cut flowers sold remarkably well, while plants were cleaned out. A special order of 150 poinsettia plants was received the following Monday, to be used for decorations of the Chicago City bank banquet at the Hamilton Club that evening.

Pot coverings have much to do with the sale of plants at Christmas, in the estimation of Walter W. Adams, and some novel and attractive arrangements were to be seen at his store, at State and Division streets.

Paul E. Weiss and C. J. Michelsen and their wives expect to leave January 16 to spend a few days with E. C. Amling, at Sawtelle, Cal.

Andrew Chronis forsook his place at the office of the Raklios restaurants to oversee the big Christmas business of the Alpha Floral Co. the latter half of the week. Orders were less numerous, but were of larger amounts than a year ago, and the total was not far from last year's.

P. C. Schupp left Miami, Fla., December 20, where the thermometer registered 85 degrees, and arrived in Chicago Christmas eve, to find the temperature 10 degrees. Mr. Schupp enjoyed the warmth, but Mrs. Schupp prefers Chicago's climate.

"That's the way they come!" "They" referred to twenty cards left by one customer, each to accompany a Christmas gift of a dozen roses, a not unusual order at the store of the E. Wienhoeber Co. during the days preceding Christmas. Despite the cold weather, a large stock of plants was delivered in good shape, and the holiday's business was excellent. In preparation for the holiday the conservatories had been filled with blooming plants, where patrons might make their selection easily. Though the stock such as he had displayed in former years was not to be had from growers this season, Mr. Wienhoeber said, the public's demand was as strong as ever. The difficulty he experienced was to secure the grade of stock desired, not to sell it.

It was the misfortune of Mr. Cunis, of Cunis & Billerbeck, to be badly poisoned by handling primulas for Christmas. Rubbing his face, the poison took hold there and an eye was closed. These partners are brothers-in-law. They had a good Christmas business at their place, 1523 North Harding avenue, selling plants principally.

So marked was the increase in Christmas business over that of a year ago at the store of the Bohannon Floral Co. that Mrs. Stuart attributes it to the intervening growth of the store's clientele rather than to general conditions, which were not proportionately favorable.

G. C. Weiland is credited with sending the first freesia to market this season. It was cut December 28, fine, long Purity.

It was a sad Christmas for Adolph Malchow and his wife, who have store, greenhouse and residence all at the same address, 3743 and 3745 North Clark street. His eldest daughter was ill of scarlet fever and the family were under quarantine. Mr. Malchow worked night and day, getting a little sleep in the boiler shed, a not uncommon experience for florists at holiday times, but the little girl, only 14 years of age, became steadily worse and passed away in the night of December 28.

About sixty men, including travelers, district salesmen and branch factory managers, are here this week for the annual convention of the staff of the A. L. Randall Co. The affair began with a luncheon December 28 and will close with a dinner, entertainment and dance at the Palmer House, December 30, at which from 250 to 300 are expected to be present.

A marked decrease in cash sales was observed this Christmas by W. J. Smyth, denoting the absence of money-every plant sold, but they had a few cut flowers left, having bought heavily. At wholesale, valley was priced lower than last year, but there was a much larger supply. Mr. Bruns himself noted a sharp decrease in the call for corsage bouquets and is at a loss to account for it, as he sold one every chance he got.

It was Edward Enders' thirty-third Christmas with C. A. Samuelson. He began as boy and a few months ago became president of the company, illustrating again the old saying that "all things come to him who waits and works."

Anton Then celebrated his sixty-sixth birthday anniversary on Christmas day. He came to Chicago in 1873.

J. S. and Nicholas Pinterozi, who bought the Hirsch store in the basement at 37 East Van Buren street several years ago, have been out of business there for several months during reconstruction of the building, but are now well reestablished in a small but handsome store on the street level, at No. 39. They trade as the Van Buren Florist. The partners, who are cousins, have another store at 2113 Wentworth avenue, where space is less costly than in the new buildings in the loop.

Both at Schiller's west side store and at the recently remodeled establishment on the north side, Christmas business was excellent. The new conservatory at the latter place was filled with plants for the occasion, while the store displayed many striking basket arrange-

So clean was the sweep at the store of the Fleischman Floral Co. that not enough stock was left to make an adequate attempt to decorate the show windows, usually well filled. Extra trucks worked late in making the deliveries in good shape. Mr. Mallinson says the ex-

Earl Mann came up from Richmond to take a look at the market during its rush.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The volume of business among the florists of this city and vicinity this year compared quite favorably with that of former years, especially in the demand for greens of every description, of which there was a generally good supply. Mistletoe was somewhat scarce and brought unusually good prices. The call for cut flowers was not so large as it has been in some previous years, but was fully in proportion to the supply. The assortment of plants was considerably curtailed as compared with other Yuletides, because of the dearth of stock on account of the embargo. Everybody reports good business and complete clean-ups. Weather conditions were ideal for deliveries. The holiday season can be considered entirely successful.

William Jurgens was a business visitor in New York last week.

In spite of the apparent general dullness of trade and a dimness in the sun's rays for the last month that has rarely been equaled at this time of year, the holiday season exceeded the grower's most sanguine expectations. The record business of last Christmas was eclipsed.

Prices were no higher than last year at this time, although coal and all the items that assist production have been at a premium during the twelve months just drawing to a close. All things considered, there can be little doubt, if proof were needed, that the cut flower business is quite equal to maintaining its position throughout the period of adjustment that has already settled upon the country, a consoling reflection in the circumstances.

Large quantities of fine cattleyas and cypripediums were sent to the larger cities across the border, the mild weather assisting greatly in facilitating express movements. Never before was there so little packing needed.

There have been few comments regarding prices, but really when one compares the list of ten years ago with the 1920 Christmas price list there is not much to complain of. For instance, pink carnations that sold at Christmas in 1910 at $12 per hundred were priced this year at $20; Richmond roses were then $30 and this year $40; marguerites were then $2, while now they are selling for $4. Orchids brought last week $1.25 each, but everybody knows that less than 200 per cent on such beautiful stock would be below the dignity of the average retailer. So there is not much to complain of after all, and reports indicate that all the stock available was disposed of during the holiday season.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The weather for the week ending with Christmas day was perfect—clear and cold. There was more sunshine than for many weeks before.

Christmas business both in cut flowers and in plants was extremely satisfactory, with here and there an occasional florist contrary-minded. While it is too early to tell positively, the impression prevails that the volume of business was larger than that of last year, which is extraordinary under the circumstances. By that is meant that other businesses are dull.

Roses formed a large part of the stock in cut flowers. The fancy grades of roses, those bringing over 50 cents each, were a little in excess of the demand as the holiday approached. Price concessions sold most of this stock, but when the quantity sold at listed prices is considered, those reduced were few in number. Premier was the principal rose. It ranged from 75 cents down and was exceedingly fine. Columbia came next, then Russell. Columbia averaged much lower in price than it did last year and than Premier did this year. Russell showed strongly in the medium grades. Pilgrim was a good seller. Ophelia was fine and much short of the demand. Beauties brought $1.50; many more could have been used. Hadley reached $1 for the fancies and was quite scarce. There was some good medium Maryland and fine Double White Killarney. Killarney was unimportant.

The carnation supply was mediocre. The quality in the main was good. Laddie led at $25 per hundred; in the same class were a few red. Mrs. Ward and Pink Delight brought $20 for the best. All the good ordinary carnations brought $12 to $15, with white trailing in the rear.

Cattleyas sold surprisingly well at all the way from $1 to $2 each. The former were Percivaliana, the latter Trianae. There were some vandas and oncidiums, but the buyers did not consider the fancy cypripediums good value. All the miscellaneous flowers sold well according to their several degrees of excellence except Narcissus Paper White, which was enormously overdone, and Stevia serrata. Asparagus was also in oversupply.

The feature of the plant market was the demand for cyclamens, which met with strong support, and for oranges and poinsettias, which were short. Really good plants were extremely scarce. There were a good many poor ones.

Taken all in all, the business for Christmas was most satisfactory in the quality of the stock offered. The timing was better, far better, than usual, and there was much less holding, the greatest of all holiday evils.

The Outlook.

It so chanced that there were a few spare moments in the busy office of the third floor of the Bulletin building, where so many florists find their way, so the opportunity was seized to ask Mr. Liggitt regarding the effect on the cut flower market of growers of carnations and other flowers turning their attention to roses. "I think," Mr. Liggitt replied, "that, should the movement continue, roses will in time become less profitable than other flowers. There must be variety. Take, for example, the case of the rose, Columbia. Everybody is growing Columbia today. All the stores have it. A customer who wants roses doesn't always want Columbia. He may want a red rose or a white or a yellow. He may even prefer a different shade of pink. To my mind Butterfly is a more beautiful pink rose than Columbia, but, of course, that is only an individual opinion.

I think that if you will examine the two roses together you will be surprised how much they have in common. True, they are not the same shade of pink, but both are distinctly pink with different shading. The form of Butterfly is especially pleasing."

supplies. "The pay in textiles, for instance, has been much higher than with us. As their industry is dull, a decline is natural. With us business is active. We feel that our employees have found it an effort to make ends meet at the present high cost of living. Until we are satisfied that our employees can live comfortably on less money, we shall not ask them to accept a reduction in salaries. The company does ask," Mr. Brunswick continued, "that each employee do his or her best, because on this largely depends the company's ability to maintain a fair, living wage scale."

Various Notes.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer says that the shortage in natural greens created an unusual demand for prepared foliage.

Alexander B. Scott has gone to Summerville, S. C. Mr. Scott's trip south was deferred until later than usual, owing to the fine weather.

Casper Wister Haines has succeeded R. F. Welch as treasurer of the Germantown Horticultural Society.

Alvin Harvey & Sons, of Brandywine Summit, Pa., expect to increase their planting of Madame Butterfly roses.

Robert Craig writes that he will have the finest greenhouse in the West Indies.

W. F. Zeigler will speak on salesmanship before the Florists' Club at the City Club January 4, 1921.

Berger Bros. are receiving fine Trumpet major, not Golden Spur, as incorrectly stated last week.

The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society has sent out a circular letter to its members telling in detail of the work of J. Horace McFarland's committee, appointed at the meeting held at New York to protest against Quarantine 37, and asking for contributions in aid of the work. The sum of $5,000 has been contributed by the Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania horticultural societies, one-third each. It is hoped to raise that much more through private subscription. T. E. Havemeyer, 50 Broad street, New York, is treasurer of this committee.

William Swayne, of Kennett, Pa., was at the establishment of William J. Baker, December 18. Mr. Swayne is looking well after his western trip.

Christmas Business.

It was not a record-breaking Christmas trade. Few expected trade would reach last year's figures; nothing warranted it. With one-fourth of the former employees in factories and workshops idle, millions of dollars locked up in banks, belonging to 75,000 depositors, and the continued liquidation in securities and labor, it was unreasonable to expect this to be a banner Christmas, but a splendid volume of business was done and everyone seems well satisfied with the results.

Roses sold well. Select American Beauties made $150 per hundred. Extra fine Hadley and Crusader sold at $75 to $100, while Premier, Columbia, Mme. Butterfly, Hoosier Beauty, Miller and Stanley made from $40 to $50 downward. Killarneys sold more slowly than other sorts, and on whites prices ruled as low as $6 to $8 per hundred on short-stemmed stock, other varieties going at from $10 upward.

Carnations sold extremely well, every flower cleaning up. The average price was in the neighborhood of $12 per hundred, but some fancy flowers sold at from $15 to $25. A limited number reached the higher figure. Matchless, as usual, was harder to move than any other variety. Of violets the supply was limited at $3 to $3.50 per hundred, and sweet peas were not abundant.

Cut poinsettias made $3 to $6 per dozen bracts, but there were a number unsold. There was also considerable surplus of stevia, Paper Whites and lilies. Wallflowers only sold moderately well, and few marguerites and snapdragons were offered. There was an oversupply of mignonette. Chrysanthemums made their farewell bow, but did not sell specially well. They presented a passé appearance and buyers were tired of them.

There was a fair crop of colored bouvardia, which sold well. White is now practically out of the market. Cypripediums were plentiful and sufficient Cattleya Percivaliana and Trianæ came in to supply all demands. Trianæ averaged $18 per dozen, with Percivaliana lower.

In pot plants cyclamens were the leaders and retailed at $4 to $12 each, with specimens higher. Begonias came second in favor, with Melior easily the leader. Mrs. Peterson only sold mod-

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial, you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address erately well. Poinsettias sold at from $2 to $12 per pot or pan, but there was a large surplus this year, more being grown than ever before. There was a great sale of solanums, particularly Cleveland. At one time a shortage of orange plants seemed probable, but a considerable number were unsold. These sold at $5 to $15 each. There was a good call for primulas, ericas, camellias and other plants, as well as ferns, fern dishes and other decorative plants. A few pans of hyacinths and tulips appeared, but no freesias. There were considerable numbers of plants unsold, but everything considered, it was a satisfactory Christmas.

The weather all through Christmas week was ideal, with clear skies and no low temperatures until Christmas night, when the mercury tumbled to near the zero mark.

The Market.

Business since Christmas has been a little dull. Prices on roses and carnations are well maintained. There is a surplus of stevia, Paper Whites and lilies, and mums are out of the way for the season. Violets and sweet peas are quite scarce, owing to the colder weather.

Club Meeting.

Coming, as it did, December 21, near Christmas, there was a good attendance at the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, when officers were elected and W. H. Elliott lectured on California. One new member was elected. It was voted to hold a banquet in Horticultural hall early in February, details to be left in the hands of the executive committee.

E. F. WINTERSON CO., L. D. Phone Central 6004, 166 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Announcement was made of the big series of union meetings to start in Horticultural hall February 7, in which the club would participate and J. Otto Thilow would be its lecturer. It was announced that a ladies' night would be held in January, when officers are to be installed.

Officers for 1921 were elected as follows: President, William H. Judd; vice-president, Harold A. Ryan; secretary, William N. Craig; treasurer, James Methven; executive committee, Andrew K. Rogers, Walter H. Golby, John L. Russell, George W. Hamer and Patrick W. Burke.

A collection of Christmas plants from the W. W. Edgar Co. was the only exhibit of the evening.

William H. Elliott was the lecturer of the evening and for two hours held the close interest and attention of the members while he described his 30-day trip to the high Sierras in California, illustrated by numerous beautiful stereopticon slides specially prepared for the occasion. The views and description of the beautiful lakes, canyons and snow-covered peaks, scaled at elevations from 13,500 to 14,501 feet, were most interesting. The party used the Muir pass, named in honor of John Muir, the great naturalist of the Sierras. Many humorous anecdotes were told and the lecture was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone. Mention, in conclusion, was made of the big trees in Sequoia grove and Humboldt county. An enthusiastic vote of thanks to the lecturer concluded the meetings of the year.

Various Notes.

At the last meeting of Middlesex Lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Framingham, William Nicholson, Sr., who for twenty-five consecutive years had filled the post of treasurer, a longer period of service than any other member had attained since the lodge's institution in 1795, was presented with a handsome past-master's apron. Some thirty years ago Mr. Nicholson was master of this lodge and initiated the writer of these notes into the mysteries of Freemasonry.

tion ceremonies on several occasions. At his funeral services florists and Masonic and military bodies were largely represented.

At Penn's, Christmas business fell about ten per cent below that of 1919. Roses were the leaders in cut flowers, with cyclamens, begonias and poinsettias among pot plants.

George W. Hamer, the courteous assistant manager of the Flower Exchange, suffered a painful injury December 21 when returning home from the annual meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club. He was struck a hard blow above the left eye by an iron pipe protruding from a truck, which he did not see, and several stitches were necessary. He is progressing satisfactorily.

Growers of pot plants report excellent sales, but they have a larger surplus than a year ago, especially of poinsettias, which were heavily overdone, perhaps due to last year's shortage. A large number of cyclamens and begonias were unsold, but there is a market for these after the holidays, while poinsettias are a dead loss.

The Symphony Flower Shop, on Huntington avenue, had a good Christmas business. Among others it had decorations or large orders from the Christian Science church, Page & Shaw and the Oliver Ditson Co.

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will be held January 8. The new president, A. C. Burrage, will deliver an address, and reports of the various committees will be heard.

Victor Heurlin, son of Julius Heurlin, of the Blue Hills Nurseries, left December 18 with a friend for a motorcycle trip to California, which they propose to cover thoroughly. The venturesome pair expect to reach home ere nursery stock is dug in the spring.

The William H. Elliott Co. is receiving from Madbury, N. H., a superb lot of Hadley, Crusader, Mme. Butterfly, Pilgrim, Premier, Miller and Columbia roses. The company is the largest local grower of Cecile Brunner.

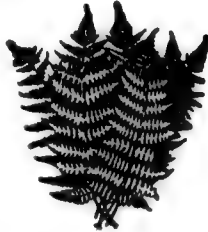

Carrie E. Ball, of Southboro, had a splendid crop of Enchantress Supreme, Ward, Beacon and Matchless carnations, and a fine lot of a crimson seedling of her own raising.

At Carbone's, B. F. Letson reports business equal to that of 1919. I noticed here a fine lot of pink poinsettias and camellias and a wealth of other flowering and decorative plants.

Both of the stores of T. F. Galvin, Inc., on Park street and on Boylston street, did a big Christmas business, well up to that of 1919. No firm handles more fine specimen plants or high-grade cut flowers than Galvin's, and the crowded condition of the two stores last week attested their popularity.

The trade learns with much regret of the serious illness of Herbert W. Schlaffhorst, secretary-attorney of the committee organized some time ago to secure a modification of Quarantine 37. Mr. Schlaffhorst, who was not naturally of a rugged constitution, worked hard and faithfully to secure necessary data to place before the F. H. B., and his resignation from his office and the fear that his illness may be of such a nature as to practically confine him to bed hereafter will be received with general regret.

W. N. C.

Lakewood, N. Y.—Williams & Phillips are just getting started in the greenhouse business. They have their boiler in a pit, concrete-lined, and the concrete has been waterproofed on both walls and floor, but water comes through.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

IMPORTS of seeds and bulbs during the first thirteen months of enforcement of Quarantine 37 are given on another page of this issue, under the heading, "One Year of Quarantine."

THE second report of the joint committee on vegetable nomenclature from the American Seed Trade Association and the Vegetable Growers' Association of America appears on page 21 of this issue.

NOT over fifteen per cent of the 1920 crop of sweet clover seed has been sold by growers. They are pooling much of their seed for sale later, when they hope that more interest will be displayed by seedsmen in this commodity.

CALIFORNIA seed growers, preparing to take the road in quest of 1921 growing contracts, are not in buoyant spirits. The readjustment of production costs has not progressed far enough for them to quote prices in line with the present market. Indications do not point to a large acreage under seed crops in California in 1921.

SEED ANALYSTS MEET.

Annual Sessions at Chicago.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the Association of Official Seed Analysts of North America was held at the Congress hotel, Chicago, December 27 to 29.

The convention commenced Monday morning, December 27, at 10 a. m., with a business session and was called to order by President Edgar Brown, of Washington, D. C. The vice-president, C. H. Waldron, of North Carolina, was unable to be present and the only other officer in attendance was Secretary-treasurer A. L. Stone, of Wisconsin. After the reports of the secretary-treasurer and the various committees, the president addressed the meeting on the subject of "Seed Testing."

Many Addresses.

Tuesday, December 28, was an all-day open session and some interesting addresses were delivered. Members unable to be present included W. O. Whitcomb, of Montana; W. L. Goss, of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.; Jennie Sales Jones, of Virginia, and F. H. Hillman, of Washington, D. C. The other addresses were given in person. The program of addresses was as follows:

"What Happens During the Germination of Seeds," by Eben H. Toole, Washington, D. C.
"The Nature and Cause of the Water Sprout Encountered in Germination Testing," by M. T. Munn, New York.

"The Effect of Commercial Blue Blotting Paper on the Germination of Timothy Seed," by G. T. French, Virginia.

"Some Comparative Data on Temperatures for Seed Germination," by W. O. Whitcomb, Montana.

"Effect of Temperature on the Germination of Vetch Seed," by W. L. Goss, Washington, D. C.

"Progress Report on the Germination of Dormant Wheat," by Eben H. Toole, Washington, D. C.

Closing Session.

Wednesday morning, December 29, a business session began at 9 a. m. with routine matters and the committee reports. An address was delivered by Edgar Brown, Washington, D. C., on "Adulterated Seed Investigations of the United States Department of Agriculture," and Henry Lunz, of Wisconsin, spoke on the subject, "Shall Impermeable Seeds be Counted in Recording Germination Tests of Leguminosae?" After a discussion in which various members took part the meeting was adjourned.

UNIFORMITY OF LEGISLATION.

Decide on Amendments.

The committee of the American Seed Trade Association and the corresponding committee of the Association of Official Seed Analysts of North America, appointed to discuss uniformity of state seed laws, conferred Monday evening, December 27, at the Congress hotel, Chicago. Three subjects were up for discussion: Some suggested amendments to the proposed uniformity seed bill for field seeds; the question of federal legislation for the control of interstate shipments, and the proposed uniform seed bill for vegetable seed legislation.

The latter two subjects were discussed only in a general way and were left until some future date for further consideration. The main part of the evening was spent in discussing the amendments to the proposed uniformity seed bill for field seeds. Several amendments were agreed upon, and the two committees agreed to submit them to their respective associations, who could then act upon the reports of the committees as they saw fit.

Members Present.

The members of the American Seed Trade Association committee are C. C. Massie, Kirby D. White, George S. Green, John L. Hunt, H. G. Hastings and M. H. Duryea. Of these only Messrs. Massie and Duryea were in attendance at the conference. Among several members of the association

THE ANNUAL INVASION.

The annual invasion by the army of bulb salesmen is in stronger force this year than ever before in the history of the trade. Conditions in Holland and in the rest of Europe have turned toward America the thoughts of many houses which heretofore have sold their bulbs only in Europe. Numerous concerns are sending men here this year for the first time and older exporters to the United States are sending stronger delegations of salesmen than in other years. The advance guard arrived in November, not counting the resident representatives, who stay here all the year around. On the Nieuw Amsterdam, which reached New York just before Christmas, there were fourteen bulb salesmen and it may be a matter of note that more than half of them were in the first cabin. The Rotterdam is due to dock within a few days with more than thirty bulb travelers on board. Well informed Hollanders say that nearly, if not quite, 150 different exporting houses will have representatives in America by the end of January and that the total number of men here in the interest of those ex-

FIELD-GROWN ROOTS

For Florists and Seedsmen

The popularity of the Dahlia is steadily on the increase and you should try these specially selected cut-flower varieties offered below:

FRANK A. WALKER (New Decorative Dahlia). A charming shade of lavender-pink, with long stiff stems. Produces its flowers in abundance; an exceptionally early bloomer. Good divisions $3.50 per dozen, $25.00 per 100.

MADONNA (New Peony-flowered Dahlia). A very beautiful white, very slightly tinted with a most delicate shade of lavender-pink. The touch of color adds greatly, rather than detracts from its value, especially when made-up in floral work. The form of the flower is perfectly original, each petal curling and twisting in a very pleasing manner. An excellent cut-flower variety. Strong divisions $2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100.

MAUDE ADAMS (New Show Dahlia). A pure snowy white, very daintily overlaid and suffused the sweetest shade of rose-pink imaginable. It is the best of my introductions for florists' use. "Maude Adams" is the most prolific Dahlia of its color, being more than twice as free-flowering as either "Nymphaea" or "Sylvia." It has good stems and is an early Dahlia to blossom, continuing throughout the entire season. It has the necessary features that make it stand shipping well, and makes up good in all kinds of work. It has already been tested out in all parts of the country, Raymond Champe of Michigan finding it his best commercial variety. I can furnish strong divisions at $3.50 per dozen, $20.00 per 100.

MINA BURGLE (Decorative Dahlia). The finest scarlet Dahlia to my knowledge. Flowers of large size, produced in quantity, on long, wiry stems, well above the foliage. Good divisions $1.50 per dozen, $12.00 per 100.

BIANCA. A new Hybrid Cactus Dahlia of large size and splendid form. Coloring is a beautiful rose-lilac with white shadings and blooms are held perfectly erect on very long, stiff stems. $5.00 per dozen, $40.00 per 100.

LATONA. An unusual blending of buff and yellow shades, giving a total effect of the Autumn tint that has become so popular. The type is Peony-Decorative, with long petals and nearly full to the center. Fine stems and free-flowering. $5.00 per dozen, $35.00 per 100.

If you are interested in cut-flower varieties, I will be pleased to recommend you the best varieties in the colors you want, and will give your communication the benefit of my twenty-six years as a Dahlia Specialist.

MY TRADE LIST gives complete descriptions and prices of over 300 of the most up-to-date Dahlias in the world, and is mailed free. Write for it now.

porters will be close to 225. These are record figures.

The reason why Holland is canvassing America so assiduously this year is found in the depressed condition of bulb business throughout Europe and the largely increased stocks in Holland in the preceding two seasons. It is necessary to find an outlet for greater quantities of bulbs than ever before.

TATE'S TIPS

REDUCING HOLIDAY TROUBLES.

Annual Tales of Woe.

This was the greatest Christmas season in the history of our business. There were all sorts of "tales of woe" to listen to, and the first of these was the high prices that had to be paid for stock. In many instances I was told that it would be impossible for the retailer to realize 100 per cent gross profit on his stock. Now, in a retail store it takes only a simple process of arithmetic for any man to learn that unless he realizes this gross profit the sooner he gets into some other business the better it will be for him. For the grower to ascertain the actual cost of production of his stock may be more difficult, yet it is just as necessary as for the retailer to know his actual overhead expenses. The latter are, in a manner, fixed charges which have to be paid for the service you render to the public, and unless you are a philanthropist and fall back on your bank roll, there is just one place from which the money to pay these charges and a margin of profit may come, and that is the retailer's 100 per cent gross profit. Of course, there is the alternative to reduce the overhead by cutting the service. We are all familiar with this in one-armed lunch-rooms, but I am afraid that service of this kind would not do in any up-to-date florist's store.

Up-to-the-Minute Delivering.

One of the principal items of service for the florist's establishment is an up-to-the-minute delivery system. No store should be without a well organized shipping department, and my experience has been that it is good business to have one of the most efficient men in charge of this department. Just after Christmas the troubles you have had in getting the stock delivered after it was sold will be fresh in your memory.

The writer has seen many a cold Christmas and windy Easter, and is familiar with frozen and broken plants and continual complaints, and making good damaged orders after a big rush is over. I can well remember the time when florists had to depend upon ordinary wagons for deliveries and for several weeks after either of the big flower days we lived in constant dread. For every item of stock that was ruined in delivery, we lost not only our gross profit, but the original cost as well. This, of course, instead of yielding a net profit, became an item that had to be charged to overhead, and it is easy to see that such losses as these simply ate up that much of the profit on the successfully delivered stock.

Good Shipping Department.

Let us note how a well organized shipping department can reduce these losses to a minimum. First, when a plant is sold and tagged it is sent to the shipping room. There it is carefully wrapped to protect it from cold or bruising. The careful shipping clerk will see that the card is properly secured, and the proper address plainly written and securely attached. Next comes a most important part, and that is the proper routing. This should be done so that the order will reach its destination in the shortest period of time, for the plant's or flowers' sake. A properly routed order in these days of automobile delivery will save money on the cost of delivery, also.

One of the best systems of delivery I have ever seen is that conducted by one up-to-the-minute florist. He uses his entire cellar for this purpose. This opens on an alley in the rear of his establishment at grade. The cellar is divided off into stalls, each stall representing a section of the city. An elevated stand is built in the center for the shipping clerk. He has a list for each stall, which is conspicuously numbered. When an order is ready for delivery it is brought to him. He decides what route it is to go by and hands out a number, which is attached. An assistant enters it upon a like-numbered list, and when the delivery man comes in, all that is necessary is for him to load the orders in that particular stall. The driver goes to the shipping clerk, gets his list and is off. In this method there is no bustle or confusion.

Saving Offsets Trouble.

This may seem, from reading, like a lot of trouble. Well, I have watched it work and I want to say right here that it is not one-half the trouble that I have so often seen under other practices—several men picking over a lot of orders, having to stop to read the tags, holding a list up against a wall and trying to write. If such a system does require several more people, their salary is more than saved in damaged stock, to say nothing of the quicker dispatch and the satisfaction of knowing your stock is being delivered in the best condition possible. If you have not such a system, start one and it will not be long before you will wonder how you ever got along in the old haphazard way. Ponder this well and see if one of the greatest problems you had to face at

Let's Turn It Over You and I

Let's turn over a new leaf.
Let's turn it over to stay turned.
Let's make it read different than last year's.
Let's start with the word "happy."
Let's end with the word "smile."

Let's write on the second line, that we cannot have smiles in our voice, if we don't put smiles on our face.
Let's write on the third line the word "scat."
Scat to dull care when it comes meowing around.
Meows never yet caught a mouse.

Let's stop wishing we were the other fellow; for he most likely is wishing he were us.

Let's wish each other a Happy New Year.
Let's wish it, because we honestly wish to wish it.
Let's turn over a new leaf, you and I.

Christmas was not that of deliveries.

Another problem is caused by the lack of many of the old blooming plants to which we have all been accustomed. For instance, we will take one item, azaleas. Did you ever stop to think that these spoiled us? In a manner, it was just a case of bringing in the plants, perhaps wrapping the pots with a piece of matting or adding a bit of ribbon, and we had a fine, showy stock ready for the customer. It did not require a florist to do this; anyone could have done it, and the plants sold themselves. In these days it is necessary for the florist to display his skill. You must show the public something just as attractive, and to the credit of some of the florists I will say that they have not only done this, but have surpassed it. One of the principal methods of accomplishing this is by made-up baskets of plants. From the arrangement of these anyone can soon see whether one is a florist or not. This is where combination counts, both as to the artistic qualities of the basket and its lasting qualities. Here is where the greatest precaution should be used in selecting your plants. If this is well done, your basket will give much more satisfaction to the purchaser than the plant that has perhaps been forced in order to get it in on time. There is much more art in arranging a good plant basket than there is in one of cut flowers. In these days of metal linings for baskets it is only necessary to arrange your cut flowers loosely, the combination, of course, considered, and you have an artistic basket. Yet a man will often stand before a bench of the finest plants, and the baskets he will turn out are poor, to say the least. Let your baskets be a good combination of foliage and blooming plants, arrange these with an eye to their lasting qualities, and after the bloom is gone your basket will still continue to give satisfaction.

Originality a Great Asset.

In these days of keen competition the florist who does not use his brains is doomed. Each florist can rest assured he has a competitor some place near him who is lying awake at night using his. It is only a matter of time until the public will become aware of it, and so will the florist, no matter how well he is established, if he is in the habit of following the line of least resistance. The point I wish to emphasize is, don't be afraid to try out new ideas. Try to have something unique. Try your ideas out gradually, and it will not be long before you will see if they take. This is a splendid time to make notes on where you fell short at Christmas. Be honest with yourself; then place these notes in a conspicuous place for future reference. Remember, Easter is just ahead, and experience is the safest and best teacher if you will be guided by it. Tate.

The question of affiliation with local horticultural organizations came up once more, and arrangement was made that in 1921 no reduced rate of membership would be accepted from affiliated members, but that it would be urged upon local societies to join the society in a group, and in order to encourage them to do this the American Rose Society would for every group of ten to fifty members, return the sum of 50 cents per member to the local organization, to be used for the purpose of encouraging rose growing in the community; that for every group of fifty to 100 members, 75 cents per member should be paid back to the organization, and for every group over 100, $1 per member. It is hoped that through this plan many small organizations throughout the country will be encouraged to join the American Rose Society.

Professor Corbett brought up the subject of the dissemination, by the society, of the Dr. Van Fleet roses. As previously reported, the Department of Agriculture is anxious that these roses be disseminated as quickly and as widely as possible, but under present conditions the department cannot do this itself, nor can it sell its roses direct to nurserymen who would propagate them. The matter of enlisting the aid of the American Rose Society was brought up some time ago, and at this meeting it was officially discussed from all angles and was finally turned over to a committee with power to act. All rose growers will look forward with great interest to what can be done, for the name Van Fleet attached to a rose at once guarantees its value.

The matter of the incorporation of the American Rose Society was again discussed and it was decided that it would be to the best interest of the society to incorporate it as soon as possible.

Prizes Offered for Rose Show.

An invitation from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society to cooperate in the rose show to be held in Boston in April, 1921, was read and referred to a special committee for definite action. In this connection two gold medals have already been offered by members of the trade in the name of the American Rose Society, and it is hoped that other medals will be forthcoming shortly.

The present membership of the society is reported as over 2,500, and it is hoped the advance in membership dues, from $2 to $3, will not materially affect this membership; indeed, we hope for a large increase in 1921, for its popularity is growing by leaps and bounds at the present time.

The demand for back copies of the Rose Annual continues, and the supply has become so depleted that the price has been advanced to $3 a copy for the 1917, 1918, 1919 and 1920 Annuals, and $5 for the 1916 edition. On account of this limited supply, all persons not members who desire them should apply at once. The 1921 Annual will be published in March, and the publication of 3,000 has been authorized.

Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club of Hartford was held at the City club Tuesday evening, December 14. As it was the annual meeting, the election of officers took place. The following were elected to serve for the next year: President, Wallace W. Thomson; vice-president, John R. Andrews; secretary, George B. Marchant; treasurer, J. Albert Brodrib. The reports of the secretary and treasurer for the last year were read and showed the club to be in fine condition both as to membership and finances. The club has grown considerably in the last year. The average attendance has also improved. Former

WM. A. MURDOCH, MEMBER
F. T. D.

President Joseph F. Coombs was unable to serve any longer, having served four years, and by way of showing appreciation of his valuable services in keeping up the interest of the members, the club presented Mr. Coombs with a United States army saber, belt and knot. An appropriate inscription was engraved on the scabbard. Mr. Coombs has been elected a lieutenant in the governor's foot guards. J. R. Andrews made the presentation speech, to which Mr. Coombs replied.

Spear & McManus occupied their new store in time for the Christmas rush.

The violet crop at the W. W. Thomson Co. greenhouses was not up to standard for the Christmas trade. The sweet peas, although growing finely, did not produce many blooms, the result of the dark weather.

Thomas Dryden's greenhouses are looking well. The cyclamens are good, as are his Boston ferns. Carnations are not producing much at present.

At the greenhouses of E. W. Newton, the grower, Clarence Rundle, has everything looking well. His carnations are in fine shape. Funeral work is plentiful, but flowers are hard to obtain. This firm is cutting some Paper Whites.

Hallgren Bros., of Wilson Station, have some excellent carnations and their small geraniums are looking fine. Easter lilies are doing well. They are cutting Paper Whites in quantity.

The Cedar Hill Greenhouses delivered their cherry plants, ferns and begonias with the help of a recently purchased 1-ton Ford truck, in addition to the other cars.

Christmas business was rushing with George G. McClunie, but he had trouble in getting flowers with which to fill his orders. Mr. Pullar, formerly with the Cedar Hill Greenhouses, is working here now.

Welch's Flower Shop recently opened a store at New Britain. It is doing well. Peter Troanino, formerly with G. G. McClunie, is now with this firm.

Coombs the Florist recently opened a store at New Haven. It is a large store on the main street of the city and makes a fine appearance. A large quantity of baskets and pottery is in stock. Christmas business was good there, as it was at the home store at Hartford.

The Market.

During the greatest Christmas business in the history of the trade, prices held firm. Every retailer and wholesaler was cleaned out of everything salable. Plants of every description, made-up baskets and poinsettias were sold out. Weather conditions were ideal.

There was a good supply of splendid stock; not enough of some lines to go around, but by slight changes all orders were fairly well taken care of. One good feature about the market was that no stock had been held for the occasion, but everything was fresh and in good condition. Roses were in good supply in all grades, ranging in price from $25 to $50 per hundred. The main call was for roses at about $30 per hundred, which made this grade scarce; yet all grades cleaned up well. American Beauties held at $18 per dozen and, while there was not a big supply, there was enough for the demand. Carnations were in fine supply, except for red. There is always a big demand for this color and it could not be supplied. White and pink were never seen in finer quality and cleaned up well. Sweet peas were fine. More could have been used, but this opportunity was met by substituting other stock. Violets gave the most concern. These were scarce and by no means enough to meet the situation. Paper Whites were in larger supply than most other flowers on the market and as all the other lines ran short these were used in most places. Orchids were in fair supply and, as was the case with all grades of fancy stock, there was enough to meet the demand. All miscellaneous stock cleaned up well. In fact, the market in general cleaned up and, all told, was quite satisfactory. Members of the trade all seemed satisfied, for they had all the business they could handle, and the remark most heard was, "A wonderful Christmas."

December 22 the weather was of the March variety. At night there was as heavy a rain storm as had been seen all season. December 23 broke fair; by noon it was as balmy as a spring day, and the Christmas rush was on for the combinations. Miss Groves reported that business was as good as it had ever been, that she had cut stock sufficient to take care of all orders, and that she was well pleased with the Christmas business. At John Cook's was a fine line of plants. The only thing missing was azaleas, but they were made up for by an excellent line of plant baskets. Large plants of heather were to be seen in this store that were specimens of the finest kind. The poinsettia pans were also fine, and the plants were about sold out by the morning of December 24. One thing that was most attractive was the care used in finishing plant baskets. On the handles of each one, where the ribbon was tied, were a few pine cones or a nice bunch of mistletoe.

Samuel Feast & Sons had their usual fine line of blooming and foliage plants. They, too, had splendid plant baskets and special care was used in their arrangement. Miss Hill stated that their cut flower orders were running far ahead of previous seasons, and that by the morning of December 24 they were about cleaned up on plants.

At Mary Johnston's the plants were cleaned up early, and never had this firm shown a finer line. The made-up baskets were cleaned up fast. Cut flower orders surpassed all expectations. This firm's church decorations took every decorating plant in stock. Mrs. Johnston said that it would be impossible for her, with the present staff and limited room, to take care of more business, and yet she had the use of the plant house opposite the store.

At Robert L. Graham's two stores plants were all gone when the writer arrived and the entire staff was busy getting out the cut flower orders and corsage bouquets.

"A wonderful Christmas," was the verdict of everyone. Tate.

Carnations brought $12 and $15, the latter price being for red. Some of the wholesalers sold all carnations for $15, regardless of color. Even the splits went for $12 and were eagerly bought at this price. The carnation is a good seller in this market and the crop was far short of the demand. Narcissi brought $8;

The T. J. Noll Floral Co. cleaned up entirely on Christmas supplies. Shipping business in all lines was heavier than ordinary during the holiday season.

Samuel Murray had the finest begonias he was ever able to show and a nice lot of cattleyas. He did not go in strongly for poinsettias this year, although he handled a good number.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. sold a new variety of poinsettia, one that C. F.
Heite developed.

The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. disposed of a great many supplies of all kinds.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. sent in 5,000 roses Tuesday of Christmas week. The company had a good cut every day. The crop consisted of Columbia, Premier, Ophelia, Butterfly, Richmond and a few Milady.

Leonard Coen, of Lexington, Mo., Tucker Smith and P. A. Manson, of Pleasant Hill, Mo., were among the vis-

Christmas Business.

Christmas business was unusually heavy, especially in plants. Most of the trade filled their stores completely with plants, due to the shortage of cut flowers and the high prices on them.

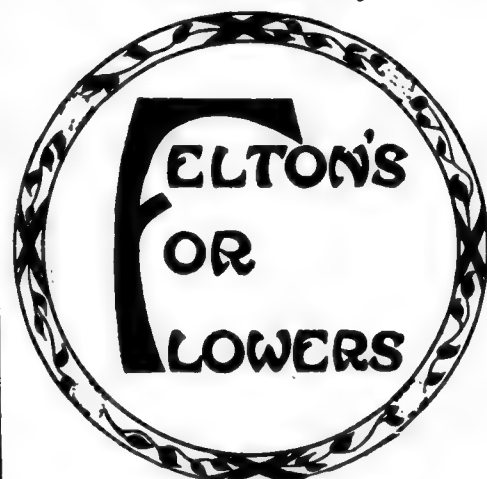

There was a good supply of poinsettias, cyclamens, primulas and Cleveland cherries in the market to take care of all demand.

All stock was cleaned up in good shape. The weather throughout December was particularly bad for the supply of cut flowers. There was little sunshine during the last three weeks and the weather was unusually dark. This caused a light cut of roses and practically put out of the market sweet peas and violets, of which there is generally a good supply here for Christmas.

Carnations were in fair supply, but with brighter weather there would have been plenty.

The weather turned cold just before

This, the florists declare, is impracticable, as shipments of plants to many points are barred unless they are first inspected here. A committee of three, Harry Papworth, C. W. Eichling and Paul Abele, sent the request to the governor and it is believed that something will be done to restore the former method of inspection.

Commercial fertilizers increased production to a much greater extent than did manure supplying the same amount of important plant food elements. The application of different combinations and amounts of commercial fertilizers to a highly productive soil and to a poor soil resulted in larger crop production on the latter than on the fertile soil.

added to an uncropped soil it was found that the proportion of soluble plant food elements was greatly increased, and was maintained at a high level for several months. However, soils which were producing crops showed a marked diminution of water-soluble material even in the early stages of the growth of the crop. Before the plants had completed their growth, the water-soluble ingredients of the soil were reduced to a level which was maintained during further growth. It was concluded, therefore, that an adequate supply of immediately available plant food is essential to successful crop production.

"We are now in the market for about 4,000 Grand Rapids lettuce plants," reports Mr. Scheib, "and it seems to me that if the trade has anything to offer, Notre Dame, with her excellent grounds, and one of the best campuses in the country, should receive due consideration."

Lake Charles, La.—Mrs. George D. Price has recently entered the florists' business. Her shop is at 303 Eleventh street.

J. A. Currey, local head of the Truscon Steel Co., and a well-known amateur rose culturist, upon his return to this city from Washington, D. C., where he attended the annual meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society, reports an offer of $15,000 from an unnamed easterner, to be spent, if accepted, for the propagation of the world's most famous roses in conjunction with the international rose test garden already located here. He states that the Department of Agriculture has arranged to import specimen roses from all parts of the world for Portland propagation.

The Market.

On the eve of the holidays the market was supplied with all kinds of stock better than it had been for several years. A wind and rain storm early in the week was disastrous to poinsettias in exposed sections, but as many of these flowers are grown in well protected places, the loss was only partial. Rose growers hit the holiday just right and the supply of good stock was ample. Other staple crops arrived in good shape and retailers were looking forward to a profitable holiday business. Heather helped out considerably, although the earlier cuttings, as usual, were not first-class as to color. Some fine heather plants were ready, both Erica melanthera and E. regerminans, the latter being in much better condition than usual.

Various Notes.

The E. C. Amling Co. moved last week into its new and larger premises at 447 Wall street, in time for the Christmas business. The new store is on the ground floor and has a floor space 50x200, giving ample room for all purposes. This firm has decided to close Sundays. Heavy shipments left last week on all trains, heather, roses and poinsettias being the leaders.

An immense business was done at the establishment of Walter Armacost & Co. When asked which was better stock, cut flowers or plants, Mr. Williamson said that neither could possibly be better and that a banner trade would be recorded for the season. Just in time for Christmas baskets and similar work, a fine shipment of small cyclamens arrived from the nursery, neat, well flowered little plants, just as good in their way as the large specimens that have been so well grown by this firm for the season. The rose crop was excellent as well. Mr. Royston returned from his eastern trip last week.

A fine showing of plants in great variety was made at the store of Howard & Smith, Ninth and Olive streets. Some extra fine ericas were noted, especially E. regerminans.

At the store of the Redondo Floral Co. poinsettias and cyclamens were leaders. Business was brisk.

The Alexandria Florist made an excellent showing of well arranged plant baskets. Some large specimens of Erica melanthera were quite fine.

Darling's Shop was beautifully arranged and some choice stock of cut flowers and plants in great variety was shown. Azaleas, Lorraine begonias and fine heathers were featured, but the whole exhibition was uniformly good.

Tassano Bros. & Co., at Ninth and Broadway, were quite busy both before and during the holiday rush, and Angelo Tassano expressed himself as well pleased with the volume of business done.

A novel and attractive lighting scheme in the windows of S. Purdie & Co. drew considerable attention and the stock shown was of a high order of merit. S. Purdie was, unfortunately, unwell during the holiday preparations, although he stuck gamely at his post.

The Dostal-Wolters Flower Shop was a magnificent sight before the holidays, some fine and artistic effects being created. The color scheme, the individual baskets and the quality of the stock deserved the highest praise and many visitors derived real pleasure from an inspection.

A most attractive show was staged by the Athletic Club Florist. J. Roller and his capable staff were kept busy attending to visitors. One of the attractions was a fine display of cyclamens.

At F. Lichtenberg's establishment all the baskets and other work were made up in the store and some striking and beautiful effects were noticed.

Always a busy place, Wright's Flower Shop excelled itself this season and a glance at the lower floor, where sold orders were arranged for several days before Christmas, showed that an enormous business had already been done. Baskets, pots and all kinds of decorative material were being made up and rapidly disposed of. Taken all in all, the holiday season there must have been a remarkably good one.

Albert Goldenson had a store filled to repletion with pots, baskets and other decorative material, good cyclamens being specially prominent.

Tassano & Son were busy all through the week before Christmas, and several days before the big event Tony said he had had to stop taking orders.

Westrem Garland Florists made a fine bid for their first Christmas business with a well filled and most attractive store.

An unusually good shipping season is the report from S. Murata & Co.

Some extra fine poinsettias were noticed among the holiday offerings of O. C. Saake at his West Fourth street store.

The Market.

All over central California the rainfall recently has been considerably more than normal. In addition to the rain it has been unusually cold, and gray days replaced for a time the proverbial sunny California. The result has been a scarcity of outdoor stock. Frequently in this section of California the weather does not really break until after Christmas and the late mums and other outdoor stock are on hand for the holiday season.

The market for Christmas was cleaned up early, with many would-be purchasers without flowers. Roses, in spite of their high prices, sold swiftly and carnations were quickly seized by eager buyers. Particularly were red carnations in demand, both in the local stores and for shipments.

Violets were fairly plentiful, but the demand absorbed them all. Freesias and narcissi were of good quality. Poinsettias, especially in pots, were plentiful and of good quality. The cut poinsettias from the south did not compare in color with the local greenhouse-grown blooms. There was an unusually abundant supply of English holly, with large berries. The California Christmas berries were also excellent, as a result of the rain and cold. Pepper berries were shown considerably and the products of the evergreen California woods were in evidence, especially redwood boughs with cones and buds. Potted plants were abundant, particularly the dwarf azaleas, begonias, primulas and poinsettias. Begonias were plentiful, although some of the florists reported a scarcity. There were some Jerusalem cherries in the market. Shipping business was good.

color. Their stocks of plants included poinsettias, begonias, Japanese azaleas, in every shade of red and pink, cyclamens and primulas. Quantities of potted heather plants were to be seen and some of the stores had banks of heather bloom. Ferns, berries and wreaths were abundantly displayed and these, with the roses, carnations, a few late mums, freesias, etc., added richness to the displays.

"The flower business this season did not seem to be affected by the stagnation that was felt in other lines," said Mrs. R. E. Darbee. "When prices of many commodities jumped up, those of flowers were not advanced in proportion. The other commodities then took a slump, but people did not do the usual buying. Many of them turned to flowers for gifts. The result was that the florists had a splendid holiday trade." Mrs. Darbee added to the holiday attractiveness of some of her potted poinsettias by putting clever little figures of Father Christmas on the branches. One of her windows showed a regular tree of English holly.

C. Kooyman & Co. had one of the most brilliant holiday displays in the city. It consisted of potted plants, masses of ferns, heather and berries, all attractively arranged.

General A. J. Gooch shipped some of the last mums of the season for the holidays.

His growers are sending J. A. Axell a number of fine freesias. He had an attractive window display of Jerusalem cherries last week.

Roses and freesias are coming in from the nurseries of the E. W. McLellan Co., although the plantings were made for the big crops to begin arriving about the middle of January. "Roses are scarce now, but will be scarcer then," was the prediction made by this company.

Domoto Bros. state that roses were high for Christmas, but moved well. They had good roses and potted plants from their nurseries and found business excellent.

Enomoto & Co. had excellent freesias and narcissi from their nurseries. Their shipments of California Christmas berries were made to all parts of the country.

The United Flower & Supply Co. coaxed the late mums successfully and had an attractive display of outdoor flowers, ranging from tiny pompons to good-sized blooms. This firm imported some hand-painted lotus sets from Japan. The blooms, leaves and pods

These small tributes from the California woods have been sent to Europe, Canada, Asia and other distant points, and it seems impossible to make the supply meet the demand.

The Market.

Early Christmas week buying gave promise of developing into something far bigger than had been anticipated by local florists during the several weeks preceding. At the same time, it was noticeable that early buyers were more interested in plants than cut flowers, and that the idea of economical purchasing was more prominent in the minds of the buyers than in previous years.

The early sales of holly and mistletoe were splendid, and the shipping trade was probably better this year than for any season in recent years. There was also a fine demand for cedar roping. Sales of these lines were made as far east as the Mississippi river, and in markets which have hitherto been untouched by northwest shippers.

Most of the mums coming in were soft and kept poorly. This condition was especially true of the late Bonnaffon mums. As for carnations, both quantity and quality left something to be desired. Portland, Ore., and California were both drawn on to meet local needs.

Roses were generally of good color, but the cut was not sufficient to meet the trade needs and liberal California shipments were noted. Columbia from local growers made probably the best showing, with Russell, Premier, Francis Brunner and Ward also showing. There was some increase in the supply of orchids and bouvardias were chiefly used with this flower because of the extreme scarcity of valley.

Potted poinsettias and dwarf orange trees were probably the leaders in seasonable offerings, while tulips and cyclamens ranked close seconds in popular favor. One of the Second avenue shops had an excellent showing of orange trees. The demand for tulips throughout was for the brighter-colored varieties. Paper Whites were used in several window decorations along with these flowers.

There has been a splendid business in store decorations this year, and local traders say they expect to see a regular increase each year in this class of business. One of the department stores used three large Christmas trees at its main entrances, in addition to window and interior decorations. A novelty offering for Christmas week was the first potted hyacinths of the season, and these were snapped up as fast as offered. There was a nice sale of artificial flowers all through the season, but less stock of this sort is being used than in recent seasons. This is considered a good thing by the trade, since there are greater business possibilities in the development of a steady sale of fresh flowers.

Various Notes.

A splendid all-around business was reported by the Hollywood Gardens for the Christmas season. This establishment made a specialty of its baskets and had several new and unusual combinations on display. The cut from the greenhouses was still short of the firm's requirements.

The work of remodeling Kenney's Home of Flowers has been completed, except for the visit of the painters, and this work will not be completed until after the holidays. This store made the first showing for this season of Proserpine tulips and had no difficulty in disposing of all the stock.

The Seattle Fern & Moss Co. in the first two days of Christmas week shipped out several tons of holly and cedar roping. There was a steady call for ferns as well.

POT FORGET-ME-NOTS AT ONCE.

Will you please inform me what would be the proper time to pot field-grown forget-me-nots in 5 and 6-inch pots for the greenhouse? Also what would be the right temperature to bring them in before the outside plants are in bloom?

W. C. H.—Ore.

Pot the forget-me-nots at once and get them established in the pots at the earliest possible moment. Forget-me-nots will not stand hard forcing, but must be brought on gradually. Raise the temperature at night 5 degrees above the average night temperature in which they have been growing, and after a week of this raise it to about 55 degrees. As soon as the flower buds can be distinctly seen—that is, as soon as they can be determined from growth shoots—raise the temperature to 60 degrees. Avoid a close atmosphere, at all times ventilating freely night and day, and spray the plants lightly every clear day. After they are well established in the pots allow plenty of root moisture.

The Market.

Christmas business was exceptionally good, stock in general being fairly plentiful. Potted plants were more abundant than cut stock. Roses were in fair supply and ranged in price from $12 to $60 per hundred. Carnations were not so numerous and the supply was entirely used. Light colors brought $12, while the dark shades and fancy varieties sold at $15 per hundred. Paper Whites and stevia were abundant. The former did not sell so well and brought only $6 and $8 per hundred. Stevia, however, was in good demand to mix with other flowers for bouquets and corsage work. Poinsettias in both potted plants and cut blooms were in good demand. These were not so plentiful as in other years. Sweet peas are rather scarce, a steady demand using up the stock. Other small stock for table and corsage work included valley at $15 per hundred, orchids at $2 and $2.50 each, violets at $3 per hundred and calendulas.

The supply of potted plants was unusually large. Jerusalem cherries were abundant and were good sellers. They varied greatly in price, according to quality and size. Cyclamens were numerous, although the quality was not the best. The pink, lavender and red sold well, while the white flowers were not so popular.

Various Notes.

The Smith & Young Co. disposed of over 10,000 roses in less than three days. Thursday before Christmas was the largest day the company had ever experienced.

Greene's Flower Shop had an excellent Christmas trade. The business was considerably larger this year than last. Mr. Greene sold everything but a few of the cheaper plants.

Bertermann Bros. Co. reported Christmas business was good, that plants were in heavier demand than cut flowers, but that prices were not so high this year as they were last.

A. Wiegand's Sons Co. had an attractive Christmas window. To the back and at each side were bay trees made almost solid with artificial poinsettias. With these and greens as a background, the front of the window was elaborately decorated with real poinsettias both in cut blooms and plants.

Otto Rieman has improved so that he has been taken to his home from the hospital. He was recently injured by an automobile while on his way home from work.

DEVELOPMENT of the 30-acre tract of land purchased by the state of California near Sacramento to be used as a nursery is under way. The first steps include the boring of a well, building of fences, and leveling of grounds. Buildings will be constructed later. The tract cost $15,000.

CLAIMING that fruit trees he had purchased from the Brown Bros. Co., Rochester, N. Y., were not true to name, Edgar Morey, a farmer of the town of Shelby, Orleans county, N. Y., brought an action against the nursery firm to recover the purchase price. A verdict for $1,200 was rendered against the Brown Bros. Co. at the trial before the Supreme court, held at Albion, N. Y., the week of December 13.

AFTER working for eight years as employees of the Oregon Nursery Co., Orenco, Ore., Carl Peterson and Eldor Henschke are starting a small nursery at Orenco. They are purchasing a considerable quantity of bulblets, seeds and seedlings. "We have eight years' experience on the practical end of a nursery," writes Mr. Henschke, "and we wish to learn the business end of it by reading The Review."

BARBERRY FROM SEED.

What do you consider the best method of growing Japanese barberry from seed? A. G.—O.

Late fall is a good time, probably the best, to sow the seeds of Berberis Thunbergii. Beds about three feet wide are suitable. The soil should be well pulverized before the seed is sown and, before sowing, the fruit should be macerated to separate the flesh from the seeds. If you do not sow until spring, it might be better to stratify the fruits in dry sand over winter and sow in the spring as soon as possible. Fall-sown beds should have a winter mulch of leaves, straw or hay, but this is not necessary with spring sowings. The seeds should be broadcasted fairly thickly and lightly covered, and the surface gently firmed with a board or the back of a rake. If you want to advance your plants somewhat, and have the necessary greenhouse space, you could sow the seeds in flats three inches deep now. They probably would not germinate until the spring, but seeds sown now will germinate earlier than those sown outdoors in the spring. C. W.

PROPAGATING MOSS ROSES.

I do not have success taking green-wood cuttings of moss roses in July. How should propagating be done?
E. C. M.—N. J.

Half-ripened wood of moss roses, in common with other hardy roses, will root in summer if placed in a gentle hotbed. Fully ripened wood cut in lengths and packed in damp sand over winter in a cold cellar will callous before spring and a good proportion will root when planted outdoors after the frost has gone, buried three-fourths their length. ### PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

It was a green Christmas, without mistake. The ground was completely bare of snow and the hundreds of unemployed mill operatives throughout the country sections swamped the city markets with all kinds of evergreens. There was, however, a scarcity of cut flowers and flowering plants and these the florists who were fortunate enough to obtain a stock sold at almost any price they wanted to ask. Roses that ordinarily would retail at from $2 to $6 per dozen sold at from $5 to $25 per dozen. Small plants with any red blooms found quick sale at prices from $2.50 to $15. Poinsettias brought $1 per bud and bloom, and were few and far between.

Made-up wreaths and baskets of artificial and prepared flowers and foliage attained an almost incredibly large use. With ruscus for the background, all kinds of bright-colored imitation flowers, red predominating, went into these pieces, which proved easy sellers.

In cut flowers, carnations brought $8 to $12 per hundred; roses, $8 to $25; violets were scarce, also high, bringing $4 to $10 per hundred; chrysanthemums were among the specials and brought $2 to $8 per dozen; poinsettias, cut blooms, were $3 to $7.50 per dozen and gardenias were $1 each. A few weddings and a number of large funerals made a heavy call on the local dealers.

Christmas Echoes.

Fred Davis, of the Riverside Greenhouses, had a large lot of potted palms, which found ready sale.

The finest holly seen in this city in many years was received through the commission house of W. S. Sweet & Son, Inc., Canal street.

Joseph E. Koppelman handled several carloads of southern smilax in addition to an unusual amount of greens and artificial stock.

street, reports the biggest Christmas business she ever had.

The Colonial Flower Shoppe, the latest bidder for popular patronage, exceeded all its anticipations. Located in the heart of the financial section, it reaped a good harvest.

Johnston Bros. furnished the immense 12-foot laurel wreath for the Providence Journal Co. again this year, for the twentieth-odd season.

Ed Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., said he was too tired to say anything about business. "Just say they cleaned me out, and that's enough."

Thomas Curley, the veteran grower of Harkness street, cut several hundred fine poinsettias, besides furnishing many blooming plants in small pots and pans.

Various Notes.

Charles Forbes reports an unusually large run of funeral work recently.

Fred Dietz, 24 French street, had a large casket cover of roses and a number of pieces for a funeral last week.

John Johnston, of Johnston Bros., was a recent business visitor in Boston and vicinity.

William Doel, of Pascoag, R. I., was in town last week looking for final supplies for the holidays.

Willis S. Pino has been elected vice-president of the New England Seed Trade Association.

Viewing the thousands of handsome roses cut at the greenhouses of the Budlong Rose Co., Auburn, it would be hard to make anyone believe that these bushes received a tremendous beating by hail and that nearly all the glass in the houses was broken thereby, the latter part of September. It has been a wonderful recuperation. W. H. M.

Marblehead, Mass.—James Mockford, a grower at 21 Rockaway avenue, is just recovering from the effect of the coal shortage last season. Because of the fact that he could get no coal, the stock in his greenhouse, 18x100 feet, was ruined February 3. It was 3 below zero that day, with a gale blowing. The pipes and pumps in the greenhouse burst, eliminating all possible chance to save any of the crop from freezing. However, this year the prospects are brighter and things are coming along nicely.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

The opening of the Christmas season in Toronto was rather disappointing to some of the florists, but the two days prior to Christmas were excellent, and as a result all members of the trade were elated. Additional help was put on the last two days both in the stores and for delivery purposes. The growers who had sent in all the stock they had planned for the holidays were approached and consented to search their greenhouses for any stock which had escaped their notice. It has been reported that last Thursday and Friday were record-breakers in the amount of business done on the last two days before Christmas in the history of Toronto.

In spite of the prolonged dull weather in December, there was an exceptionally fine stock on the market. Azaleas and cyclamens were in abundance and sold rapidly. Both the buyers of azaleas before the war and the new buyers of today purchased heavily, and as a result the large stocks were disposed of. In fact, the growers were not able to meet the demand.

Various Notes.

Telegraph business during the Christmas season was excellent, according to the florists here. Those who feature wire service here had good incoming business and many report a large number of orders sent to florists in other cities.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Association held its regular meeting December 20, with a large attendance. It was decided to have a question box; so at future meetings those wishing information can obtain it by dropping their questions in the box. The next meeting will be open and an address will be given by Alexander Simpson on botanical garden schemes. Arrangements will be made for the annual social, which is to be held in February. The exhibition of begonias, poinsettias and cypripediums was exceptionally good.

J. A. Neal recently purchased a new delivery truck, with which he will attempt to keep up with his increased business.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

The highest quality in Chrysanthemums is accorded our products by the majority of Commercial growers.

A few so-called Exhibition varieties under the best state of cultivation have in a degree Commercial qualities, but such qualities are greatly depleted under conditions slightly adverse. In other words, there is little or no middle ground—they are either good or bad.

In considering Commercial qualities, the best returns for the labor bestowed designate the varieties most useful to the grower.

A list of up-to-date varieties comprising new, recent introductions, and the best of the older kinds, will be furnished upon request.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

STEAM IN HOT WATER SYSTEM.

I am having trouble with my heating system. I have a Wilks hot water boiler and it is making steam instead of hot water. I just completed the plumbing in my new greenhouse and am not getting the desired results.

The boiler is located at the east end of the greenhouse, with the expansion tank four or five feet higher than the highest hot water point. In the boiler is one 2-inch overhead flow pipe, with ten returns. The flow pipe slopes downward, the lower end having a drop of between six and twelve inches. A return of about the same slope goes to the boiler. The air valve is over the boiler at the highest hot water point. What can the trouble be? Have I enough pipe? I should like the temperature between 52 and 70 degrees, but not less than 52 degrees. The greenhouse is 14x100 feet. E. T. O., Ill.

The amount of glass in the ends of the greenhouse is not stated, and we are not sure regarding the size of the return pipes. If the returns are 2-inch, the radiation will be ample for a minimum temperature of 52 degrees, even with both gables exposed, in a house 14x100 feet.

If the returns are 1½-inch, a mercury generator is needed to maintain 52 degrees, except by quite heavy firing, even with only one gable exposed.

Under any circumstances, it is unwise to attempt to feed ten return pipes, 100 feet in length, with one 2-inch overhead flow pipe. If the returns are 1½-inch, we should put in two more 2-inch flow pipes, placing one on each plate and the other under the ridge, and supply a coil of four returns with the ridge flow, and three returns with each of the others.

If the returns are 2-inch, we should remove two of the return pipes and use them as flows, with the same arrangement as suggested above, except that there will be three returns in two coils and only two in the middle coil.

While we should prefer to start at the boiler with a 3-inch flow pipe, it will answer if there is a 2½-inch flow port. From this take off flows to run to the plates. Continue it as a 2-inch pipe to connect with the flow two feet below the ridge.

Instead of placing an air valve at the highest point in the system, it will be better to run a small pipe from this point and connect it with the pipe leading to the expansion tank.

INSTALLING A SPENCER BOILER.

I am sending a chart of our greenhouses. Will you tell us the best method of greenhouse heating, as we are changing our heating system and install-

PLIBRICO Keeps the Heat Where it Belongs

PLIBRICO keeps the heat in the furnace, because it forms a jointless one-piece lining in your front door arches, entire fronts, side walls, arches, bridge walls, etc. This lining is gas and air-tight, saves fuel while at the same time greatly reduces your furnace upkeep, will last longer, give better satisfaction and can be more easily repaired than a lining constructed of fire brick and fire clay.

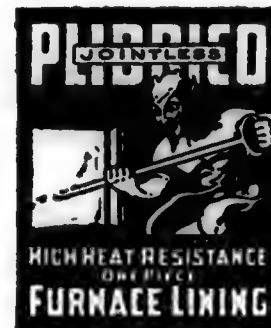

PLIBRICO is also unexcelled for baffle construction and repairs.

Temperature in the house should be 40 degrees. H. & S.—Can.

Neither the letter nor the accompanying sketch gives any idea of the construction of the walls, but if there is no glass in any of the houses below the level of the wall plates and if the walls themselves are of well-built concrete block or frame construction, and not over five feet in height, we should use ten 2-inch returns in house No. 1, 31x100 feet; twelve in house No. 2, 36x125 feet, and six returns in house No. 3, 18x70 feet, placing one-half of the number on each of the side walls, although we should prefer, especially if the houses are built with raised benches, to divide the returns about equally between side-wall and under-bench coils.

We note that it is proposed to divide the coils in the center of each of the longer houses, making four separate wall coils in each house, supplying all of them from one overhead flow pipe. Of course this may be done if there is any special reason for it, but for houses of this length we suggest the coils be continuous. If the 4-coil system is to be used we should use a 4-inch main in house No. 1, reducing it to three inches after taking off the first two coils. In house No. 2 the main flow should be 5-inch, which may be reduced to 4-inch at the center of the house. For house No. 3 use a 3-inch main, taking it off from the flow to house No. 1 near the boiler.

If only two coils are used in houses Nos. 1 and 2, it will only be necessary to use 4-inch overhead flow pipes, connecting the end of the flow pipes with each of the coils by means of 3-inch supply pipes. In house No. 3 the connecting pipes may be 2½-inch. While it will not make much difference if the flow pipes can be supported on posts running up to the ridge, as a rule we do not favor using a single large flow pipe under the ridge unless the level of the returns is below the top of the boiler. Our preference would be to run two 3-inch flow pipes in houses 1 and 2, either on the wall plates or on purlin posts. There is less objection to the 3-inch flow pipe in house No. 3, but two 2½-inch flows might be substituted.

The Christmas Market.

From the talk of the leading retailers and wholesalers, Christmas business this year was ahead of any previous Christmas and, from reports in local florists' circles, broke all records in volume of business and satisfactory prices. The weather all through the week was clear and cold, and deliveries needed extra wrapping, which took up considerable time. In the absence of azaleas, the best selling flowering plants were cyclamens. Poinsettias, as usual, had a big call. Well fruited oranges and cherries were much in favor and the supply was large in all blooming plants this year. Ferns and made-up baskets of plants had one of the largest demands in years, as the west end florists were cleaned up December 26 and at present writing will need a considerable supply to replenish their stocks in order to make a show for New Year's day.

The market was never better in supply and quality of cut stock. Roses were easily the leaders and some extra fine quality of Premier, Russell, Columbia, Ophelia, Milady and Killarney were noted last week, with prices more reasonable than in former years, while the demand this year was much better. Carnations fell somewhat below other years in demand and the supply was not so heavy. Reds and pinks had the call, as usual. Select stock sold at from $15 to $18 per hundred. Cut poinsettias sold well and select heads brought as high as $9 per dozen. Violets were of fine quality and averaged $3 per hundred. Cattleya Trianae had a strong demand, being priced at $25 per dozen for choice blooms. Chrysanthemums were quite numerous at some of the wholesale houses, but did not sell as well at the price asked as had been expected.

For sweet peas, $3 per hundred was a stiff price, but the supply was not equal to the demand at any time during the week. The demand for calendulas, Paper Whites, stevia and snapdragons used up the supply rapidly. The heavy demand upon the local growers, who cut closely all the week, will no doubt shorten stock considerably the coming week. In addition, one foot of snow fell Christmas night and the storm continued throughout the next day. Weather predictions call for cloudy weather with much snow.

It is expected here that New Year's business will be good, as society reports many approaching functions and orders for cut flowers and decorations have been already booked ahead.

Various Notes.

The downtown florists talk of nothing but the great volume of business done. Grimm & Gorly, Mullanphy Florists, Riessen Floral Co., George Berner, the Foster Floral Co. and the floral departments at Vandervoort's and Famous-Barr say everything sold well and the demand for plants and cut stock was away beyond their expectations.

C. Young & Sons Co. made a grand display of blooming plants and reports satisfactory business in all lines.

Ostertag Bros. never had a better Christmas and report many advance orders for New Year's.

In the west end the leaders all employed extra help and their business was the best ever experienced. Some remarkable displays in the windows of Fred C. Weber, Joseph Witek, F. H. Weber and the Sanders Nursery Co. attracted considerable attention.

George Waldbart Floral Co., Ayres Floral Co., M. S. Newman and Koenig Floral Co., centered at Grand avenue and Olive street, say a better Christmas could not have been wished for. Their stores were filled with the choicest of stock in plants and cut flowers.

Reports from the north and south ends of the city were that it had been the best Christmas ever. The most noted displays of Christmas stock were at the establishments of the Bergstermann Floral Co., Windler's Flowers, Schoenle Floral Co., Charles Beyer, Mrs. Bruenig, W. H. Kruse and the Blossom Shop. The Mullanphy Florists' north end establishment and the stores of the Bentzen Floral Co., Pieper Floral Co. and A. Brix Floral Co. had all they could attend to. The new florists' stores, the Carlton Flower Shop, Hamilton Florist, Kissel and the McGill Floral Shop, who experienced their first Christmas, say everything was most satisfactory.

The Koenig Floral Co. will furnish the decorations incidental to the inauguration of Governor-elect Hyde, at Jefferson City, Mo. Otto Koenig, head of the firm, a prominent Republican, received the order.

W. C. Smith, treasurer of the Florists' Club, will entertain the officers of the club at his home on Thurman avenue January 6, when an interesting program will be arranged for the meeting of the Florists' Club to be held January 13.

Thomas C. Carr, successor to the firm of Carr & Richardson, Union Market, experienced the best Christmas business in the thirty years he has been in the trade. The demand for greens, plants and cut stock was heavy.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will hold its next yearly meeting January 5 at the W. A. Rowe establishment, Kirkwood, Mo. Interesting discussions will take place, regarding Christmas business. President Martin Ude expects a full attendance.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners is going to have a big New Year's meeting, which will be held at the municipal greenhouses, at Forest park. President Jensen says the feature of the meeting will be the installation of the newly elected officers. Several interesting discussions are also on the program.

The florist bowlers will bowl regularly each Wednesday, and commenced on this schedule December 29. Members of the trade are welcome to attend any Wednesday night.

The annual meeting of the St. Louis district branch of the National Flower Growers' Association will be held at St. Louis January 25. The local committee, consisting of L. Jules Bourdet, W. A. Growers who have received application blanks for membership should fill them out and return to the secretary at once, as an attempt is being made to increase the membership to 100 by the time of the annual meeting.

The Market.

Christmas week found stock rather scarce in most lines, especially carnations and roses. Everything cleaned up nicely with the exception of white narcissi and stevia. If there had not been an oversupply on the market, these two items would have cleaned up, too, but every grower and wholesaler was overstocked for several weeks before the Christmas rush. Cut poinsettias cleaned up with the exception of a few of the short ones. More carnations could have been sold had they been available. Stock this year was better than for some years past, which was gratifying to all concerned.

Various Notes.

The statement made recently that Karl Witthuhn had removed his stock to a new location has been investigated and appears to be without foundation. Mr. Witthuhn expressed the intention of moving, but as yet is in his former location. W. A. R.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Considering the high prices it was necessary to charge for holiday goods, the Christmas trade was entirely satisfactory. Many customers who usually purchase cut flowers bought flowering plants or ferns, because they felt they were getting more value for their money. While there are a few mums in the market, they have practically passed for the season.

Various Notes.

The Hilton Dahlia Farm is the trade name which has been filed for the florists' business conducted at 1958 Springfield avenue, Hilton, by Catherine E. Gordon.

The Washington Florists, Broad street and Central avenue, reported an excellent Christmas trade. R. B. M.

Green Bay, Wis.—Carl Meier has purchased the Stiles greenhouses at Oconto, Wis., the largest in that part of the state. They were used for growing winter vegetables, but the increased cost of coal rendered that unprofitable. They will be planted to roses and carnations.

King GREENHOUSES

“Wide houses make big gables”

To be good gables they must be held rigid and not cast too much shade. Notice the steel posts—six in all, not counting the corner posts.

All these posts go down below the frost line to a concrete base, then up through the cement wall and are bolted to the steel end roof rafters.

Being held firmly top and bottom, the point that would spring is therefore in the middle.

The middle line is just about over the top of the doors at the first gable purlin.

At this point we put diagonal braces extending from the intersection of the first purlin and posts to the intersection of the roof purlins and rafters.

The gable, therefore, can neither blow in nor blow out and is what we started out to get—a rigid gable.

When you think of good greenhouses, think of King.

QUEEN ESTHER GLADIOLI.

Never offered for sale before, been growing this variety 18 years for cut flowers. Since I originated this variety I always had ready sale at good prices the last of June and July due to its earliness. Earlier than Halley and a more pleasing color. See description in part from Cornell University.

BLOOM:—Medium large, curved, stout tube, stamens white, anthers violet. It possesses a deep Tyran rose blotch on two lower petals. Very compact and well shaped.

SPIKES:—3-ft., erect and a fair bloomer. 16 blooms on main spikes, 7 to 10 on secondaries; 5 blooms are usually open at one time, there being 3 spikes per cormel frequently.

GROWTH:—Vigorous, well furnished with broad leaves.

PROLIFICACY:—Cormels large and prolific, an excellent landscape variety because of profusion of spikes, good foliage and pleasing color.

Anyone interested in this variety write me and I will quote you very reasonable on the whole lot or part. I have many thousands of them, all sizes.

Some Hold Up Points Worth Upholding

Before you decide on the house you are going to build, hold up a bit, and consider some of these hold up points in Hitchings houses.

Take the columns for example.

As columns, they are pipe, like any other column. But there the likeness stops.

It stops at the bottom, before it starts.

Look at the center illustration, and you see why.

At the top the column cap is bolted directly to the plate that splices the rafter and carries the truss tie.

The cap itself is bolted through and through to the column.

So much for that hold up framing point.

Now for how the rafter and purlins are fastened together. Take a look at the cut below. See that knee brace, and the way it first bolts with 2 bolts to the purlin. Then bolts to the rafter.

Then screws to the rafter cap itself. Compare its strength with the usual piece of angle iron cut off in short lengths.

After which, let's go up the roof to the ridge, as shown at the right.

umn cap splice plate to the ridge, is framed at the factory, all ready for lifting up into place.

Plate No. 1 on both sides of the rafter, with its angle No. 2, is brought face to face, and bolted together.

No. 3 is the anchor for the truss rod which stiffens the ridge.

No. 4 is the truss rod.

No. 7 is the no leak ridge, so milled that the sash have sort of a pry tight movement, making it weather proof.

Now figure on the fact that the rafter from the column runs to the eave, where it bends, and continues straight to the cast iron post base, similar in design to the column base.

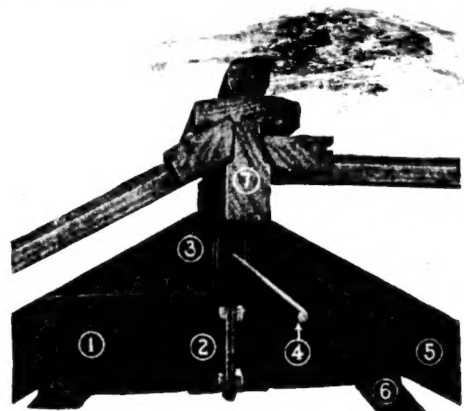

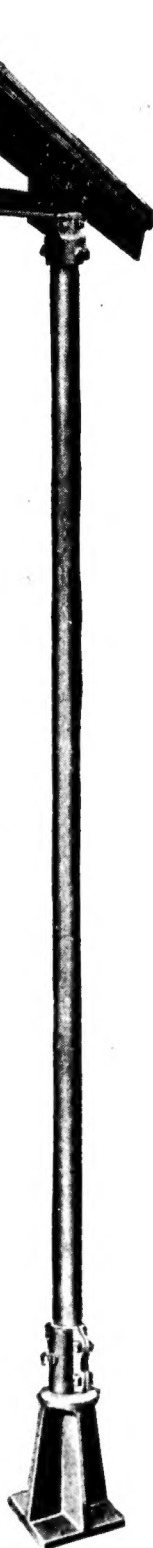

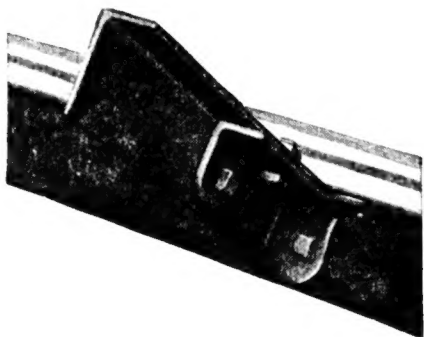

The rafter itself is not below grade to rust.

It has no splice plates at the eave to cumber it up and cast shade. It's one solid piece from column cap to base.

For the rest of them—both the hold-up and hold-down points—see our Supply Book.

If you haven't one, send for it.

And you know we go anywhere for business, or to talk business.
